Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada

Chapter 52

General Information

Background

The Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada grew out of the interplay of disparate elements of public opinion concerned with heritage preservation and government policy before the First World War. A growing heritage movement encouraged the government to preserve and develop sites with important historical associations. At the same time, the government was looking to extend its national parks system from the west into the east and the idea of creating historic parks around significant historic structures was conceived. The War delayed the introduction of a government program to identify and preserve Canadian historical heritage; however, in 1919, James B. Harkin, the Commissioner of Dominion Parks, suggested that "An Advisory Board for Historic Site Preservation" be established, and the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada was born.

The Board was given a statutory base for its operations through the Historic Sites and Monuments Act of 1953.

Responsibilities

The Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada has the statutory responsibility to advise the Minister of Canadian Heritage and, through him or her, Parks Canada on the commemoration of nationally significant aspects of Canada's past, including the designation of national historic sites. When forwarding a positive recommendation to the Minister, the Board will also advise with respect to an appropriate level of Program involvement with the subject of commemoration — that is, by the erection of a bilingual or trilingual plaque, by entering into a cost-sharing agreement with a third party in order to preserve or interpret a site, or, more rarely, when resources are of exceptional quality or rarity and associated with themes of particular significance, by acquisition and development as major a national historic site.

The Board also advises the Minister on the designation of heritage railway stations and other matters relating to the implementation of the Heritage Railway Stations Protection Act.

Normally, the Board meets in plenary two times a year to consider submissions from the general public, heritage organizations, provincial and municipal governments, and others regarding matters of possible national significance. The various committees which it has established to expedite its work, such as the Cultural Communities Committee, the Built Environment Committee, the Inscriptions Committee and the Heritage Railway Stations Committee, meet as required.

Legislation

The following statutes provide for the operation of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada:

- Heritage Railway Stations Protection Act
- Historic Sites and Monuments Act

Organization

At full strength the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada has 16 members: two members from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec and one member from each of the other provinces and the two territories. The National Archivist and a representative of Canada's National Museums also sit on the Board.

Provincial and territorial members of the Board are appointed by Order in Council (normally for three or five years). They must be resident in the province or territory that they represent, serve on a part-time basis, and are eligible for reappointment. The Chairperson is appointed by the Governor-in-Council from among the members of the Board.

Located in Hull, Quebec the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada Secretariat, in the National Historic Sites Directorate of Parks Canada, provides administrative support to the Board.

Human Resources Development Canada

Chapter 53

General Information

Background

This department was created in November 1993 and consists of various components from Employment and Immigration, Health and Welfare, Labour, Secretary of State and literacy programs from the Department of Multiculturalism and Citizenship, with ten regions corresponding to the ten provinces. The Department of Human Resources Development was established by Bill C-11, The Department of Human Resources Development Act, which came into force on July 12, 1996.

Responsibilities

The Department's broad objectives are: helping Canadians prepare for, find and keep work, thereby promoting economic growth and adjustment; assisting Canadians in their efforts to provide security for themselves and their families, thereby preventing or reducing poverty among Canadians; and promoting a fair, safe healthy, stable, cooperative and productive work environment that contribute to the social and economic well-being of all Canadians. The Department is responsible for labour market adjustment, national labour-related activities, employment training and employment insurance programs, post-secondary education payments, student loans, social development programs, income security and the national literacy program.

Organization

♦ Corporate Services

The objective is to provide executive direction, policy development and management support services to the Department. It is pursued through: the design and implementation of appropriate policies and programs; the rendering of timely and ongoing strategic communications advice; the provision of administrative, financial and human resources services; and the development, placement and maintenance of a variety of automated systems.

Areas of specialized expertise have been established at both the regional and national level to address specific operational needs of the various program groups. The activity components include:

Strategic Policy:

This group has broad responsibility for developing and maintaining statistical information banks which may be used for research, evaluation, policy and program analysis, and development in support of the various HRDC programs and services. The data are frequently extracted from the personal information banks and they may be supplemented by questionnaires, surveys or other research tools. These data may be of interest to several groups within HRDC. The group is also responsible for Intergovernmental Relations.

Systems Group:

This group is responsible for the development and operation of the manual and electronic data processing systems required to execute HRDC's programs.

Communications:

The Communications Group plans, coordinates and implements HRDC activities in the areas of external and internal communications, public opinion research, promotion, information, media relations, publishing and advertising. The Group informs the public, in both official languages, about HRDC policies, programs and services related to Insurance, Human Resources Investment, Labour and Income Security.

Financial and Administrative Services:

This group provides financial, administrative, operational and management support services to HRDC's operations in NHQ and in the regions to ensure accountability, control and security, and is responsible for the administration of the Privacy, Human Rights and Access to Information Acts.

Human Resources Services:

This group provides a full range of personnel services to HRDC.

International Affairs:

HRDC maintains relations with a large number of international organizations including the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the United Nations and its organisms, as well as the International Labour Organization (ILO). Above all else, this group has the role of coordinating all the international activities of the Department.

National Council of Welfare:

The National Council of Welfare was established by the Government Organization Act, 1969 as a citizens' advisory body to the former Minister of National Health and Welfare. Since the reorganization of federal government departments in 1993, the council advises the Minister of Human Resources Development. Its mandate is to advise the Minister on matters pertaining to welfare. The council consists of 21 members drawn from across Canada and appointed by the Governor in Council. All are private citizens and serve in their personal capacities rather than as representatives of organizations or agencies.

♦ Human Resources Investment Branch

The overall objective of this branch is to develop and support the productive use of labour market resources in Canada, in cooperation with other government departments and the private sector, respecting the principles of equity in employment and ensuring the protection of public funds, in order to promote the effective and efficient functioning of the Canadian labour market. These activities include: labour market information; counselling and labour exchange tools through a network of Human Resource Centres of Canada; job creation programs; sectoral partnerships; employability and social partnerships; support to persons with disabilities; student assistance and education support; youth programs; literacy; strategic initiatives; and federal-provincial cost shared arrangements including: Program for Older Worker

Adjustment (POWA); Vocational Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons (VRDP); the wind down of the Canada Assistance Plan (CAP), which was replaced by the Canada Health and Social Transfer (CHST); aboriginal programs; and the National Adoption Desk.

Cost Shared Programs Directorate:

The Cost Shared Programs Directorate is responsible for the administration of three main sub-activities: Cost Shared Programs, Child Care Program and National Adoption Desk.

The Cost Shared Programs division administers, in cooperation with the provinces and territories, four specific programs: Canada Assistance Plan (CAP); Vocational Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons (VRDP); Alcohol and Drug Treatment and Rehabilitation (ADTR); and Federal-Provincial Agreements to Enhance the Employability of Social Assistance Recipients; and two main demonstration projects: New Brunswick Works (NB Works) and Deinstitutionalization.

The Canada Assistance Plan (CAP) is a cost-sharing program through which Canada contributes to the eligible costs incurred by provinces, territories and municipalities of providing social assistance, welfare services of a preventive, supportive or rehabilitative nature, and work activity projects intended to improve the employability of persons who have employment difficulties.

The Vocational Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons Act (VRDP) is a cost-sharing program through which Canada pays 50 per cent of the costs incurred by the provinces in providing a comprehensive program for the vocational rehabilitation of persons with physical and mental disabilities. The Act also enables Canada to make direct contributions to individuals and non-governmental organizations for vocational rehabilitation research.

The Alcohol and Drug Treatment and Rehabilitation Agreement (ADTR) is a cost-sharing program which is a component of Canada's Drug Strategy, announced in May 1987. This Agreement enables the federal government to share with the provinces in the costs of establishing and enhancing alcohol and drug treatment programs. ADTR contributions complement the VRDP program, part of which provides financial assistance to provincial programs that support alcohol and drug treatment and rehabilitation in a vocational context.

Deinstitutionalization Initiatives:

The Deinstitutionalization Initiatives are the largest single element of the 1991-96 National Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities. Federal funding is being provided for development of community based alternatives for persons with intellectual disabilities who are now in institutions or unstable community settings. Each project involves a partnership between federal and provincial governments and national and provincial associations.

Education Support Branch:

The Branch administers post-secondary education payments to the provinces and territories under the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act and the Federal Post-Secondary Education and Health Contributions Act (1977). It co-operates with the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade in ensuring the effectiveness of Canada's participation in international educational activities. It conducts research and analysis related to the development of national education issues. It develops responses to questions from institutions related to education, from Parliament and from the public. It works with Statistics Canada to collect statistics concerning education, maintains a database on information relevant to education, consults with federal and provincial departments, and produces an annual report to Parliament on Federal and Provincial Support to Post-Secondary Education in Canada.

National Adoption Desk:

The National Adoption Desk provides services related to International adoptions to provinces and territories. The Desk's primary activities are the development of new and maintenance of existing Inter-country Adoption Programs; coordination of inter-country adoption cases on behalf of the provinces and territories; and coordination of information and inter-country adoption matters among the provinces/territories, other federal departments and foreign authorities. The Desk represents all provinces and territories except Quebec which manages its own relations with other provinces and foreign countries through the Secrétariat à l'adoption internationale du Québec.

National Literacy Secretariat:

Was established on a permanent basis in 1988 as part of a national literacy strategy to help ensure that Canadians have the literacy skills necessary to participate fully in the social and economic life of Canada. The Secretariat acts like a catalyst and facilitator in this national effort to make Canada a more literate society. It directs its efforts to forging more cooperative relationships with a variety of partners — all the provinces and territories, voluntary organizations, business and labour — in support of five types of activities: developing learning materials; improving co-ordination and information-sharing; increasing public awareness; improving access and outreach; and supporting research. The Program has four funding streams. Through its federal/provincial/territorial stream, it sponsors projects which are directed to regional or local needs. Through its national funding stream, it supports projects in partnership with a variety of non-governmental and voluntary organizations, both literacy and non-literacy groups and business and labour organizations. Broadly speaking, initiatives with these groups address an issue or concern of relevance to literacy in Canada from a national perspective. Through the Atlantic Groundfish Strategy (TAGS) funding stream, it sponsors projects that are directed to regional or local needs of TAGS recipients. And, through its Literacy Corps funding stream, it encourages the training of volunteer tutors who in turn offer literacy training to youth in their respective communities. The National Literacy Program does not fund the provision of direct, on-going literacy services.

National Welfare Grants Division:

National Welfare Grants Division (NWG) is a National Social Research and Development Program that develops and promotes knowledge and resources which address significant social development issues facing Canadians and Canadian society. NWG provides project contribution funds to non-profit organizations to address priority social development issues which contribute significantly to the social and economic well-being of Canadians. National Welfare Grants Fellowships are available for full-time study leading to advanced diplomas or doctoral degrees in social welfare or a closely related field. Grants are provided to national voluntary social service organizations as partial funding for national office activities.

Status of Disabled Persons Secretariat:

Promotes collaboration and partnership among federal and provincial governments, business, labour, academics, service providers, and persons with disabilities in order to achieve equal access, economic integration and full participation for person with disabilities. It plans and co-ordinates initiatives of the federal government, such as the National Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities, the review of federal legislation, and provides advice and support to federal departments and agencies regarding policy initiatives which impact on Canadians with disabilities. It also provides information to all Canadians through the Canadian Clearinghouse on Disability Issues.

Strategic Initiatives Program:

The Strategic Initiatives Program, established in May 1994, is a key element of social security reform. It provides a unique mechanism for governments working in partnership to take action in high priority areas of employment, learning, income support and services. Projects selected under the SI Program are funded on a 50/50 basis with the province or territory, and will last two, three or four years depending on the nature of the initiative. A limited amount of Strategic Initiatives funding has been allocated to address the particular needs of Aboriginal peoples. Initiatives aim at addressing the needs of children and families; supporting the school to work transition; enabling working adults at risk of long term dependency to contribute as productive members of society; and ensuring that persons who experience barriers to employment and full participation in community living can achieve equality, independence, and full participation. Initiatives will also provide opportunities for program coherence and integration to reduce the jurisdictional and structural barriers; demonstrate ways of reducing reliance on government assistance; and demonstrate innovative approaches to job creation.

◆ Income Security

The Income Security Program (ISP) aims to promote and strengthen the income security of targeted groups of Canadians by developing, administering and delivering programs for seniors, persons with disabilities, survivors, families with children, and migrants.

ISP is composed of a single activity, Income Security, which is responsible for the administration and delivery of Old Age Security, including Guaranteed Income Supplement and Spouse's Allowance, and Canada Pension Plan benefits (responsibility for the Child Tax Benefit and Children's Special Allowances was transferred to Revenue Canada on August 28, 1995).

International Benefits Directorate:

This directorate is responsible for the negotiation and administration of international Social Security agreements.

Old Age Security Program (OAS):

This program consists of the following benefits payable under the Old Age Security Act: the Old Age Security Basic Pension, the income-tested Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) for pensioners who have little or no income, and the income-tested Spouse's Allowance for spouses, between the ages of 60 and 65, of pensioners in receipt of the GIS, as well as the Widowed Spouse's Allowance for spouses between 60 and 65 who are widowed and who meet the established income test and legal residence in Canada criteria.

Program Delivery Services Directorate:

Functions carried out are: Client Service Delivery Network Support, Client Inquiries, Program Learning Services, Rules Base Maintenance, Data Reconciliation, and Disability Tax Credit. Functions include the determination, through the evaluation of an applicant's medical history and profile, of eligibility for Canada Pension Plan (CPP) disability benefits; the processing, maintenance and reassessment of disability accounts, as well as appeals administration; the processing of dual accounts (those workers whose contributions were made to both the CPP and the Quebec Pension Plan); the maintenance of the Records of Earnings file consisting of all CPP earnings and contributor information on some 20 million Canadians; operational and administrative support; and resolution of problems and preparation of responses to ministerial enquiries on Income Security Programs issues

Programs Directorate:

This Directorate, through six divisions, provides a number of services to the Branch including: Canada Pension Plan program direction; Old Age Security program direction; the assessment of the risk of monetary error and fraud and recommendation for preventive and corrective measures; planning and information analysis; performance measurement; maintenance of program statistics; systems management to support all aspects of benefit delivery; special projects and maintenance of the legacy application systems including the Old Age Security System, the Canada Pension Plan System, and the International Agreements System that currently support the delivery of programs.

The Canada Pension Plan (CPP):

A compulsory, contributory social insurance program which provides a measure of protection to Canadian workers and their families against the loss of earnings due to death, disability or retirement.

◆ Insurance Branch

This program, which includes management of the Employment Insurance Fund, provides temporary income support to unemployed workers who qualify for benefits under the Employment Insurance Act. Main activities include: claims processing and pay, which includes all functions supporting that activity; Investigation and Control; policy analysis and development, including the provision of guidance to the Regions on benefit processing, payment and appeals; and centralized operations such as Annuities and Social Insurance Numbers.

The branch develops and executes legislation, policies, programs and systems with respect to benefit payments including regular, sickness, maternity and parental employment insurance benefits, benefits paid to claimants referred to approved training, benefits paid to claimants in approved work sharing and job creation projects, and labour adjustment benefits. The group also represents the Commission in submitting or contesting appeals with respect to decisions concerning such benefits.

National Services:

National Services is responsible for the administration of the Social Insurance Number (SIN), by maintaining a database of all SINs issued in Canada which is used to validate SIN data, produce reports and micrographics; the Canadian Government Annuities Program, by producing payments, related financial, actuarial and administrative reports, and using T4 slips for annuity contracts in payment and a database for contracts not yet in payment; and using information from the Record of Employment, Report on Hirings, and other HRDC control systems to identify fraud and abuse of insurance programs.

◆ Labour

Labour's objective is to promote and sustain stable industrial relations and a safe, fair and productive workplace within the federal labour jurisdiction; and more generally, to collect and disseminate labour and workplace information and to foster constructive labour-management relations.

The main activity components include Industrial Relations, Labour Operations, Federal Workers' Compensation, and Legislation, Policy, Research and Management. The program administers the Canada Labour Code, which encompasses labour management relations, occupational safety and health, and labour standards as they apply to all federally-regulated employees and their employers across Canada. Labour collects and disseminates labour and equity-related statistics and information, and also coordinates the Department's relations with provincial/territorial governments, international organizations and the Canadian private sector (ie — employee and employer organizations) on labour-related issues.

External Cooperation:

External Cooperation coordinates the department's relations with provincial/territorial governments, international organizations and the Canadian private sector (i.e. employee and employer organizations) on labour-related issues. It also analyzes labour-related policies and legislation and their social and economic impact, and provides policy advice. As part of its functions, External Cooperation provides secretariat services to the Canadian Association of Administrators of Labour Legislation (CAALL), manages Canada's participation in the International Labour Organization (ILO), coordinates the department's involvement in other international labour activities, and maintains an information base on Canadian labour law.

Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service:

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service consists of the Operations Division, the Legislation, Research and Policy Division and the Labour-Management Partnerships Program. The Service is responsible for the administration of the dispute resolution provisions of the Canada Labour Code.

Federal Workers Compensation Service:

Responsible for the administration of compensation programs for work-related injury for federal employees, penitentiary inmates and merchant seamen.

Labour Standards and Workplace Equity Policy:

Develops legislation, regulations and policies with respect to labour standards and workplace equity to encourage workplaces which are fair, productive and equitable, primarily in the federal jurisdiction.

Legislative Research and Policy, FMCS:

Carries out a variety of activities intended to ensure the maintenance of an appropriate framework for collective bargaining in the federal jurisdiction and assists in the resolution and prevention of industrial disputes by providing research support. The branch has responsibility for legislative initiatives undertaken by FMCS and for advising senior officials, other Labour programs and other government departments on a wide variety of departmental and government initiatives concerned with industrial relations issues. Branch members analyze labour board and court decisions and monitor client views and legislative developments in the federal and other jurisdictions to assess their implications for labour relations. Staff members also conduct research on current and emerging industrial relations problems and issues and provide expert analysis and advice to assist in the formulation of dispute resolution strategies.

Merchant Seamen Compensation Board:

The Merchant Seamen Compensation Board administers the Merchant Seamen Compensation Act, which provides workers' compensation coverage for seamen who are employed on vessels registered in Canada and who are not covered by a provincial workers' compensation act. The Board reports to the Minister of Labour and secretariat services are provided by the Federal Workers' Compensation Service.

Occupational Safety and Health and Fire Prevention:

Develops policies and programs to promote safe and healthy working conditions through the application of Part II of the Canada Labour Code (Occupational Safety and Health) and administration of the federal fire prevention program. It also provides industrial safety and hygiene engineering; laboratory services; and fire protection services to the Treasury Board (as the employer) such as building plan reviews, standards development, fire inspections and investigations.

Office of the North American Agreement on Labour Cooperation:

The Office is responsible for implementing the North American Agreement on Labour Cooperation and coordinating Canada's participation in the Commission for Labour Cooperation. The mandate includes working with U.S. and Mexican counterparts in compiling and exchanging information, responding to enquiries and concerns from the Canadian public, and supporting a federal-provincial Governmental Council, as well as a private sector advisory body. The Office also coordinates and supports Canadian participation in the trinational and tripartite Cooperative Work Program which is developed and carried out on an annual basis. The Cooperative Work Program includes initiatives in the areas of occupational safety and health, employment and job training, productivity and quality and labour law/worker rights.

Operations Program:

The Operations Program consists of the Labour Standards and Workplace Equity Branch, the Occupational Safety and Health and Fire Prevention Branch, and the Program Services and Systems Branch. The Program is responsible for implementing policies and delivering services designed to foster the economic and social well-being of working Canadians, for administering the labour standards and occupational safety and health provisions of the Canada Labour Code and other legislation under the Department's labour jurisdiction, and minimizing fire risks to life and property in the federal environment.

Operations, FMCS:

Provides neutral third-party assistance to labour and management to resolve disputes arising during the negotiation of collective agreements by appointing conciliation officers, conciliation commissioners or boards and mediators under Part I of the Canada Labour Code. It also helps improve ongoing relationships and the communication channels between labour and management through a preventive mediation program that provides information, advice, training, facilitation and grievance mediation, and the general labour relations climate through the appointment of Industrial Inquiry Commissions. Responsible for effecting the ministerial appointment of grievance arbitrators under collective labour agreements, of adjudicators to hear complaints of alleged unjust dismissal made by non-unionized employees and the appointment of referees with respect to wage recovery appeals. The Branch also maintains an inventory of all arbitration/adjudication decisions. These decisions are analyzed, indexed and summarized in scope note format in the monthly publication, Arbitration Services Reporter.

Workplace Information Directorate:

Collects, analyses, publishes and disseminates information relating to industrial relations and labour. Particular consideration is placed on information pertaining to major collective bargaining settlements (those that cover 500 or more employees), including developments in negotiated wage adjustments and the incidence of various provisions in collective agreements. Information on work stoppages due to strikes and lock-outs, labour organizations and union constitutions is also available. As well, the Directorate maintains a computerized database containing information on major agreements and an extensive library of collective agreements from all jurisdictions in Canada. The Directorate provides direct service to clients seeking information on the above matters. The Directorate also retains copies of non-confidential labour union returns received under the Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA). These are available for public viewing.

Listing of Employees by Nominal Roll

Description: This bank contains information received by the Commission from employers involving a sizable number of individuals. Each record may contain the employee's name, Social Insurance Number, badge or clock number, information pertaining to a stoppage of work at the employer's premises, first and last day worked, site location, reason for separation, return to work date and types/amounts of additional monies paid to individuals.

Class of Individuals: Employees involved in labour disputes, or related to claims for Employment Insurance (EI) benefits or monies paid to individuals. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to administer the Employment Insurance Act. This information is used at the Human Resource Centre of Canada to determine eligibility for benefits and to facilitate the processing of claims for EI benefits. As part of the adjudication process, factfinding is conducted with the employer to determine whether or not an individual is entitled to benefits. The listing of employees by nominal role expedites the factfinding responsibilities of the Commission and allows for effective and efficient processing of EI claims for benefits. Consistent Uses: Information in this bank is used within Human Resources Development Canada for the administration of Insurance and HRIB programs and for statistical, planning and internal audit purposes at the regional and national levels. Information may be provided to private sector research firms under contract with HRDC for these purposes. Information can also be shared with the RCMP for investigation of offenses against the Employment Insurance Act. Information may be shared, subject to formal agreements, with departments of welfare and education for the administration of their own programs; with Revenue Canada and, where applicable, with Revenue Quebec (for taxation purposes), with Statistics Canada for follow-up surveys carried out on the Commission's behalf for the purposes of carrying out its duties under the Statistics Act; and with provincial Workers' Compensation Boards. Information may also be shared with employers for the purpose of assisting them in the carrying out of their responsibilities under the Employment Insurance Act. These uses comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act and have been approved by the Minister under Section 127 of the Act. Releases of information obtained under the Employment Insurance Act are subject to the provisions of Section 127 of the Employment Insurance Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed three years after the last action. Contact: Director, Human Resource Centre of Canada (consult local telephone directory for address). Related to PR#: HRDC INS 260 TBS Registration: 003409 Bank Number: HRDC PPU 281

Record of Employment (Third Copy)

Description: This bank consists of copies of individual Record of Employment forms received from employers. Each record may contain employee's name, address, Social Insurance Number and occupation; employer's name, address and RC/T number; data pertaining to the length of employment, date and reason for separation, expected date of recall, and insurable weeks and earnings of the employee. All requests for access must identify the period of employment covered by the record of employment. Class of Individuals: Employment insurance claimants as well as those people who changed jobs but did not claim employment insurance benefits. Purpose: This bank is used in the administration and enforcement of the Employment Insurance Act. Consistent Uses: The information may be used by Human Resources Development Canada for statistical, planning and internal audit purposes. It may be provided to private sector research firms for the purposes of planning, statistics, research and evaluation. Subject to formal agreement, selected information may be shared with other federal or provincial departments for research, planning and evaluation purposes. Information may also be shared with the Department of Justice for the purpose of administering the Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Act. It may also be released to the issuing employer in exceptional circumstances. Releases of information are subject to the provisions of Section 127 of the Employment Insurance Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for ten years. Contact: Manager, Central Index, P.O. Box 7000, Bathurst, New Brunswick E2A 4T1 or Director, Human Resource Centre of Canada (consult local telephone directory for addresses). TBS Registration: 001971 Bank Number: HRDC PPU 385

Report on Hirings

Description: Each observation report includes the employee's Social Insurance Number, the date of the first day worked and badge or payroll number if applicable, and the employer's name, address and Revenue Canada (Taxation) number. Individuals may gain access to the printout by giving their Social Insurance Number at the local office where their claim is filed. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have received employment insurance benefits and appear to have been overpaid. Purpose: This bank is used in the administration of the Employment Insurance Act. Information is used to control unreported work and earnings of claimants. The data received from employers are computer-matched against benefit records to discover possible overpayments against the employment insurance account. Consistent Uses: Information may also be used for internal audit purposes and to find Commission debtors whose whereabouts are unknown. Information may be shared with Statistics Canada for statistical, analytical and planning purposes. It may also be provided to private sector research firms under contract with HRDC for the purposes of planning, statistics, research and evaluation. Retention and Disposal Standards: Hiring data on claimants where a potential overpayment exists are retained for two years. Hiring data on persons who are not recipients are erased as soon as the match is completed. Contact: Director, Human Resource Centre of Canada (consult local telephone directory for address). Related to PR#: HRDC INS 240 TBS Registration: 002367 Bank Number: HRDC PPU 210

Social Insurance Number Registration

Description: Information in the individual records includes the applicant's first name, middle name, surname, date of birth, surname at birth, other surnames formerly used, sex, whether the applicant is a twin, place of birth, father's full name, mother's full name at birth; it also shows the Social Insurance Number (SIN) issued or re-issued, status in Canada, telephone number, mailing address, and may include the marital status and the name and address of the employer. The microfilm image also shows the date of application, the applicant's signature and witnesses when required. This bank contains a microfilm image of each approved application for issuance of a Social Insurance Number, for issuance of a replacement Social Insurance Number card, or for amendment of social insurance register records. All requests for access by individuals must include the Social Insurance Number, name and place and date of birth of the individual. Also required is the family name at birth of the individual's mother, as well as the documentary proof of identity required in submitting an original application for a Social Insurance Number. Particulars of the documentary evidence required can be obtained by contacting any Human Resource Centre of Canada. Class of Individuals: Canadian citizens, registered Indians, permanent residents and individuals who are neither Canadian citizens nor permanent residents.

Purpose: The purpose for which the information is obtained is to register persons pursuant to section 138 of the Employment Insurance Act and section 98 of the Canada Pension Plan Act to record persons in respect of whom an application has been made to the Commission, and to identify accurately all persons so registered. It is also for use in the administration of certain Acts of Canada, such as the Employment Insurance Act, the Canada Pension Plan Act and the Old Age Security Act. Exchange of information with Revenue Canada and other federal departments is also provided for under the Canada Pension Plan Act, the Family Allowance Act and the Employment Insurance Act. Information may also be shared with the Department of Justice for the purpose of administering the Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Act. Similarly, special Social Insurance Numbers are issued for immigration and other purposes to persons who are neither Canadian citizens nor permanent residents pursuant to the Employment Insurance Regulations in conjunction with the Immigration Act. Therefore, information on the Social Insurance Number Register is exchangeable with Citizenship and Immigration officials administering the immigration program. Consistent Uses: Subsection 139(5) of the Employment Insurance Act provides for the use of Social Insurance Register data for the accurate identification of individuals and for the effective use by such individuals of their social insurance cards and numbers. On this basis, the Central Index will, if an authorized enquirer presents data about a Social Insurance Number holder sufficient to identify that holder on the Social Insurance Registers, divulge the holder's Social Insurance Number to the enquirer. This is known as "give the SIN" and is extended to employers or former employers to meet the requirements of the Employment Insurance Act and the Income Tax Act. This service is also extended to other government departments, and to organizations in other levels of governments, where the Commission has approved such an exchange with the enquiring organization. Examples are: Department of National Defence (the Social Insurance Number is used as a service number by armed services personnel), Veterans Affairs Canada, Prince Edward Island Medical Care Plan (administration of Health Insurance Plan), Impôt Québec (administration of Québec Income Tax), Commission de la santé et la sécurité au travail (administration of the Quebec workmen's compensation plan), Régie des rentes du Québec (administration of the Quebec Pension Plan), and Régie de l'assurance-maladie du Québec (administration of the Quebec Health Insurance Plan). Moreover, an employer or former employer who has lost contact with an employee and who needs his/her Social Insurance Number to meet legal requirements, can obtain it through the Central Index. The RCMP may request data from the bank when they are required for the purposes of investigations under the Employment Insurance Act, the Canada Pension Plan Act, Family Allowance Act and the Income Tax Act. Data may also be released to the RCMP to assist the Force to identify deceased persons and to inform their next of kin, where the circumstances of death would otherwise make such identification and notification difficult. Finally, the RCMP may request the identity of the person whose Social Insurance Number appears inscribed upon an item of property believed stolen, where it appears that the owner intended his/her Social Insurance Number to be used this way. The RCMP may also request information from the Social Insurance Registers for the purposes of accurate identification of individuals. Other police forces may request similar information, but only through the RCMP. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for one hundred years after the Social Insurance Number has been issued. Contact: Manager, Central Index, P.O. Box 7000, Bathurst, New Brunswick E2A 4T1 Related to PR#: HRDC NSB 585 TBS Registration: 002396 Bank Number: HRDC PPU 390

Immigration and Refugee Board

Chapter 54

General Information

Background

The Board is an independent, statutory tribunal created by Parliament under Part IV of the Immigration Act. The Chairperson of the Board reports to Parliament through the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. The Board carries out three major functions: immigration inquiries and detention reviews; immigration appeals; and refugee determination. It is committed to providing both fair and efficient proceedings to all persons appearing before it.

Responsibilities

Decision making is carried out by three divisions whose functions are quite distinct: the Adjudication Division, the Immigration Appeal Division (Appeal Division) and the Convention Refugee Determination Division (Refugee Division).

Legislation

- Adjudication Division Rules, SOR/93-47
- Convention Refugee Determination Division Rules, SOR/93-45
- Immigration Act, R.S.C. 1985 (4th Sup.), c.28
- Immigration Appeal Division Rules, SOR/93-46
- Immigration Regulations, 1978, SOR/78-172

Organization

◆ Communications Branch

The Branch provides advice, planning and support for all communications activities undertaken by the Board, including media relations, management issues, speeches, publications and public environment analysis.

The Translation and Editing Section of the Communications Branch manages the Board's translation services for headquarters and the regions, including the establishment of standards and guidelines, translations in both official languages, editing and quality control.

◆ Documentation, Information and Research Branch

The Documentation, Information and Research Branch (DIRB) exists to meet the information requirements of those involved in Canada's refugee determination system. The Branch produces and makes publicly available, current and credible information related to human rights, refugee and migration issues by providing documentation that supports fair refugee determination.

The DIRB is responsible for the administration of the Board's access to information and privacy requirements, in accordance with the principles of open government and the protection of the privacy of the individual, as well as the recorded information management program of the Board.

The Branch also acts as an educational resource for organizations and individuals interested in these issues.

Since November 1995, the Branch has also been mandated to process research directives of a claim or claimant-specific nature in accordance with the Instructions for the Acquisition and Disclosure of Information for Proceedings in the Refugee Division.

◆ Finance and Administration Branch

The Branch is responsible for the application of financial policies, systems and procedures in accordance with legislation, regulations and central agency directives. It is also responsible for a full range of services to all Board employees in the areas of general administration, accommodation, telecommunications, security (personal and physical) and materiel management (contracting, forms management, inventory control, printing procurement, supplies and furnishings).

◆ Information Systems Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for the provision of information systems and technology in support of the Board's programs and services. The Directorate is also responsible for the development and implementation of national information policy, procedures, standards, security and training.

◆ Legal Services

The Legal Services Branch compiles and maintains an index of jurisprudence relevant to the Board's work for the use of Board Members and employees. The index contains decisions from the Board itself, as well as, case law from the Federal Court and the Supreme Court of Canada. The unit provides advice on matters of procedure, substantive issues of law, and the interpretation of legislative provisions. Legal Services provides advice to support policy, operational and personnel decisions. Legal Services manages all litigation on behalf of the Board. Legal Services files and serves Notices of Intention to participate in the argument of appeals and applications before the Federal Court, as amicus curiae in appropriate cases.

◆ Personnel Branch

The Branch provides strategic advice and policy direction related to the human resource aspects of the Board's programs, activities and initiatives. Human resource services are delivered to Public Service employees and Members across the Board, directly and functionally.

through four regional personnel offices. Services are provided in the areas of staffing, classification, organization design, training and development, human resources planning, official languages, pay and benefits, staff relations and employee counselling.

◆ Program Policy and Standards Development Branch

The Program Policy and Standards Development Branch (PPSD) is responsible for policy development coordination, the development of standards, and the provision of operational support, advice, and analysis to the Chairperson, Executive Director, the Convention Refugee Determination Division, the Immigration Appeal Division, the Adjudication Division, and Regional Operations. This is achieved through the development of policies, tribunal procedures, service standards, performance measures, and monitoring systems, as well as through the strategic planning of operational resource utilization, that supports fair, efficient, and well-reasoned decision making in a consistent fashion across the country.

The Board's operations is highly decentralized. Regional Directors and District Managers now report to the Executive Director.

◆ The Adjudication Division

The Adjudication Division conducts immigration inquiries and detention reviews for people believed to be inadmissible to, or removable from, Canada.

◆ The Convention Refugee Determination Division

The Refugee Division deals exclusively with claims to Convention refugee status. It is an independent, quasi-judicial tribunal that hears refugee claims within Canada. The Division is responsible for determining claims fairly and expeditiously, so that Canada can offer protection to Convention refugees, while discouraging those who make refugee claims for reasons other than a need for protection.

◆ The Immigration Appeal Division

The Appeal Division hears appeals of refusals of sponsored applications for permanent residence and appeals against deportation orders issued against permanent residents and Convention refugees. The Division also hears appeals made by persons in possession of valid visas seeking admission to Canada who have been ordered removed at ports of entry.

Indian and Northern Affairs Canada

Chapter 55

General Information

Background

The Department was established under section 15 of the Government Organization Act, 1966, now the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development Act (RSC 1985 c. I-6, as amended). The Department is an amalgamation of the responsibilities of the then Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources, and the then Department of Citizenship and Immigration pertaining to Indian people in Canada.

Responsibilities

The federal government's legislative responsibilities for Indians and Inuit derive from section 91 (24) of the Constitution Act (1867) formerly called the B.N.A. Act which gives the federal government the exclusive authority to pass laws relating to "Indians, and lands reserved for Indians". On the basis of this authority, the Indian Act, which remains the major expression of federal jurisdiction in this area, was passed and a series of treaties was concluded between Canada and various Indian bands across the country. Federal jurisdiction for Indian peoples under the Constitution Act was subsequently (in 1939) interpreted by the courts to apply to Inuit as well.

Within this legislative framework, the department has a number of interlocking responsibilities and objectives. The department's principal emphasis during the next few years will be on pursuing initiatives to assist Aboriginal communities to overcome obstacles to their development and to help them marshal the human and physical resources necessary to build and sustain viable communities. Particular focus will be on: negotiating Aboriginal self-government; settling land claims; supporting the development of communities to improve on-reserve economic opportunities and living conditions; achieving the transfer of provincial-type responsibilities to the territorial governments; and promoting northern environmental awareness and sustainable development. Increasingly, the department is devolving its powers and responsibilities to the Aboriginal peoples and territorial governments directly concerned.

Organization

Administration Program

◆ Corporate Services

Responsible for the integrated management processes of the Department covering finance, management systems, administration, planning and informatics; for the determination of information/data requirement of the Department; for the audit and evaluation of departmental operations and programs; for the management of the human resources function; and for the delivery and monitoring of services to Indians and Inuit. It is also accountable for the acquisition, allocation and management of the departmental Indian Program funding process.

◆ Departmental Secretariat

Serves as a central link on such items as ministerial and executive correspondence, certain briefings, parliamentary relations and requests made under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act.

Indian and Inuit Affairs Program

◆ Claims and Indian Government Sector

Responsible for managing the negotiation and settlement of comprehensive, specific and special claims with respect to Aboriginal rights; lawful obligations of other types, or on other grounds; developing frameworks and negotiating self-government agreements among First Nations. It is involved in negotiations, research, policy development, funding support, litigation support, test case funding and planning for and coordinating the implementation of any settlement reached.

◆ Lands and Trust Services

Works to fulfil the fiduciary and statutory obligations of the Government of Canada in matters respecting Indians and the lands reserved for Indians in relation to lands, oil and gas, natural resources, revenues and trusts. It exists to protect and administer reserve lands and their resources; to administer the funds of bands and the estates of certain individual Indians; to administer the estates of deceased Indians who ordinarily live on reserve; to register entitlement to Indian status and band membership; and to administer the elections of band councils, the passage of bylaws, and the Crown's treaty obligations. It also exists to assist First Nations in addressing environmental concerns affecting the health and safety, economic and social well-being of Indian people.

◆ Policy and Strategic Direction Sector

Responsible for developing and monitoring the implementation of the Government's national policy towards Aboriginal peoples. It is also responsible for integrating the Department's long term strategy for creating a new relationship with Aboriginal peoples; for managing the related policy analysis and development, basic research, consultation and legislative changes processes; for managing the government's commitment to consult with Treaty First Nations on a process for the resolution of treaty issues; and for coordinating the Department's input to the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples. It will also manage department-level relations with First Nations, other federal interests, the provinces, foreign governments and international organizations. It will also provide a forum for international circumpolar affairs. It has the federal lead for developing program frameworks and government-wide policy positions to further self-government among First Nations. In that regard, it oversees the implementation of the inherent right and the negotiation of Aboriginal self-government. It also has responsibilities for socio-economic development policy and for policy development in the North. In addition, it is also responsible to inform DIAND'S client groups about the policies, programs and activities of the Department; to inform all Canadians about Aboriginal peoples and the North; to provide the government and the department with feedback on the interests and concerns of Canadians with respect to DIAND'S responsibilities, and provide functional direction to communications officers in all regions.

Northern Affairs Program

The Program is responsible for managing land, water and non-renewable resources in the Yukon Territory and the Northwest Territories, as well as forestry in the Yukon; assisting northerners with political, economic and social development, including the division of the Northwest Territories into two territories and the creation of Nunavut by April 1, 1999; participating in the negotiation of claims settlements and the transfer of resource management responsibilities to the territorial governments; coordinating the federal government's activities in the North; ensuring that the quality for the Arctic environment is maintained; fostering knowledge of the North through scientific investigation and technological development.

Regional Organizations

The regional offices are responsible for implementing departmental programs and policies. They are directly involved in funding First Nations and First Nations institutions, and negotiating and implementing Indian self-government agreements and other intergovernmental arrangements. They also manage the delivery of residual educational, social development and economic development services which have not yet been taken over by the bands. Regional staff work closely with the local client groups, their representatives, and representatives of provincial/territorial governments.

In addition the Yukon and Northwest Territories regional officials are responsible for the management of minerals, water, the majority of lands and forests. Responsibilities for environmental assessment of proposals for the use of these resources, and for implementation of the Arctic Environmental Strategy, are carried out in conjunction with these resource management functions. Provide support to the negotiation and implementation of comprehensive land claim agreements.

Chapter 56

General Information

Background

Industry Canada incorporates organizational elements of the former departments of Communications, Consumer and Corporate Affairs and Industry, Science and Technology and Investment Canada.

Responsibilities

Industry Canada has a mandate to make Canada more competitive by fostering the growth of Canadian business, by promoting a fair and efficient marketplace for businesses and consumers, and by encouraging scientific research and technology diffusion.

The department's efforts are concentrated on three mutually reinforcing lines of business:

Industry Canada is the government's lead department on the micro-economic policy agenda. It develops framework policies to help industries and consumers grow and prosper, advocates industry and consumer interests, works to expand trade development efforts and enhance technology diffusion. The department leads in the development of science and technology policy, competition policy, telecommunications policy (including the development of the Information Highway), small business policy, federal corporate and intellectual property law administration and intellectual property rules.

The department is responsible for the effective implementation and management of the rules of the marketplace. The extensive suite of marketplace support we provide helps ensure that businesses and consumers enjoy the benefits of a marketplace that is fair, open and efficient. This support comprises the main building blocks of a competitive business environment. It is our goal to make these rules international benchmarks for excellence, thereby giving Canadian business a competitive advantage. Under this line of business the department is responsible for the Bankruptcy Act, the Canadian Business Corporations Act, the Competition Act, the Copyright Act, consumer product inspection, patent registration and Radio Frequency Spectrum Allocation.

With a new approach to industry sector development Industry Canada is acting as a catalyst, providing new outlets for Canadian businesses to bridge the competitiveness gaps that the business cannot overcome alone. Our new approach includes a broad range of world-class services and strategic information products that are specifically designed to provide Canadian industry with the services and information they need to compete successfully in domestic and international markets.

In addition to these three principle lines of business, the department manages: Aboriginal Business Canada; the Federal Economic Development Initiative for Northern Ontario (FedNor); the Canadian Tourism Commission; and the Ethics Counselor.

Organization

Audit and Evaluation

Conducts audits and evaluations consistent with Departmental and Central agency policies.

Canadian Tourism Commission

The Canadian Tourism Commission is a working partnership between tourism businesses and associations, provincial and territorial governments and the Government of Canada. Its mission is to promote Canada as a desirable tourist destination to both international and domestic travellers and supply the tourist industry with the information it needs for its decision-making.

The Commission strives to coordinate the efforts of numerous players in the tourism sector, including hotel owners, tour operators, people who run tourist attractions, airline carriers, local and provincial associations and government agencies. The CTC continuously seeks to create new partnership opportunities for its marketing, research and industry promotional activities. The CTC was a WEB site which, in addition to providing general information on the CTC's activities and a list of its publications, establishes hypertext links with other WEB sites dealing with travel or tourism in Canada.

Communications Branch

Provides communications advice, services, and products in support of the department's activities. As a focal point for relaying information about Industry Canada programs, policies, and projects, the Branch plays a key role in developing clear, positive messages and delivering these to employees, clients, and the general public. The Branch also provides communications advice to departmental decision-makers through plans, strategies and environmental analyses, and is responsible for coordinating the production of publications, audio-visual materials, speeches, and media materials.

Communications Research Centre

The Communications Research Centre (CRC), an institute of Industry Canada, has been dedicated to advanced communications R&D for over 40 years. Its research contributes to the technical bases for the development of public policy, regulations and standards which are conducive to the development of public policy, regulations and standards which are conducive to the development of new products, systems and services. Its key research areas include: radio sciences and radiocommunications technologies, broadcast technologies, satellite communications systems, network systems and technologies, and microelectronic and optical technologies. CRC has a long history of knowledge and technology transfer and recently opened a Technology Innovation Centre to provide private industry with increased access to CRC's technologies, research expertise and unique laboratories. With some 200 engineers, scientists and technicians, the CRC is able to leverage the knowledge and technology it develops in support of its statutory responsibilities to assist the Canadian communications industry in maintaining global leadership in advanced communications technology through collaborative research, service agreements, licensing agreements, contracting, etc.

Competition Bureau

The Competition Bureau promotes competition and efficiency in the Canadian economy through the administration of the Competition Act concentrating on enforcement, public awareness and submissions on regulatory matters. The Director of Investigation and Research is a statutory appointment with the responsibility of administering and enforcing the Competition Act as the head of the Competition Bureau which consists of six branches, four of which are responsible for the enforcement of the Act. A temporary unit has also been established for the purpose of co-ordinating possible amendments to the Competition Act.

♦ Civil Matters Branch

Responsible for administering the reviewable section of the Act (excluding mergers). The Civil Matters Branch is also responsible for the Director's regulatory representations before Boards, Commissions and other Tribunals.

♦ Compliance and Operations Branch

This Branch is comprised of two directorates and an informatics centre:

◆ Micro-Economic Policy Analysis Branch

The mandate of the Branch is to provide the fundamental economic analysis needed for the Department to carry its mandate of developing micro-economic policies to promote job creation and growth. The activities of the Branch include the production of regular briefings on economic development at both the macro and micro levels (including the Monthly Economic Indicators and The Micro-Economic Monitor), a wide range of micro-economic research publications program, organization of conferences, workshops, seminars, distinguished speaker series and consultations with the private sector, the academic community and other levels of government, and the development and maintenance of the Economic Information Sources System, a value-added data base service, accessible by all employees of Industry Canada.

◆ National Advisory Board on Science and Technology Secretariat (NABST)

The Secretariat provides policy advice, coordination and administrative services to NABST and its Committees. These responsibilities include the coordination, planning and prioritizing of Board activities, ensuring that the Prime Minister receives the benefit of the advice and counsel on science and technology from a comprehensive cross-section of prominent Canadians. In addition, the Secretariat provides guidance on the implication of Board recommendations, and ensures that strategies are developed so that the Canadian government can effectively respond to these recommendations.

◆ Operations

The Operations group provides corporate service support to the Industry and Science Policy Sector.

◆ Science Promotion and Academic Affairs Branch

The Branch is responsible for policy development, program management, coordination and advocacy related to university-based research and technology transfer, the training of highly qualified personnel and college and university-private sector collaboration. It manages the Networks of Centres of Excellence Program, CIAR, industrial awards, the Prime Minister's Teachers Awards, Innovators in the Schools, Schoolnet and Computers in the Schools project. In addition, the Branch undertakes policy development, program management and national coordination related to the promotion of Science and technology with youth in the education system as well as the general public.

◆ Science Strategy Branch

To provide leadership in the development of policies and strategies in science, technology, and industrial innovation, so as to assist Canadian industry to maintain and enhance its competitiveness in the global economy. The principle activities of the Branch relate to the governance of federal S&T investments, technology diffusion policy and programs, the development of new policies and strategies to improve the innovation capacity of the economy, and advice on large scale science facilities and programs.

◆ Strategic Policy

The Branch is responsible for strategic policy leadership, both within Industry Canada and interdepartmentally, with respect to the micro-economic policy agenda. Specific functions include: development of the micro-economic framework agenda including key policy initiatives; advice on horizontal policy issues including industrial policy analysis and integration; analysis and advocacy with respect to economic framework policies; strategic planning and priority setting; the departmental policy development process and the management of the Cabinet briefing process in the department.

Industry Sector

The Industry Sector provides leadership and support to Canadian industry as it adapts to the challenges and opportunities of the global economy. The Industry Sector pursues an innovative approach to the industrial development based on delivering a policy agenda designed to influence the behaviour of firms, providing world-class marketplace services, and helping Canada's industrial sectors become more innovative and internationally competitive. This is accomplished by providing focused trade, technology, investment and human resource development services, developing and delivering sector policies and strategies designed to promote the international competitiveness of Canadian industry, and providing unique, world-class information products based on sectoral analysis and international benchmarking.

◆ Advanced Materials and Plastics Branch

The Advanced Materials and Plastics Branch participates, through a team approach, to develop and implement initiatives important to the advanced materials and plastics processing industries and Canada's economy. The branch maintains a detailed knowledge and understanding of the operation and performance of the advanced material and plastics sectors in Canada and abroad. The Branch participates with its clients and other stakeholders in industrial development activities to increase the efficiency, productivity, national and international competitiveness of those sectors relevant to the branch. As well, the Branch is involved in the development of policies and initiatives designed to promote industrial, technological and market development of assigned industries.

◆ Aerospace and Defence Branch

The Aerospace and Defence Branch is responsible for developing and implementing policies, programs and services aimed at promoting international competitiveness and sustainable growth in Canada's Aerospace and Defence sector. The branch fulfils its mission by gathering and analyzing business intelligence; by developing strategic competitive frameworks aimed at specific Aerospace and Defence sub-sectors; by ensuring that long term development opportunities for Canadian firms are optimized through Major Crown procurement projects; and, by developing business intelligence information products for delivery to industry clients via the information highway or other electronic media.

◆ Automotive Branch

The Automotive Branch is responsible for developing policies and programs and implementing strategies for the automotive industry, with the objective of improving their contribution to the manufacturing output, employment, balance of trade and regional development.

◆ Chemicals and Bio-Industries Branch

The Chemicals and Bio-Industries Branch is responsible for developing and promoting sound, future-oriented policy for the chemical and biotechnology industries; which assist in the development in Canada of an environment which favours industrial growth through innovation and technology diffusion, sustainable development and international competitiveness. In addition to developing strategic competitive frameworks and providing market intelligence and economic analysis to facilitate sound business and policy decisions, the Branch acts as a reasoned advocate both domestically and in international fora, such as the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, to further the interest of the Canadian chemicals and biotechnology industries.

◆ Coordination and Management Services Branch

The Coordination and Management Services Branch supports the Industry Sector ADM, branch managers and teams with leadership, integration, communications and problem solving. It is a service organization dedicated to the provision of specialized corporate functions to Industry Sector branch managers and sector teams. Key areas of service include: complex files management and federal/provincial relations; briefings and correspondence; parliamentary affairs; inquiries and media relations; information products brand management; strategic planning and resource management; marketing and networks advice; human resource development and best practices advice; program administration; and financial and economic analysis.

◆ Environmental Affairs Branch

The Government is firmly committed to sustainable development and has taken a number of steps to forge the convergence of economic and environmental signals.

Industry Canada's contribution to this agenda is to promote, or contribute to the promotion of innovation and competitiveness in the private sector by encouraging the efficient use of natural resources and minimizing the generation of waste.

The Environmental Affairs Branch fulfils three important roles in this regard. It coordinates and integrates the Department's input to the government's environmental regulatory initiatives and promotes the development and diffusion of key environmental science and technological capabilities which enhance industrial competitiveness. Second, the Branch promotes the growth and development of an internationally competitive environmental industry. Third, through the Canadian Office of Technology Exchange in the Environment (COTE), the Branch facilitates the transfer of environmental technologies to less developed countries and, in so doing, supports the international competitiveness of the environmental industry.

◆ Fashion, Leisure and Household Products Branch

The Fashion, Leisure and Household Products Branch is broadly responsible for consumer products manufacturing in Canada excluding food and beverages and consumer electronics.

The Branch maintains a broad knowledge base of the sectors for which it is responsible, and acts as a contact point for industry with government, identifying and assessing emerging issues of importance as they arise. The current focus of the Branch is on issues relating to the changing international trading environment of consumer goods industries and the need to re-orient the focus of Industry Canada in the direction of the provision of information and intelligence.

◆ Forest Industries and Building Products Branch

The Forest Industries and Building Products Branch provides sectoral expertise and advice within government, acts as an industry advocate, and conducts sectoral analyses and policy development to enhance the international competitiveness of the forest and building products sectors. It encourages international trade development, innovation and technological excellence, sustainable development; assists with the development, adoption, and commercialization of new technologies; identifies training needs within the industry and encourages the establishment of facilities and expertise for the teaching and training of existing and future industry employees.

◆ Health Industries Branch

The Health Industries Branch provides expertise on the pharmaceutical, medical devices and health services sectors. We advocate the strategic interests of our industrial clients to government and participate in the formulation of industrial development policies which will enhance the international competitiveness of Canadian based health industries. In partnership with industry, our team works to foster linkages between private sector networks and key federal and provincial departments and agencies.

Our initiatives include: advocacy on regulatory issues such as a cost-recovery and the new risk-based classification system; trade and investment development including the establishment of a National Sector Team and preparation of the health industries section of the Canadian International Business Strategy; preparation for the review of Bill C-91 amendments (to the Patent Act) in 1997; and dissemination to industry on trade, investment, technology and sectoral contacts through the INSIGHT suite of information products.

◆ Manufacturing and Processing Technologies Branch

The Manufacturing and Processing Technologies Branch encourages the adoption, adaption, development and diffusion of advanced manufacturing and processing technologies as a means of stimulating growth and creating jobs, particularly within the small and medium-sized enterprise community. The Branch works with its industry clients in all manufacturing sectors (including petroleum refining and oil and gas equipment; electrical power technologies; and resource equipment and technologies — e.g., forestry, mining, pulp and paper, agriculture). In addition to its sectoral policy and liaison responsibilities, the Branch is a strong advocate for the adoption of continuous improvement and best management practices by Canadian industry, and serves as an advisor to government on innovation and technology issues facing the Canadian economy.

The Branch also works to strengthen the sectoral approach to trade development, planning and delivery through its National Sector Teams in the Electrical Equipment, Advanced Manufacturing Technologies, Ocean Technologies, Oil and Gas Equipment, and Agriculture Equipment sectors.

The use of advanced manufacturing technologies is further encouraged by the enabling technologies component of Technology Partnerships Canada (TPC).

◆ Metals and Minerals Processing Branch

The Metals and Minerals Processing Sector comprises of 20,000 establishments employing approximately 230,000 people involved in the production and marketing of primary products such as steel, aluminum, copper, nickel, lead, zinc, fabricated metal and construction products such as structural steel, steel tubes and pipe, siding, doors, wire and wire products, forgings, castings, and mineral products such as cement.

The Metals and Minerals Processing Branch is responsible for promoting the competitiveness of the sector in the global marketplace, developing and maintaining a strong analytical base on the factors of production, including the relationship with other parts of the economy and implements industrial and trade initiatives designed to advance the interests of the sector both within Canada and abroad.

◆ Service Industries and Capital Projects Branch

The Service Industries and Capital Projects Branch is the focal point of expertise within the federal government on Canada's service industries, including those involved in undertaking domestic and international capital projects. The Branch maintains a knowledge base on service industries and provides strategic information, services and policy products aimed at enhancing the international competitiveness of Canadian service firms. The Branch focuses on the business, professional, distribution, and marketing service industries, including the capital projects related industries such as consulting engineering, architecture and the construction industry.

Specific activities of the branch include: promoting the export readiness of Canadian service firms; encouraging partnering and strategic alliances among Canadian and foreign companies; raising the profile and credibility of Canadian firms in foreign markets; ensuring the timely delivery of market and other strategic competitive information to private sector clients; providing information on access to financing, particularly for small services suppliers; assisting firms to exploit better, major project opportunities, in particular, those funded by international financial institutions (e.g. World Bank); developing sector competitiveness frameworks and strategies for selected service industries; undertaking studies and analyses of horizontal service industries issues such as trade in services and services data development; and supporting the government's efforts to obtain better market access through the World Trade Organization and the North American Free Trade Agreement and to ensure that agreements are implemented in practice.

◆ Transportation Industries Branch

The mandate of the Transportation Industries Branch is to foster the competitiveness of the Canadian transportation manufacturing and service industries.

The Transportation Industries Branch has responsibility for the shipbuilding, bus, urban transit, rail and truck manufacturing industries and for the marine, trucking and rail service industries. With its business clients, the Branch seeks to promote competitiveness by providing strategic intelligence products and services; to influence the policy environment to remove impediments and create opportunities; and, to develop a comprehension, in business and government, of competitiveness factors pertinent to transportation industries.

◆ Women's Bureau

The Women's Bureau was created to act as a facilitator and offer services to Industry Canada employees seeking assistance in working departmental objectives for the advancement of women. In its efforts to achieve these objectives, the Women's Bureau implements a corporate awareness effort with respect to attitudinal barriers. It investigates and makes recommendations with regards to family support mechanisms policies. It makes representation and links with other Departmental systems and entities on matters bearing on advancement of women's issues (including target policies and objectives). It takes actions deemed appropriate for improving women's representation and networking within the Department.

Office of Consumer Affairs

The purpose of the Office of Consumer Affairs is to create a fair, safe and efficient marketplace for consumers. It aims to promote and protect consumer interests by providing policy guidance to government on consumer protection and consumer issues in Canada; fostering a strong and independent consumer movement; and advocating the consumer interest with other departments, agencies and the private sector. The Office promotes partnerships for action on consumer issues among government, industry and consumers and provides a window on government for consumers and groups that work in the consumer interest.

Office of the Corporate Secretary

The Office of the Corporate Secretary provides executive support to Industry Canada Ministers across the broad spectrum of their overall portfolio responsibilities, and to the Deputy Minister and the Associate Deputy Minister, in the form of management of the decision-making process, parliamentary relations, and operation of the executive offices. The Office also promotes the application of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act within Industry Canada. The Corporate Secretary is the primary catalyst for the provision of advice and support to departmental executives and the dissemination of information related to senior management decisions.

♦ Information and Privacy Rights Administration (IPRA)

Oversees the administration and policy development of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act as related to the Department. It processes formal requests, advises senior management on the administration of the legislation and the disposition of cases, and promotes awareness of the legislation within the Department.

Office of the Ethics Counselor

The Ethics Counselor administers the Prime Minister's Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for Public Office Holders as it applies to ministers, secretaries of state, parliamentary secretaries, full-time Governor in Council appointees and ministerial staff. The Ethics Counselor maintains a registry of public declarations and provides guidance on conflict of interest and other ethical issues to departments, agencies, other governments and individuals on request. The Ethics Counselor is available to the Prime Minister to investigate allegations of impropriety against Ministers and senior officials.

The Lobbyists Registration Branch of the Office of the Ethics Counselor administers the Lobbyists Registration Act by registering paid lobbyists and maintaining a public registry. Under new legislation, lobbyists are required to disclose more information on their activities, and the Director of the Branch has formal powers to issue interpretation bulletins. The Branch also provides guidance to potential lobbyists and information on lobbyists to federal officials and the general public. The Director produces an annual report for Parliament.

Under the new legislation, the Ethics Counselor is responsible for developing and administering a Lobbyists' Code of Conduct. The Ethics Counselor is required to investigate alleged breaches to the Code, and prepare reports on them for Parliament. The Ethics Counselor also prepares an annual report on their responsibilities for Parliament.

Operations Sector

The Sector provides leadership, advocacy and program support for enhancing the performance of business enterprises and client organizations at the regional level, and to provide a framework to regulate the creation and existence of federal corporations to maintain order and fairness, and to restore resources from corporate bankruptcies to more productive use.

♦ Aboriginal Business Canada

Aboriginal Business Canada's mission is to rebuild the Aboriginal economy and integrate it into the national and international economies through the development of a successful business and capital base. Aboriginal Business Canada provides a range of programs and services in support of business ventures to Aboriginal entrepreneurs and business facilitators including: advice and counselling by business development officers; business planning assistance; management training and networking opportunities; research and advocacy activities; market expansion and trade development; direct financial assistance to Aboriginal companies in the form of contributions and loan insurance; support to a network of Aboriginal Capital Corporations established to improve access to business capital. Strategic priorities have been established which include market expansion and trade development, Aboriginal tourism development, youth entrepreneurship, and science and technology. Aboriginal Business Canada benefits from the direct involvement of the National Aboriginal Economic Development Board. These individuals set program policy, provide strategic direction and, in some cases, review and recommend proposals to be supported. Membership is made up primarily of Aboriginal entrepreneurs and individuals with backgrounds in business and economic development.

◆ Bankruptcy Branch

The Bankruptcy Branch supervises the administration of the Canadian bankruptcy and insolvency process. It maintains a public record of bankruptcies and receiverships, as well as consumer and commercial proposals which enable individual debtors and viable businesses to reorganize their financial affairs and possibly avoid bankruptcy. It is responsible for the licensing, monitoring and disciplining of private sector trustees. The Branch also helps maintain a sound and modern legislative framework, which promotes fair treatment of creditors and debtors and acts to deter abuses, and ensures public access to relevant insolvency data.

◆ Canada Business Service Centres (CBSCs)

The Canada Business Service Centres (CBSCs) are designed to provide business access to a wide range of information on government services, programs and regulations. The Centres are a collaborative effort between federal, provincial and private sector organizations. Each CBSC offers a variety of products and services to help clients obtain quick, accurate and comprehensive information. The CBSCs minimize telephone run-around, inadequate or incorrect information, and duplication of government services. This enables clients to make well-informed business decisions in an increasingly global economy. A CBSC has been established in each province in a major urban centre. There are currently 22 federal business departments participating in this initiative as well as other levels of government and non-government organizations. The combination of participants varies from province to province. Western Economic Diversification (WED), Industry Canada, the Federal Office for Regional Development Quebec (FORD-Q) and the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency (ACOA) are designated federal managing partners and are responsible for the development and management of the CBSCs as follows: WED — British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba; Industry Canada — Ontario; FORD-Q — Québec; ACOA — Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

◆ Canadian Intellectual Property Office

The Canadian Intellectual Property Office (CIPO) is responsible for granting and registering intellectual property rights in Canada and for ensuring that the information acquired, in exchange for such rights, is made available to the public. The development, management and exploitation of intellectual property is important to Canada's economic development and international competitiveness. CIPO's role is to ensure that intellectual property contributes to an acceleration of Canada's economic development and that the benefits of the intellectual property system accrue to Canadians.

◆ Chief Information Officer

The Chief Information Officer (CIO) is accountable to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Operations and the Information Management Committee for the effective and efficient management of strategic and operational information within Industry Canada. A major responsibility of the CIO is the planning, coordination and delivery of Industry Canada's Strategic Business Information Products. Specifically, the CIO manages the department's informatics resources including the high capacity national- wide area network; operates Industry Canada's library and information products to meet business requirements; manages the electronic publishing process for the information products; manages the Department's national efforts in the network of Canada Business Services Centres; establishes and implements marketing strategies to promote the use of strategic business information; and undertakes systematic client feedback assessments.

◆ Corporations Directorate

The Branch administers the Canada Business Corporations Act (CBCA), the Canada Corporations Act, and several other statutes, through the examination of applications for federal incorporation, continuance, amalgamation and dissolution of corporations; the management of a database on federal corporations and the collection, assessment and verification of information made available to the public. It issues exemptions from certain requirements of the CBCA and monitors and enforces compliance with various statutory requirements. As of April 1, 1995, the Corporations Directorate assumed responsibility for the Registration Division. The Office of the Registrar General within the Registration Division is the guardian of the Great Seal of Canada. Documents are issued under the Formal Documents Regulations, the Public Officers Act and the Seals Act (Commissions, Land Grants, Proclamations, etc.). The Division accepts and retains on file railroad deposits under Sections 81 and 90 of this Act. The Division is also responsible for the registration of Letters Patent under Part II of the Canada Corporations Act for non-profit corporations.

◆ FedNor

The Federal Economic Development Initiative for Northern Ontario (FedNor) is the federal government agency responsible for promoting economic growth, diversification and job creation throughout Northern Ontario. FedNor has offices in Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Thunder Bay and North Bay.

FedNor's programs and services are designed to provide communities and small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) with the tools they say they need to manage economic development locally; use partnerships and financial leverage to maximize the effectiveness of scarce federal resources; improve local access to such critical elements of business success as investment capital, skills training, technological know-how, export markets, government services, the Information Highway and database that provide current market intelligence; encourage self-sustaining, mutually beneficial individual, community and business partnerships and networking within the region, and between the region and elsewhere; and, ensure a strong Northern Ontario voice in national affairs.

◆ Legal Metrology Branch

The Legal Metrology Branch administers and enforces the Electricity and Gas Inspection Act and the Weights and Measures Act. The mission of the Branch is to minimize inaccuracy and inequity where commodities and services are bought and sold on the basis of measurement.

Direct services provided by the Legal Metrology include: calibration and certification of measurement standards; compliance assurance; device approval; marketplace surveillance; dispute investigation and accreditation. Other services and activities provided include: policy and legislative development and client services, including responding to complaints and enquiries.

◆ Management Services and Facilities Management Branch

The management Services and Facilities Management Branch is responsible for the management of central services, which is comprised of financial services, human resources management and organizational development for the Operations Sector; and the management of facilities (leased and owned properties), moveable assets, records and mail and telecommunications facilities for Industry Canada.

◆ Programs and Services Directorate

The Programs And Services Directorate carries out a distinct function and that is to serve as the department's focal point for direction, coordination and integration of all Industry Canada's funded programs and services activities. These include program planning and design, program legislation and statutory or quasi-statutory programs and services administration instruments, program policies, and the establishment of business practices, administrative procedures, and program delivery training.

It is responsible for providing secretariat services and related administrative support to the Programs and Services Board which serves as a forum for senior departmental officials to provide corporate direction in the selection, design, implementation and performance monitoring of financial assistance programs and business services originating from the various sectors of the Department. It is also mandated to protect the Crown interests through recovery action on defaulted loans, loan guarantees and contributions.

◆ Regional Offices

Industry Canada has regional and district offices across Canada. They deliver a wide range of Industry Canada programs and services to foster a fair and competitive marketplace. The regional offices also bring a national perspective to the development of micro-economic policy and the enhancement of national objectives by reflecting regional realities. The regional offices support international business development through the International Trade Centres (ITC) by helping firms to become export-ready and to be knowledgeable about markets and competitive opportunities. They also work closely with their portfolio partners, such as the Regional Agencies, the Business Development Bank of Canada (BDC), National Research Centre of Canada (NCR)/Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP) and other federal departments and agencies at the regional level as well as with the provinces and with the municipalities to offer business intelligence services through the Canada Business Services Centres (CBSC).

◆ Small Business Loans Administration

The Small Business Loans Administration (SBLA) administers the Small Business Loans Act pursuant to which lenders in the private sector are encouraged to make term loans to finance specified fixed assets on behalf of small business enterprises with the legislation providing for loan loss-sharing arrangements between lenders and the federal government. Administrative responsibility includes registration of loans made by lenders, auditing and adjusting of lenders' claims for loss, recovery of subrogated debts, interpretation of the program's legislation (Act and Regulations), processing of lenders' requests to be designated as "banks" for purposes of the program, maintenance of program statistics and general liaison with conventional lenders which deliver the program.

Spectrum, Information Technologies and Telecommunications

The objective of this sector is to facilitate the development, implementation and adoption of communications technologies, systems and services that serve the economic and social needs of all Canadians. This responsibility includes formulating R&D and Telecommunications policies; providing a competent base of expertise in technical and strategic issues in the area of systems interconnection and related telecommunications and information technology standards; ensuring the availability and usefulness of communications and information services to all Canadians; improving the international competitiveness of Canada's information technologies industry; developing a policy which ensures the emergence of a thriving new media information industry and infrastructure in Canada; enhancing the competitiveness in publishing film and video, sound recording and multimedia industries; developing policies aimed at achieving Canadian interests in multilateral communications organizations such as the International Telecommunications Union (ITU); managing the department's bilateral telecommunications relationships; and, achieving international R&D cooperation and technical marketing. The Sector also strives to ensure the accommodation of as many users of the radio frequency spectrum as possible with a minimum of interference; promotes the development and growth of radio; manages spectrum use by Canadian broadcasters, operators and radio licence holders; and, protects Canada's rights and interests regarding spectrum use through international agreements and regulations.

◆ Communications Development and Planning Branch

The Communications Development and Planning Branch promotes the development, diffusion, early commercialization and use of advanced technologies and services, through the Canadian communications and information technologies industry sector. Its main responsibilities are to gather, analyze and disseminate information on technology, market and industry trends, research investment, end-user needs and the implications of new technologies for society; to design and deliver application development programs and projects; to prepare sector strategic plan, and provide advice on information policy issue; to protect and promote Canadian interests in multilateral and bilateral telecommunications trade development; to assist Canadian telecommunications industries to access export markets and foreign technology; and to plan and coordinate financial, administrative and human resources activities for the Spectrum, Information Technology and Telecommunications Sector.

◆ Information Technologies Industry Branch

The Information Technology Industry Branch is committed to improving the competitiveness of the Canadian information technologies (IT) industry and infrastructure through its business analysis, trade, policy, technology and investment activities. It develops and promotes strategic information services, delivers R&D programs, formulates sector campaigns (currently, for the software, telecommunications, microelectronics and photonics sectors) and is responsible for the delivery of programs and services under the auspices of the campaigns. The Branch is expanding its business analysis role by preparing Sector Competitiveness Frameworks for the IT sector. It leads the government role in Phase II of CANARIE, and develops policies for electronic commerce for Canada in both domestic and international spheres. To facilitate the ongoing development of an advanced new media information infrastructure, the Branch undertakes industry development analysis and provides policy advice to enhance the growth of Canada's multimedia content industries including areas such as new media learning. The branch is enlarging its line of business and market intelligence products to include assessment studies and case studies on use of learnware, a clearinghouse on networking initiatives, surveys on the multimedia industry, international benchmarking of software companies and a study on financing Canadian software firms. The branch develops strategies to attract and retain value-added multi-national enterprise (MNE) activities in Canada. In addition, the Branch supports industry associations in their work in fields such as quality, standards, international marketing and strategic alliances for the IT industry and serves as industry's reasoned advocate in matters concerning other government departments.

◆ Radiocommunication and Broadcasting Regulatory Branch

Under the authority of the Radiocommunication and Broadcasting Acts, the Radiocommunication and Broadcasting Regulatory Branch develops spectrum management regulatory and operational policies and procedures. The Branch also plans, authorizes and manages radio spectrum use by Canadian operators and radio licence holders, and certifies broadcasting facilities. Its principal activities include: pursuing and protecting Canadian regulatory interests in the International Telecommunication Union and other bilateral or multilateral for a where International Regulations, allocations and standards and planning methods are developed; drafting legislation and regulations required for the spectrum management program; licensing the operation of radio facilities including mobile radio systems, satellites, microwave relay stations, amateur radio stations, etc.; certifying broadcasting facilities (CATV, television, AM and FM); coordinating enforcement with respect to non-compliance, for example, illegal broadcasting stations and the use of illegally modified (chipped) satellite and cable decoders; developing and promulgating all operational policies and procedures; operating, maintaining and updating the automated spectrum management system (SMS) used by all departmental spectrum field offices; conducting examinations for radio operators, and; planning for the continuity of telecommunications in the event of a national emergency, including catastrophic earthquakes.

◆ Spectrum Engineering Branch

The Spectrum Engineering Branch performs the engineering studies required for rational communications policy and the accommodation of new technologies. It is responsible for all engineering issues required for the effective and efficient delivery of the spectrum management program, the Terminal Attachment Program and the Canadian Interconnect Liaison Committee, as well as the technical planning and regulation of all broadcasting facilities in Canada. It is also responsible for engineering aspects of the national and international negotiations and legal arrangements needed to ensure the orderly introduction of new telecommunications technology and evolution of the Canadian telecommunications system. Its main activity is to conduct all engineering studies required as a basis for: the international negotiation of spectrum allocations; the development of domestic policy for the exploitation of those allocations; international and domestic spectrum sharing agreements and, finally; the corpus of engineering plans, standards, specifications and procedures necessary for the assignment of interference-free frequencies to Canadian radio services and assurance of the continuing quality of the spectrum and the Canadian telecommunication system. Ancillary services are provided through: the development of automated tools for spectrum management; the promotion of spectrum management technology to Canadian industry for export; the provision of laboratory and test facilities to support the Branch's engineering analysis and certification obligations; ensuring the maintenance and staging of spectrum surveillance vehicles and Integrated Spectrum Observation Centre (ISOC) equipment; providing engineering support to regional spectrum offices and; the performance of the spectrum management engineering functions required to ensure the compatible accommodation, in Canada, of the radio facilities of the Department of National Defense and its military allies. In short, the Branch is responsible for all engineering aspects of the implementation of the Radiocommunication, Telecommunication, and Broadcasting Acts with the primary objective of forestering electromagnetic and regulatory environments, both domestic and international, in which Canada's multi-billion dollar telecommunications service and manufacturing industries will continue to prosper. A fundamental aspect of this work is that the Branch provides Canada's primary technical interface with all of the responsible international bodies in the field, such as: the International Telecommunication Union, (ITU) and its radio and telecommunications arms (ITU-R and ITU-T), the International Special Committee on Radio Interference (CISPR), and a broad range of other regional, multinational and binational affiliations. It is also the focus for the technical negotiations for mutual recognition agreements with other countries and world regions to facilitate international trade in telecommunications products.

♦ Telecommunications Policy Branch

The Telecommunications Policy Branch formulates policies, recommendations, regulations and legislation governing and promoting the orderly development and efficient operation of the telecommunications facilities and services required by Canadians for national and international communications, including the present and future use of the radio frequency spectrum and use of geostationary orbits. The Branch develops policy proposals related to the structure of the industry providing telecommunications services; develops policy proposals fostering the orderly development and use of Canadian national and international telecommunications facilities and networks, including radio licensing policies and technical standards; assumes policy development, coordination and representational functions in multilateral and bilateral telecommunications negotiations; develops financial and regulatory policy proposals affecting the telecommunications industry, including regulatory reform proposals, and develops analysis and recommendations respecting the possible review by the Governor in Council of regulatory decisions.

♦ S & T Secretariat

The Secretariat provides policy advice, coordination and administrative services to the Prime Minister's Advisory Council on S&T, the Committee of Federal S&T Advisory Bodies and the ADMs Steering Committee on the Management of S&T. The Secretariat is responsible for: planning and coordinating meetings and activities; providing policy analysis and research assistance; facilitating communications and linkages among the advisory bodies, governments and the S&T community, and the development of the annual report on federal S&T.

♦ Strategic Planning and Corporate Development Branch

The Strategic Planning and Corporate Development Branch provides analysis and advice on major operational policy issues facing the Sector, develops the Sector's strategic direction and objectives and manages the Sector's planning system and accountability accords. It also assists Sector Managers in such corporate development tasks as developing a strategic vision for the department's marketplace services, designing frameworks for new trade services in the Regional Offices and helping to coordinate the development of new, more efficient, client-oriented marketplace services and information products.

♦ Trade and Operations Integration and Management Consulting Branch

The Trade and Operations Integration and Management Consulting Branch is accountable for directing the planning, development and regional implementation of integrated corporate trade strategies, policies, plans and programs; supporting regional office operations; playing an advocacy, representation, facilitation and advisory role on behalf of the Assistant Deputy Minister, Operations, on regional operations matters with sectors, other government departments and regional executive directors; designing and implementing national industry development programs; and providing leadership in the identification, marketing and delivery of professional management consulting services to the Department on a cost-recovery basis.

Information Holdings

Program Records

Aboriginal Business Canada

Description: Covers records related to fostering the increased economic self-reliance for Canada's Aboriginal people through the establishment of a strong Aboriginal private sector. Topics: All components of the Canadian Aboriginal Economic Development (CAED) Strategy relating to Business Development, Joint Ventures, Capital Corporations and Research and Advocacy; Special Agricultural & Rural Development; Native Economic Development. Programs (description): Covers records relating to departmental assistance programs and includes such material as initial contact, request for information, investigation and analysis, project monitoring, financial statement review and program evaluation. The following programs are included: Aboriginal Business Development & Joint Ventures Program; Aboriginal Capital Corporations; Native Economic Development Program; Special Agricultural & Rural Development; Aboriginal Business

Loan Insurance Program; Aboriginal Research and Advocacy Program. Program Record Number: IC IC 010

Access to Information and Privacy

Description: Records relating to the administration of the access to information and privacy legislation, information collection and public opinion research, information management practices and inventories of information holdings. Topics: Policy; procedures; reports; studies; audits; legal advice; training; surveys; personal information banks and classes; disclosures to investigative bodies; Info Source; delegation of authority; consultations; requests; complaints and correspondence. Access: Information is filed by subject. Individual requests are filed by name and sequential number by fiscal year. Storage Medium: Paper file and EDP system. Program Record Number: IC IC 020

Advanced Devices and Reliability

Description: Information pertaining to research and development of new microelectronic devices and circuits, particularly those based on compound semiconductor materials such as gallium arsenide (GaAs), and the evaluation of these materials in regard to their suitability for device and circuit fabrication. Topics: Device and circuit fabrication processes and evaluations; GAAs high-speed logic optoelectronic devices and circuits for data processing; and broadband switching applications. Program Record Number: IC IC 030

Behavioural Research

Description: This bank contains reports, studies, field trial evaluations, surveys and interviews involving individual reactions, views and opinions related to the intellectual, creative and productive capabilities of human beings in information communication and related processes, especially human perceptual and cognitive processes, human behaviour, and the interaction between people and communications technology. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, reflect collective human behaviour and not personal information about an individual. Personal information may be obtained in the process of preparing a report to establish the identity and credibility of the source. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the report involved. Program Record Number: IC IC 040

Broadcast Engineering Database

Description: This bank contains technical and administrative information related to broadcasting certificates. The information is used in the issue, renewal and amendment of certificates under the Radiocommunications Act and in providing technical certification to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to permit the issue of broadcast licenses under the Broadcasting Act. It is also used in meeting the technical criteria in bilateral agreements with the U.S.A. and agreements administered by the International Telecommunications Union (ITU). Some of this information is shared with: the Department of Transport to ensure that transmission of FM broadcasting stations do not interfere with aircraft communications; Energy, Mines and Resources Canada in preparing topographical maps; CRTC; Federal Communications Commission of the U.S.A. (FCC) related to the above agreements. Program Record Number: IC IC 050

Broadcast Technologies Research and Development

Description: Information on research and development in broadcasting and related technologies, systems and services. Topics: Television; sound (radio); datacasting; imagery; video and film generation; interactive home-services; behavioural research; broadcast standards and networks. Program Record Number: IC IC 060

Business Opportunities Sourcing System

Description: Covers subjects relating to Business Opportunities Sourcing System. Topics: The creation, development and design changes of the Business Opportunities Sourcing System, which is used as a source of reference by Canadian and foreign buyers seeking goods and services; inquiries for questionnaires; supplies related information; directories and listings etc. and is updated monthly by contact with federal regional offices and provincial counterparts. Program Record Number: IC IC 070

Cable Television Database

Description: This bank contains technical and administrative information related to broadcasting certificates for cable television distribution systems. The information is used in the issue, renewal and amendment of certificates under the Radiocommunications Act and in providing technical certification to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to permit the issue of licenses under the Broadcasting Act. Parts of this information are shared with: the Department of Transport to ensure that transmission towers do not interfere with aircraft communications and navigation, and with the CRTC. Program Record Number: IC IC 080

Canada Awards for Business Excellence

Description: Covers subjects relating to Canada Awards for Business Excellence. Topics: Dealings with businesses, industries and individuals, relating to specific categories of Canada Awards for Business Excellence, finalists and winners in each category; presentation ceremony events such as public relations, invitations, banquet, entertainment; promotion such as mailing list, advertising, entry kits, entry solicitations, flyers, pins, buttons, posters; proposals such as reports, bids, etc. from consultants who want to participate in the adjudication and events and networks of centres of excellence. Program Record Number: IC IC 090

Canadian Workplace Automation Research Centre

Description: Information about the projects carried out at the Centre. Topics: Organizational research, multimedia systems, processing of natural languages, standardized technologies, implementation management, knowledge-based systems and cultural applications of information and communications technologies. Program Record Number: IC IC 100

Communications Application Research

Description: Information on the development, implementation, testing and marketing of new or improved communications and information technology products and services to meet the requirements of industry, governments and special needs groups such as people with disabilities, aboriginal peoples, seniors and those in remote locations. This involves project management resulting from the application of policy and R & D developed by the Department and its partners.

Topics: Social and informatics applications, disabilities, native syllabics, database industry. Program Record Number: IC IC 110

Competition

Description: Information on enquiries, complaints, legal proceedings and prosecutions under the Competition Act.

Topics: Program of compliance; international agreements; co-operation and liaison; enquiries and investigations; exports; imports; investments; textiles labelling; merchandising; mergers and pre-notifications; monopolies; price fixing; research; sales; services; tariffs; trade marks; transportation; warranties; guaranties. Industries: agricultural and retail services, fishing and trapping; logging and forestry; mining; manufacturing; construction; transportation and storage; communications and other utilities; wholesale and retail trade; finance and insurance; real estate and operating insurance agents; business services; government services; educational services; health and social services; accommodation; food and beverage services. Access: Case files are arranged under the 18 major groups of the standard industrial classification system. Storage Medium: Microfilm, magnetic tape. Program Record Number: IC IC 120

Components and Subsystems

Description: Information pertaining to research and development on the design, testing and application of GAAS monolithic microwave integrated circuits (MMIC), miniature hybrid microwave integrated circuits (MHMIC), components for use in the EHF frequency band, and the design and application of silicon very large scale integrated circuits (VLSI). Topics: MMIC components and devices; EHF MHMIC components; high speed digital components; and phased array antennas (for communications, radar and microwave landing system application). Program Record Number: IC IC 130

Conflict of Interest

Description: Information on conflict of interest provisions.

Topics: Reports and appointments; and correspondence with federal government departments, agencies, councils and commission; conflict of interest responsibilities — trust, measures for Lieutenant Governors, Ministers, their exempt staff, Parliamentary Secretaries, Governor in Council appointees, full-time ministerial appointees and public servants; supplementary measures for members of government departments, corporations, agencies, boards, commissions and other tribunals. Program Record Number: IC IC 140

Consumer Affairs

Description: Information on consumer issues, policy, marketplace trends and grants and contributions to consumer groups. Topics: Applications for funding Program Record Number: IC IC 150

Consumer Products — General

Description: Information on regulations, company liaison, complaints and enquiries, reference materials, sampling and testing, and enforcement concerning specific products. Topics: Alarm and protective devices; artist supplies and stationery; appliances; automotive; entertainment; furnishings; furniture care supplies; garden and yard equipment; home fuels; home structures and building material; insulation; housewares; infant and children's products; maintenance products; paper products and containers; personal use items; recreation equipment; sports and protective equipment; textiles; tobacco; tools and workshop equipment; toys; compliance. Complaints analysis — established to analyse product — related complaints by the Branch. Access: Files are arranged by product. Storage Medium: EDP System. Program Record Number: IC IC 160

Consumer Products — Packaging and Labelling

Description: This class covers information on regulations, interpretations and rulings, complaints and enquiries, correspondence, inspections, seizures, prosecutions, statistical data, sampling and testing concerning non-food products. The portion relating to agri- food and labelling has been transferred to the department of Agriculture Canada. Topics: Surveillance and liaison with Canadian General Standards Board. Access: Files arranged by subject with a case file arrangement for company enquiries by name. Storage Medium: A system on magnetic tape is used to evaluate the compliance of various commercial establishments with the different consumer protection laws. Program Record Number: IC IC 170

Consumer Products —

Precious Metals and Fur Garment Marking

Description: This class covers information on regulations, interpretations and rulings, complaints and enquiries, correspondence, inspections, seizures, prosecutions, statistical data, sampling and testing concerning precious metal products and fur garments. Topics: Fur: garment marking, liaison, surveillance and enforcement; precious metals marking; liaison, surveillance and enforcement, foreign government marks, national mark, trade marks.

Access: Files arranged by subject with a case file arrangement for company enquiries by name. Storage Medium: A system on magnetic tape is used to evaluate the compliance of various commercial establishments with the different consumer protection laws. Program Record Number: IC IC 180

Copyright and Industrial Design

Description: Information on copyright and industrial design legislation. Topics: Copyright Act, Industrial Design Act; copyright and industrial design case files; Timber Marking Act; registration and revision, enquiries, surveys, consultations with provinces, the private sector, and other departments; registration, and complaints and enquiries about authors' and designers' works; applications for licenses. Access: Registration and files arranged by subject with cases filed numerically by subject, registration and applicant name. Storage Medium: EDP system. Program Record Number: IC IC 190

Corporations

Description: Information concerning incorporation of federal companies — contains data on federal corporations which are used for internal record keeping and information dissemination via Canada Corporations Bulletin. The master file also contains data used for the issuance of certificates of incorporation and corporate changes, and for the administration of Directorate programs dealing with compliance enforcement activities. Topics: Applications, charters, financial statements, annual returns, enquiries, liaison with companies, enforcement and surveillance investigations; exemptions; take-over bids; boards of trade; corporations. Access: Files accessible by corporation name with a numeric case file arrangement. Storage Medium: Microfiche and EDP systems. Program Record Number: IC IC 200

Economic Policy

Description: Information on economic and industrial policies; trade; financial institutions; the environment. Topics: Federal-provincial relations; foreign; monetary; prices — indexes and surveys regional situation; regulations; taxes; unemployment; industries; Canada, distribution, industry, legislation and programs, prices and indexes, processing, retailing, United States; agreements on tariffs and trade, United Nations Committee on Trade and Development; tariffs — imports, quotas; trade — agreements, extra-territoriality. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: IC IC 210

Electricity and Gas

Description: Information on the electricity and gas program. Topics: Electricity — approvals, imports and exports, statistics, inspection regulations and reports, calibrations, registration applications; gas — inspection regulations, approvals, calibrations, technical information, inspection reports, metric conversion standards and equipment, and registration applications. Storage Medium: EDP system. Program Record Number: IC IC 220

Emergency Telecommunications

Description: Information on emergency telecommunications planning in support of the Department's mandate summarized in Emergency Planning Order PC 1981-1305 dated May 21, 1981. Topics: Emergency preparedness and crisis management; interdepartmental, intergovernmental and international committees on civil emergency planning; emergency telecommunications programs and contingency plans; national warning system emergency planning and support by regions; NATO and U.S./Canada military and civil exercises.

Program Record Number: IC IC 230

Engineering

Description: This class of documents contains information on technical standards and procedures for radio equipment and systems, the development and implementation of radio frequency plans and frequency assignment criteria. It also contains the Terminal Attachment Program standards and procedures. Topics: Equipment type approval; technical methods, practices, procedures and standards; development and engineering. Spectrum management; assignment and licensing subsystems, research, special projects, pilot projects, spectrum surveillance system, automated systems development. Program Record Number: IC IC 240

Entrepreneurship and Small Business

Description: The analysis of small business issues and development of policy and program options, advocacy of small business interests within the department and across the federal government and promotion of entrepreneurship. Program Record Number: IC IC 250

Financial and Regulatory Policy

Description: Policies relating to the regulation of the telecommunications industry. Topics: Telecommunications regulation; financial statistics. Program Record Number: IC IC 260

Foreign Investment in Other Countries

Description: Information on the provisions of foreign countries to monitor, regulate or prohibit foreign investment; the importance of foreign investment in Canada by major exporting countries as well as Canadian investments abroad. Topics: Foreign investment laws, procedures and policies of other countries; foreign countries' views on Canada's approach to foreign investment. Access: Files arranged by country. Program Record Number: IC IC 270

Industrial and Corporate Research

Description: Information and correspondence relating to industrial analyses; government policies and initiatives on various industries and industrial sectors. Topics: General; minerals; oil and gas; real estate; strategic analysis; energy sector; corporate testimonials; federal provincial task force on investment and international trade barriers; international science and technology relations; advanced industrial materials; construction; automotive; taxation issues; finance and banking; fisheries; transportation; telecommunication policy. Access: Files arranged by industry or industrial sector and by topic. Program Record Number: IC IC 280

Industry Development

Description: Information on the development of Canadian products industries for Canadian and Foreign markets. Programs included are: Acid Rain Abatement Program (ARAP); Environmental Technology Commercialization Program (ETCP); Canadian Scholarships; Computers for Schools Program; Defence Industry Productivity Program (DIPP); Technology Outreach Program (TOP). Topics: Beverages; adhesives; petroleum and industrial chemical products; plastics; commercial services; consumer products — cultural products, leisure products, sporting goods, construction industry; defence industry; distribution services; electrical and electronics; appliances; communications equipment; environmental industry; fishing and trapping; food industries; forest industries — wood products, pulp and paper; furniture and fixtures — business and household products; information technology; leather and applied products; machinery; metals and minerals — iron, steel, non-ferrous and ores products; non-metallic mineral products; paper and allied products; retail trade; rubber products; scientific and professional industries; textile industries; tobacco products; transportation — air, marine, automotive, military, railway and street railway; wood industries — fabricated materials. Program Record Number: IC IC 290

Industry Development Program

Description: Involves the complementary activities of economic development; and industry development to promote effective government leadership in support of the satellite, informatics, telecommunications industries and to meet the needs of end- users. Topics: Program planning; policy reports and studies; industrial objectives and opportunities; industrial capabilities and requirements monitoring; government support; development of statistics, reports and studies on industrial research and information technologies, radio communications, satellites and mobile communications, disabilities, native syllabics, database industry support. Program Record Number: IC IC 300

Industry Structure and Services

Description: Policies relating to corporate relations and services in the telecommunications carriage industry. Topics: Legislation; competition; terms and conditions of service; terminal attachment. Program Record Number: IC IC 310

International Comparative Policy Group

Description: Information on Canada's telecommunications and cultural relations with multilateral trade organizations as well as Canada's bilateral relations with the United States in the field of telecommunications to ensure the successful pursuit of Canada's bilateral interests, and the promotion of the Canadian communications trade and industry. Also, information, studies, briefs and documentation on related cultural and communications policies in selected foreign countries. Topics: Canada United States trade relations; spectrum coordination matters; cable and satellite retransmission rights; satellite services — direct broadcasting satellites (DBS); European Economic Community (EC); Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD); Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC); comparative policy analyses of Canadian communications policies versus those of other countries and regions. Program Record Number: IC IC 320

International Telecommunications

Description: Information pertaining to Canada's involvement in international organizations with responsibilities for international telecommunications services, for the elaboration of international guidelines for such services, or for the discussion of communications issues. Topics: Implementation of ITU conference decisions; telecommunications development and training; International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (INTELSAT); International Maritime Satellite Organization (INMARSAT); Conference of Inter-American Telecommunications (CITEL); International Committee on Space Research (COSPAR); Search and Rescue Satellite (SARSAT); Telecom Executive Management Institute of Canada (TEMIC); Pacific Telecommunications Council (PTC); International Maritime Organization (IMO); International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO); Commonwealth Telecommunications Organization (CTO); Francophone Telecommunications Agency (ATF); Caribbean Telecommunications Union (CTU); United Nations Committee on Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (UNCOPUOS); North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Program Record Number: IC IC 330

International Telecommunications

Union (ITU) Activities

Description: Information pertaining to Canada's involvement in the International Telecommunications Union activities in consultation, management, regulation, development, standards setting and technical assistance. Topics: Administrative Council annual meetings; World Administrative Radio Conferences (WARC); mobile and fixed services, space (use of the geostationary-satellite orbit), medium-frequency broadcasting (western hemisphere), high-frequency broadcasting; International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB); International Radio Consultative Committee (CCIR); national and international study group meetings, plenary assembly meeting (every four years); International Telegraph and Telephone Consultative Committee (CCITT); national and international study group meetings, plenary assembly meeting (every four years); plenipotentiary conference; world and regional telecommunications development conferences as well as continued ITU world and regional Telecom Commercial Trade Symposium. Program Record Number: IC IC 340

Investment Research and Policy — Research Projects

Description: Information and correspondence pertaining to specific research projects. Topics: General; Decima studies and reports; joint venture projects; high tech studies; venture capital project; scanning model; health care industry in Canada; foreign investment, technology and economic growth; investment flows; strategic alliances; key company analysis; mergers and acquisitions; corporate taxation; Phoenix project; Canada's technological capabilities; Canadian investment to year 2000; portfolio investment project; Gleneagles research project; CDIA and Trims project; Canadian minority equity participation; world product mandate; Canada's fair share of international direct investment; Canada's leading companies; investment activity database; business roundtable discussions on international investment issues (Conference Board of Canada); multi-lateral investment agreement-Strategicon; multinationals and international competitiveness.

Research series — Corporate Globalization through mergers and acquisitions; foreign investment, technology and economic growth; Canadian direct investment abroad; Multi-national enterprises in North America.

Access: By specific issue or project. Program Record Number: IC IC 350

Investment Research and Policy — Working Papers

Description: Includes correspondence relating to the various working papers written for the Agency by research and policy. Topics: Working papers-general; Canadian Minority Equity Participation in Foreign Controlled Subsidiaries; Subsidiary Strategy in a Free Trade Environment; Formation and Operation of Joint Ventures in Canada; Trends and Traits of Canadian Joint Ventures; Business Implications of Globalization; International Investment; Canadian Developments in a Global Context; Opportunities and Challenges of North American Free Trade: A Canadian Perspective; A Multilateral Investment Accord: issues, models and options; International Investment and Competitiveness; Contribution of Investment and Savings to Productivity and Economic Growth in Canada; Business Performance Following a Takeover; Foreign Investment in Canada: Measurement and Definitions; Issues Surrounding Merger and Acquisition Activity in Canada and by Canadian Firms Abroad; Foreign Investment Protection Agreements: A Canadian Perspective; Extraterritoriality in the 1990s; Foreign Multinationals and Canada's International Competitiveness; Economic Integration in North America: Trends in Foreign Direct Investment. Access: By specific topic or title. Program Record Number: IC IC 360

Investment Review — Legal Opinions

Description: Contains information on ministerial opinions and related information concerning requests that the Minister determines whether he/she is satisfied that a delay in implementing an investment would result in undue hardship to the investor or would jeopardize the operations of the Canadian business that is the subject of an investment; Views and opinions on the applicability of the provisions of the Investment Canada Act, regulation and interpretation notes, in response to written requests submitted by one or more parties to an Investment and Ministerial opinions and related information as to whether or not an investor is a Canadian as defined in the Investment Canada Act. Topics: Status opinions — rules respecting control of entities; trusts; corporations deemed to be Canadian; equal ownership of a corporation; transitory provisions concerning Foreign opinion; Corporate reorganization; acquisition of control; joint ventures; partnerships; indirect acquisitions; oil and gas properties and mining properties; business and Canadian business; calculation of thresholds; step transaction; absolute rights. Access: Files arranged by name of applicants who ask for an opinion (individual, company, partnership, joint venture, government or agency of a foreign corporation). Program Record Number: IC IC 370

Legal Metrology

Description: Information on metering, specifications, symbols and standards, metric conversion, international measurement, international standards, and Canada's participation in international working groups and Canada's comments and votes. Programs include Organization internationale de métrologie légale. Topics: Calibrations; liaison with associations, councils and international organizations; technical enquiries; metric conversion; misleading advertising and standards. Program Record Number: IC IC 380

Lobbyists Registration

Description: Information concerning the registration of lobbyists. Topics: Lobbyist registration, information systems, forms, legislation, regulation, policies and procedures, and administration, studies. Access: Files arranged by subject. Storage Medium: EDP system. Program Record Number: IC IC 390

Marketing Practices

Description: Enquiries, complaints, investigations, legal proceedings, interpretations and correspondence on misleading advertising and deceptive marketing practices. Topics: Advertising enquiries; misleading advertising complaints (National, Pacific, Ontario, Quebec, Atlantic and headquarters); program of compliance; surveys and studies. Access: Files are arranged by subject, company and individual name. Storage Medium: EDP system. Program Record Number: IC IC 400

Mobile Satellite Program

Description: The Mobile Satellite (MSAT) Program, begun in the latter part of 1980, exists to foster development of new mobile telecommunications services in Canada. The program has changed from a government demonstration system to a commercially led Canada-U.S. joint venture supported by both the Department and NASA. Under the revised program Telesat Canada is to seek agreements with an American commercial operator to be licensed by the FCC. Telesat is to design the system and procure the spacecraft. The Department's responsibilities during the implementation phase include supporting technology development for the spacecraft and ground terminals, supporting Telesat in negotiation of business arrangements in Canada and the United States, ensuring adequate spectrum allocation and sharing arrangements with the United States, issuing supportive telecommunications policies, and supporting Telesat by the sharing of technological and market risk in the first generation system. Topics: Program and project control; system and service description; committees and working groups; international liaison; domestic and international agreements; program development; contracts and studies plan; spectrum sharing and allocation; policy and regulatory issues.

Program Record Number: IC IC 410

Network Policy and Standards Management

Description: National policies related to the orderly development and implementation of telecommunications networks and standards, and management of the Canadian national effort in the CCITT or the ITU. Topics: Network development; standards policy; northern communications.

Program Record Number: IC IC 420

Notifications

Description: Information concerning the notification of investments by non-Canadians — a complete record of the notification of each non-Canadian investment, from the submission of a notice to the issuance of a receipt by the Agency. Topics: Notices in prescribed form; subsequent correspondence with investors; consultations with relevant provincial governments and federal departments concerning investments related to Canada's cultural heritage or national identity; statutory receipts; orders for the review of investments relating to Canada's cultural heritage or national identity. Access: Files arranged by non-Canadian investor (individual, company, partnership, joint venture, government or agency of a foreign country). Program Record Number: IC IC 430

Office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy

Description: Information on investigations, licensing, assets and liabilities, enquiries, discharges, legal actions, control and audits, enquiries on civil and common law, and correspondence on bankruptcies. Topics: Audits and auditing; student loans; examination; fraudulent bankruptcies; enquiries — civil law, common law; bonds and bonding; claims; conferences; liaison — foreign governments, provinces, etc.; costs and taxation; dividends; estates; fees and expenses; instruction bulletins; licences; offenses; petitions; projects; prosecutions; reports and statistics; trustees; investigation of bankruptcies; trustees-in-bankruptcy; bankruptcy estate control files; retired or rejected applications. Access: Trustee files are arranged by name of individual or corporation. Storage Medium: EDP system; contains insolvency data used by bankruptcy offices to publish bankruptcy notices.

Optical Communications Technologies

Description: Information pertaining to research and development on optical communications and electrophotonics that have application in communications and informatics. Topics: Research on standards; field trials; optical computing and switching; optical and passive waveguides; military applications; fibre optics local networks. Program Record Number: IC IC 450

Patents

Description: Information concerning inventive works.

Topics: Applications, registrations, licensing, legal actions, studies, surveys, correspondence, regulation, complaints and enquiries, and research and technical data; liaison with universities, associations, departments, foreign governments, provinces; information retrieval; court actions, legislation; agents; classification; public servants' inventions; technology. Access: Files arranged by subject with a large case system by applicant names. Storage Medium: Paper file and EDP system. Program Record Number: IC IC 460

Prosperity

Description: Information and correspondence relating to the prosperity initiative and consultations conducted within that initiative including departmental, sectoral and national consultations as well as community talks; information related to the development of the prosperity response initiatives both at the government and portfolio levels. Topics: General; plans; major initiatives; prosperity document (paper). Program Record Number: IC IC 470

Radio Communications Technologies

Description: Research and development in the area of radio communications technology, and the performance of radio communications equipment in its operating environment for military and civil applications. Topics: Radio communications technology; radio frequency environment, radio systems techniques; radio networks; military communications. Program Record Number: IC IC 480

Radio Propagation

The files are maintained in estate number order, nor by individuals creditors. Class of Individuals: Creditors with unclaimed assets. Purpose: The information is obtained pursuant to the legislative requirements of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act and the Financial Administrative Act. Consistent Uses: The information is used for the refund of unclaimed dividends to creditors. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for six years after trustee discharge. PAC Number: 86/001 Related to PR#: CCA COA 085 TBS Registration: 002707 Bank Number: IC PPU 037

Unsolicited Applications for Employment

Description: This bank maintains an inventory of applications from individuals requesting employment with the Department. The files include completed application forms, letters, and curricula vitae of persons seeking employment with the Department. Class of Individuals: Individuals seeking employment with the Department. Purpose: The bank is used to review applications of individuals requesting employment with the Department when positions become available. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six months and then destroyed. PAC Number: 86-001 TBS Registration: 002559 Bank Number: IC PPU 052

Classes of Personal Information

Behavioural Research

This class contains reports, studies, field trial evaluations, surveys, and interviews involving individual reactions, views and opinions related to the intellectual, creative and productive capabilities of human beings in information communication and related processes, especially human perceptual and cognitive processes, human behaviour and the interaction between people and communications technology. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, reflect collective human behaviour and not personal information about an individual. Personal information may be obtained in the process of preparing a report, to establish the identity and credibility of the source. This information is not used for administrative purposes and is not arranged by or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the report involved. The retention of information depends on the length of time it is needed for related research. It is active for the fiscal years in which the project is active; otherwise, it is active for the current fiscal year; thereafter it is inactive but retrievable for the next two years, after which it is transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

Complaints, Investigations and Inquiries Class (Competition Bureau)

This class contains personal information relating to the administration and enforcement of the Combines Investigation Act and the Competition Act. The material may relate to the legislation in general, or to any category of product or service. Most filing is done according to standard industrial classification coding; the key reference for retrieval purposes is the industry or company involved. There is limited cross-referencing to and recording of incoming correspondence which may contain personal information. (Such correspondence includes complaints and requests for information as well as information obtained from the Canadian Police Information Centre, U.S. Department of Justice and from O.E.C.D. anti-trust authorities.) Personal information held by the Bureau may be provided to federal or provincial departments and agencies to ensure a proper level of service to the person identified.

Enterprise/Industrial Development and Assistance

The Department and its predecessor departments have administered a number of enterprise/industrial development and assistance programs. These programs have been aimed at encouraging enterprise and industrial development in a wide variety of ways. Personal information may be collected in the course of these departmental activities. Programs and activities which may have involved the storage of personal information include the Program for Export Market Development, the Defence Industry Productivity Program, the Microelectronics and Systems Development Program, the Technology Outreach Program, the Sector Campaigns, including the Prosperity Initiative, the St. Lawrence River Environmental Technology Development Program, the Advance Manufacturing Technology Application Program, the Strategic Technologies Program, the Science Culture Program, the Pharmaceutical Industrial Development Assistance Program, the Credit Reinsurance Program, the Shipbuilding Industry Assistance Program, the Advanced Technology Program — Waterloo Centre for Process Development, the Small Business Investments Grants, the Government Procurement Projects, the Industry Energy Research and Development Program, the Major Crown Projects, the Aboriginal Capital Corporations Programs, the Aboriginal Economic Programs Research and Advocacy Program, Aboriginal Business Development and Joint Ventures Program, Native Economic Development Program, Special Agricultural and Rural Development, Aboriginal Business Loan Insurance Program, the Western Transportation Industrial Development Program, the FEDNOR Core Industrial Program, the Rural Small Business Program — FEDNOR, the FEDNOR Loan Insurance Program, the FEDNOR Tourism Program, and Grants and Contributions to non-profit organizations to promote economic cooperation and development.

Personal information may include particulars such as the names, addresses, social insurance numbers, financial interests, management capabilities, employment histories, remuneration, age, health, marital status and educational background of individuals. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the program area, the corporate/project name, the location of a facility and the approximate date of submission/award.

General Development Agreements, Economic and Regional Development Agreements, Subsidiary Agreements and Related Initiatives

The Department has collected data needed for the administration of subsidiary agreements entered into with the provinces, consistent with the terms and conditions of general development agreements previously signed with all provinces, except Prince Edward Island, and the new economic and regional development agreements entered into with the 10 provinces. The general development agreements, which expired on March 31, 1984, established the framework for development and identified development opportunities for implementation under subsidiary agreements. The economic and regional development agreements with the provinces, as well as the subsidiary agreements signed under the economic development agreements with the Territories, provide a framework for co-operation and consultation on matters relating to economic development in each province and territory. As opportunities are identified, individual subsidiary agreements are formulated. These opportunities are normally unique to a province and, as a result, subsidiary agreements cover a broad range of specific programs.

Personal information may be stored in administering a number of subsidiary agreements. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the name of the project or program that may be related thereto and the approximate date of submission/award.

Inquiries (Bureau of Consumer Affairs)

This class contains inquiries concerning the following Acts, which are administered in whole or in part by the Department: Canada Agricultural Products Standards Act; Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act; Electricity; Gas and Inspection Act; Fish Inspection Act; Food and Drugs Act; Hazardous Products Act; National Trade Mark and True Labelling Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Textile Labelling Act; Weights and Measures Act. This class contains records on establishments that have been inspected with respect to the requirements or the legislation listed above. It contains inspection and incident reports, complaints, warning letters and other correspondence, and reports of prosecution. The names of individuals who are sole owners of companies appear in the files. These files are kept for several years in order to plan inspection visits and monitor the compliance level in relation to the regulatory requirements of the legislation administered by the Department.

Mailing Lists (Bureau of Corporate Policy and Strategic Planning)

This class of personal information contains the names and addresses of individuals who are on a mailing list to receive specific information or publications on departmental programs and activities. The lists are used by all bureaus to distribute departmental information and to respond to requests by individuals. The lists are updated on a continuing basis. The lists are maintained for a minimum of two years.

Other Programs and Agreements

This class reflects other programs and agreements not specifically covered under the other classes. These other programs and agreements are aimed at resolving specific problems of a limited nature or in specifically defined areas of the country. For example, federal-provincial agreements, such as those under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA), are concerned with rural problems of unemployment and social disadvantages. Special ARDA agreements have been used as a vehicle to improve the economic circumstances of native people by providing financial and other assistance to create job opportunities. A Native Economic Development Program was established to increase economic self-reliance and development for Canada's native people. A 15-year development agreement, the Prince Edward Island Comprehensive Development Plan, was signed by Canada and P.E.I. in 1969, under the authority of the Fund for Rural Economic Development Act. The plan has allowed for the design and implementation of a broad range of programs to stimulate economic growth, create jobs and raise per capita income. In addition, under the Federal Development Strategy, the Department has been involved in providing further economic development activities in P.E.I.

Personal information may be stored in administering programs falling within this class. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided, such as the name of the program concerned, the name of the specific project and the approximate date of submission/award.

Program Evaluation (Bureau of Corporate Policy and Strategic Planning)

This class of personal information contains data collected from departmental employees for departmental program evaluation studies. The aggregate data are used to support program evaluation, policy analysis and program development activities. All data are retained at headquarters with study files retained for a minimum of two years. Files are retrievable by study only. The names of individual participants are not retained.

Technological Information Services Requests (Intellectual Property Directorate)

This class includes the names, addresses and telephone numbers of individual inventors and entrepreneurs who have submitted requests for technological information. Also included is background information relating to the requests, the purposes of the requests and the specific areas of interest. The purpose of this service is to provide a technology search to assist in the development of new or improved products and processes and to avoid duplication of research and development. Requests are received via intermediary agencies (such as provincial research councils), and files are maintained by agency, not by name of individual. Requests are retained for a minimum of two years.

International Development Research Centre

Chapter 57

General Information

Background

The International Development Research Centre (IDRC) was established as a public corporation by the International Development Research Centre Act of 1970.

Responsibilities

IDRC gives priority to supporting research projects whose overall goals involve meeting the challenges of sustainable and equitable development. IDRC's research activities are divided into five multidisciplinary themes: Biodiversity; Food Systems Under Stress; Information and Communication; Technology, Environment, and Society; and, Integrating Environmental, Social, and Economic Policies. The IDRC is financed by the Parliament of Canada; its policies, however, are set by an international Board of Governors.

Legislation

- General Bylaw of the IDRC
- International Development Research Centre Act, 1970

Organization

The IDRC's headquarters are in Ottawa where it has an international staff. Regional offices in Asia (Singapore and New Delhi), East Africa (Nairobi), West Africa (Dakar), South Africa (Johannesburg), Latin America and the Caribbean (Montevideo) and the Middle East (Cairo) link Ottawa with the researchers and policy makers of the developing countries, encourage and assist the development of research proposals, and monitor ongoing projects within their regions.

The IDRC's 21-member Board of Governors is appointed by the Canadian government. Under the International Development Research Centre Act, the chairperson, vice-chairperson and nine other governors must be Canadian citizens; the other ten are non-Canadians.

The president of the Centre holds the rank of deputy minister and is responsible to Parliament through the Minister designated for that purpose by the Governor in Council (currently the Minister of Foreign Affairs). A management committee composed of officers appointed by the Board of Governors assists the president in the Centre's operations.

♦ Corporate Services Branch (CSB)

This Branch supports research on cross-cutting development issues such as gender and development, and evaluation. It also provides non-administrative program services of Centre-wide application, such as public information, scientific and development research information, training and awards, and initiatives to involve Canadian institutions, individuals, and communities in the Centre's work.

Laurentian Pilotage Authority Canada

Chapter 58

General Information

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Laurentian Pilotage Authority, a Crown corporation, was established on June 30, 1971, and became effective as of February 1, 1972, governed by the Pilotage Act and Regulations. For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Authority is a corporation specified in Schedule III, Part I of that Act.

Responsibilities

The objects of the Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient pilotage service within the region.

The Chairman is the Authority's chief executive officer. The board is composed of a maximum of seven members, appointed by the Governor in Council. The head office is located in Montreal.

Legislation

- Pilotage Act and Regulations, RSC, 1985, c. P-14

Organization

♦ Administration Branch

This Branch attends board meetings, keeps minutes and takes care of files and records.

♦ Board of Directors

The Authority's board of directors is appointed by the Governor in Council, to a maximum of seven members. The chairman is the chief executive officer.

♦ Operations Branch

This Branch provides pilotage services by assignment, and dispatches qualified pilots to ships navigating within the Authority's region.

Medical Research Council of Canada

Chapter 59

General Information

Background

The Medical Research Council of Canada is a corporation established by the Medical Research Council Act. Its objective as stated in the Act is to help attain the quality and scale of research in the health sciences essential to the maintenance and improvement of health services. To this end the Council has established a number of types of grants (to support research), awards (to support individuals) and special programs for which individuals may make applications for consideration in peer-reviewed competitions. The personal information in the banks in this chapter consists mainly of assessments of applications obtained by the Council in the peer review process. For grants and special programs, access to this personal information is automatic, that is, copies of all review reports are sent to the applicant along with notification of the Council's decision. For awards, access is available on request, either informally, by letter, or by submission of the Privacy Access Request Form to the Privacy Coordinator.

Responsibilities

According to the Medical Research Council Act, the Council's mandate is to promote and support health sciences research in Canada by funding research carried out primarily in faculties of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy, as well as in affiliated institutions and hospitals. The Medical Research Council is accountable to Parliament through the Minister of Health Canada.

Legislation

- Medical Research Council Act, R.S.C., c. M-9 amended 1976-77, c. 24, 34
- Queen Elizabeth II Canadian Research Fund Act, R.S.C. 1970, c. Q-1

Organization

Executive Committee

The Executive Committee comprises seven Council members including the president and the vice-president. It carries out executive powers and functions under delegation from Council. There are usually five meetings each year. The Council also has standing committees to assist in formulating policies and procedures for priorities and planning, research and personnel funding, public affairs, and ethics in experimentation. Recommendations on grants and awards to be funded are made following an extensive examination of applications through a process of peer review. This peer review process consists of 24 grant and 12 award committees with a total membership of over 340 working scientists drawn chiefly from universities.

Secretariat

The secretariat, which has the general responsibility for the administration of the Program, is under the direction of the President and includes the following areas:

♦ Business Development

responsible for creating and maintaining appropriate partnerships.

♦ Communications and Information Branch responsible for promoting the nature, scope and significance of health science research in Canada. Activities also include informatics.

♦ Finance and Administration

responsible for the provision of financial and administrative services.

♦ Innovation Teams

responsible for the establishment of teams to carry out selected new activities of the strategic plan.

♦ Office of the President including the Executive Director, the Secretary to Council and the Health Research Development function. The office is also responsible for policy, planning and evaluation.

♦ Programs

responsible of the delivery of programs approved by the Council and the administration of the peer review process.

♦ Regional Directors

responsible for marketing and promoting MRC and health sciences research in the regions, assisting and supporting Council members in their respective regions, offering scientific judgement and advice to the Council and President and facilitating the development of research projects and technology transfer between industry and academic researchers. These positions are not staffed by public servants. Individuals, usually established medical scientists, are appointed by the President after appropriate consultation.

Information Holdings

Program Records

Career Investigators

Description: Originally called the Associateship Program, the Career Investigators program was established in 1956 as a means of providing funds for salaries of a limited number of individuals of outstanding ability and training who made research a full-time career. No new appointments are being made by the Council. Career investigators appointed in 1975 and earlier will continue in their appointment, subject to the terms and conditions under which they accepted the award. Topics: Individual's career investigator application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 055

Centennial Fellowships

Description: Fellowships designed for outstanding young persons of distinguished academic standing who hold an M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., Pharm. D., or Ph.D. degree and who wish to broaden their fields of interest and thus equip themselves for independent work in clinical investigation and interdisciplinary research in the health sciences. Awards are made for one to three years; no more than ten new awards are made in any year. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 070

Clinical Trials

Description: Council will consider the funding of clinical trials which assess, in a rigorous manner the efficacy of diagnostic and therapeutic procedures, as well as workshops or meetings of the prospective participants. Council will not provide support for the sole purpose of satisfying regulatory requirements. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 160

Clinician-Scientist

Description: The Clinician-Scientist Award is offered to highly qualified and motivated clinicians who have been identified by a Canadian medical school as having strong potential to become clinician-scientists. At the time of application, candidates will have recently completed their specialty clinical training (or will shortly do so). They should be undertaking, or intend to undertake, research training to be followed by a career as a clinician-scientist. Topics: Applications; committee assessment; notification and administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 165

Equipment Grants

Description: Applications for Equipment Grants will be considered in relation to the proposed science of the project for which the equipment is required. Where equipment is required for a project for which an application is being submitted for an operating grant, the equipment should be included in it. A separate equipment application is required only in a year where an application for operating funds has not been made. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 020

Farquharson Research Scholarships

Description: Scholarships made available to undergraduates in medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy who wish to gain research experience in a health science department during the summer months. Funds are provided to the dean of each faculty of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy in accordance with a formula based on undergraduate enrollment. Recipients of the awards are selected locally. Topics: Deans' reports; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 085

Fellowships

Description: Fellowships offered in competition to highly-qualified candidates with an M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., Pharm. D., or Ph.D. degree who wish to take full-time research training in the health sciences. Awards are tenable for a specific term to a maximum of three years and may be renewed under certain conditions. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 075

Fields of Research

Description: Information on areas peripheral to medical research for which the Council has some responsibility. Topics: Research in the fields of dentistry; schools of pharmacy; psychology; occupational health and safety; gerontology; surgery and veterinary medicine; space research; mental research; general correspondence. Access: File arranged by subject. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 115

Fund for Research in the Fields of Dyskinesia and Torticollis

Description: The Medical Research Council has responsibility for administering a fund for research in the fields of dyskinesia and torticollis. The fund was established by an anonymous donor and the income derived from it is to be used for the support of research, either basic or clinical or both, in the broad field of movement disorders known as dyskinesia and more particularly for research in the movement disorder known as torticollis. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 111

General Research Grants

Description: Grants made each year to the dean of each school of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy, to be used for the support of research at the discretion of the dean, except for the stipulation that they not be used for the payment or supplementation of salaries of academic personnel, construction costs or overhead expenses. Topics: Notification of the grant to the dean; financial statement; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by university. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 045

International Scientific Exchange

Description: Council participates in a number of exchange programs each with a separate agreement, which are intended to foster collaboration between scientists in Canada and those in Argentina, Brazil, the People's Republic of China, France and Italy. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 185

Maintenance Grants

Description: The costs of maintaining instruments that are not shared facilities should be included as part of an application for operating funds. Council will consider applications for the maintenance of equipment used by a single investigator in a year when an application for operating funds is not being submitted. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 025

Maintenance Grants for Multi-User Equipment

Description: Council will consider applications for Maintenance Grants to cover the costs of maintaining facilities which are shared by groups of researchers within a department, faculty, university or region. The number of investigators is unlimited and it must be clear that multiple research programs will benefit from the maintenance requested. Facilities such as electron microscopes, analytical ultracentrifuges and gas-liquid chromatography/mass spectrometer systems that are operated under the general supervision of the applicant (but not necessarily requiring the active collaboration of the applicant in the various projects for which the facility is to be used), are appropriate for Maintenance Grants for Multi-User Equipment. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 175

Medical Research Council Groups

Description: Medical Research Council groups provide full support for teams of accomplished investigators who wish to develop collaborative programs in what appear to be especially productive areas. The members of a group are expected to devote their entire research effort to the program of the group and to be freed of the ordinary responsibilities of a faculty member. Topics: Application of group director and colleagues; executive and Council decisions; administration of the group; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 030

Medical Research Council Scientists

Description: This program provides salary support for independent investigators of outstanding ability who have shown promise of becoming leaders in their respective fields. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 060

Michael Smith Award for Excellence

Description: In 1993, Dr. Michael Smith shared the Nobel prize for chemistry for discovering and developing a crucial technique, known as site-directed mutagenesis, used in genetic engineering. His discovery enabled researchers to gain enormous insights into the structure and function of genes and proteins. To honour Dr. Smith, the Medical Research Council of Canada has established the Michael Smith Award for Excellence. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 245

MRC Distinguished Scientists

Description: This program is designed to contribute to the salary of highly renowned scientists who are at the forefront of health research and among the world leaders in their field. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 260

MRC Senior Scientists

Description: This program is designed to contribute to the salary of scientists of exceptional merit who are leaders in their field. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 255

Multi-User Equipment Grants

Description: The Council will consider applications for multi-user equipment grants to augment the research capabilities for a large number of funded investigators within an institution or region. The number of investigators is unlimited and it must be clear that multiple research programs will benefit from the equipment requested. Examples are electron microscope facilities, imaging, spectroscopy, DNA/protein sequence-synthesis capabilities. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 180

Operating Grants

Description: Information about operating grants to provide support for new or continuing research activities by individuals or small groups of investigators working in collaboration. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 010

Partnerships

Description: Information related to MRC's Partnership Research Program which aim to increase the number of grants, awards for training and other forms of salary support. Topics: University-Industry Programs, Joint Programs with private, Government or non-profit Organizations, MRC/PMAC Health Program, Ciba-Geigy/MRC Fellowships, Pharmaceutical Manufacturers, Association of Canada-Health Research Foundation (PMAC-HRF)/MRC Programs, Canadian Medical Discoveries Fund Inc., Canadian Anaesthetists' Society/MRC Fellowships, The Arthritis Society/MRC

Fellowships, Canadian Hypertension Society/MRC Fellowships, Easter Seal Research Institute/MRC Fellowships, Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada/MRC Fellowships, Schizophrenia Society of Canada (SSC)/MRC Fellowships, Canadian Lung Association/MRC Fellowships and Scholarships, Cutter/Canadian Red Cross Society (CRCS)/MRC Scholar Program, Cancer Research Society Inc./MRC Scholarships, British Columbia Lung Association/MRC Scholarships and Scientist Awards, Janssen Pharmaceutica Inc./Canadian Psychiatric Association (CPA)/MRC Clinician Scientist, NHRDP/MRC Collaborative Initiative on AIDS Research, Canadian Breast Cancer Initiative, Canadian Genome Analysis and Technology (CGAT) Program, Medical Research Council (MRC)/Juvenile Diabetes Foundation International (JDFI), Diabetes Research Network Program, Networks of Centres of Excellence, and The International Human Frontier Science Program. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 240

Research Survey

Description: Information on surveys established by the Council to gather general statistical data on selected aspects of the research community for use by the Council in determining the research requirements of the health science community across Canada. Topics: Graduate students; medical research support; research personnel; research trainees; research costs; health science research funding; academic degrees; fellowships and scholarships from other agencies; tropical and infectious diseases. Access: File arranged by subject. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 120

Scholarships

Description: Scholarships provide salary support, for a period not exceeding five years, to a limited number of young health science investigators who show particular promise as independent researchers. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 065

Special Projects

Description: Council will consider projects in those subject areas which do not fall within the terms of reference of the Operating Grants Program. A preliminary proposal, in the form of a letter, should be made, providing the title of the project, a clear description of its objectives, the name(s) of the applicant(s), the amount requested and the anticipated duration of support required. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant.

Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 195

Studentships

Description: Studentships are offered to graduate students who are undertaking full-time health research training leading to a Master's or PhD degree (or the equivalent). Applications are made by the proposed supervisor. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 080

The Michael Smith Awards for Research Personnel

Description: In 1993, Dr. Michael Smith was honoured with the Nobel Prize for Chemistry for his discovery and development of a crucial technique, known as site-directed mutagenesis, used in genetic engineering. His discovery enabled researchers to gain enormous insights into the structure and function of genes and proteins. Throughout his career, Dr. Smith strongly encouraged young people to pursue science as a career, and he has used his prize to promote science, encourage women to pursue interests in science and support research on severe mental illnesses, especially schizophrenia. In honouring Dr. Smith's scientific accomplishments and his lifelong promotion of science, the Council offers scholarship, Fellowship and Studentship awards in his name. These awards are offered to outstanding individuals whose research focus is the molecular genetics of the central nervous system with application to severe mental illnesses, especially schizophrenia. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 250

Travel Grants

Description: Limited funds for travel grants are available to Canadian health scientists who wish to spend short periods of time (maximum length of stay is 30 days) in a specific laboratory for the purpose of furthering their research. Topics: Applications in form of a letter; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant. Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 113

Workshops and Symposia

Description: As part of its program for research in the health sciences, the Council is prepared to support a limited number of applications for the support of workshops and certain types of symposia held in Canada. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence. Access: Information arranged by name of applicant.

Storage Medium: Computerized database and paper case files. Program Record Number: MRC MRC 112

Personal Information Banks

Access Request Data Bank

Description: This bank contains access requests submitted to the Council under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. It also contains replies to such requests and information related to their processing. Class of Individuals: Applicants under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. Purpose: This information is used for the administration of the above Acts. It is used for processing access requests only, and to report on the number of access requests received annually. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are maintained for two years following the last administrative action. PAC Number: 78-001 TBS Registration: 001610 Bank Number: MRC PPU 035

Applicants' History Sheets and Notification of Award

Description: This bank contains Applicants' History Sheets for individuals, which are kept in the Programs Branch. These sheets, which are cumulative over the life of the program, are identified by the applicant's name and file number. They also contain information such as the title of the grant application, amount requested and funded or rejected. The Finance Section also keeps copies of notifications of awards, which contain the applicant's name, address, university, grant number and amount awarded. This information relates to investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian Health Science Faculty, and Research Trainees. This information is used to maintain a history of the Council's financial support to individuals. Consistent uses are to provide historical data which assist the peer review process. Class of Individuals: Investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian School of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, nursing, optometry, or pharmacy. Purpose: This bank is used to identify applicants and to constitute a history of Council support to individuals and organizations. Retention and Disposal Standards: the bank is updated annually. TBS Registration: 003368 Bank Number: MRC PPU 045

Application for Employment File

Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of information relating to applications for employment received from the general public. This bank contains completed application forms, letters and curricula vitae of persons interested in working for the Council. Access to this bank will require name, address and date of birth. Class of Individuals: General public. Purpose: It is used to select candidates for the Medical Research Council of Canada when vacancies arise. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and then destroyed. PAC Number: 79-006 TBS Registration: 000669 Bank Number: MRC PPU 030

Awards Applicants and Committee Records

Description: This bank contains records of individual applications for funding under one of several personnel support programs sponsored by the Council. It contains applications, third-party appraisals, committee assessments, training, travel and financial administration details on the support of successful applicants. Individuals identified are those applicants meeting the criteria for each program as amended from time to time and published in the Medical Research Council Grants and Awards Guide. Class of Individuals: Research trainees with BSC, MD, DDS, DVM, MSC, PhD, and D. Pharmacy professors holding an appointment in university or affiliated institutions. Purpose: Information in this data bank is used to assess the education and other requirements necessary to meet the criteria of the applicable program, and to evaluate the merits of the application for funding. Consistent Uses: Information in the bank provides the basis for planning and budgeting of health sciences research activities by the Council, and is useful in the monitoring of the peer review system. Information is shared with the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (SER PPU 015) and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SHR PPU 010). The social insurance number is required from the recipients of certain awards to comply with the Income Tax Act. The results of competitions are forwarded to university research administration officers and Dean's Offices who are responsible for processing application from their institutions before sending them to Council, for administering the grants and for informing the candidates of the outcome of their applications. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of award and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 Related to PR#: MRC MRC 055, 060, 065, 070, 075, 080, 085, 100, 105, 110, 145, 150, 155, 165, 250, 255, 260 TBS Registration: 000526 Bank Number: MRC PPU 010

Grants Applicants and Committee Records

Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of the applications and assessment records of health scientists applying for funding of research projects by the Council. It contains the relevant Medical Research Council application form and supporting data presented by the applicant, referee and committee assessments of the project, the ranking awarded, the decision of Council, and if successful, the financial and administrative data pertaining to its support. Individuals identified are those making project proposals to Council. Class of Individuals: Investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian School of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, nursing, optometry, or pharmacy. Purpose: Information in the bank is evaluated to assess the relative merit of the proposal for the purpose of funding or not funding the project. Consistent Uses: Information in the bank provides the basis for planning and budgeting of health sciences research activities by the Council, and is useful in the monitoring of the peer review system. Information is shared with the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (SER PPU 004) and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SHR PPU 015, 020). The results of competitions are forwarded to university research administration officers and Dean's Offices who are responsible for processing application from their institutions before sending them to Council, for administering the grants and for informing the candidates of the outcome of their applications. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of grant and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 Related to PR#: MRC MRC 010, 015, 020, 025, 030, 045, 160, 240, 245 TBS Registration: 000525 Bank Number: MRC PPU 005

Lists of External Referees

Description: This bank contains names, affiliation and mailing address of individuals, in Canada and abroad, who are asked by the Council to review proposals for grants and awards. The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Persons requesting access should provide field of research, name and affiliation. Class of Individuals: Members of the health science community in Canada and abroad.

Purpose: The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Retention and Disposal Standards: The information is retained until superseded by updates or withdrawals of individuals. Withdrawn referee names are kept for two years (active) and six years dormant for reference purposes and then transferred to National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 TBS Registration: 000668 Bank Number: MRC PPU 025

Membership of Council and Committees

Description: This bank contains letters nominating individuals for service on Council and its committees, letters of invitation and thank you letters. The information is used to assist in the selection and appointment of members. The membership of Council and Committees is made public. Persons requesting access should provide name, affiliation, name of committee and date of membership. Class of Individuals: Members of the health science community, federal employees and members of the public. Purpose: The information is used to assist in the selection and appointment of members for the membership of Council and its Committees. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 TBS Registration: 000528 Bank Number: MRC PPU 020

Partnerships Grants and Awards

Application and Assessment Records

Description: This bank contains supporting documentation of proposed projects and of individual applications for funding under one of the several Partnership programs sponsored by the Council. It contains applications, third-party assessments, committee assessments, site visit-reports, and training, travel and financial administration details on the support of successful applicants. Individuals identified are those applicants meeting the criteria for each program, as amended from time to time, and published in the Medical Research Council's Grants and Awards Guide. Class of Individuals: This information relates to investigators holding an academic appointment in a faculty of health science in a Canadian university, or employees of a company (the term "company" is understood to mean an organization, industry or consortium which produces health care products or services). Purpose: This information is used to evaluate the relative merits of the proposals (with the purpose of funding or not funding) and for observing the progress of those proposals that are funded. Consistent Uses: Medical Research Council also uses information in this bank to identify prospective referees and committee members, to evaluate its programs, and to produce statistics and planning information. Some data is shared between the Medical Research Council and participants in this program. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of special program and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Related to PR#: MRC MRC 170, 240 TBS Registration: 003369 Bank Number: MRC PPU 040

Special Programs Application, Assessment Records and Other Programs

Description: The purpose of this file is to provide supporting documentation of proposed projects for funding by the Council. It contains applications, third-party assessments, and administrative correspondence in the funding of successful projects. Some files identify individuals of the health services scientific community making proposals to Council. Class of Individuals: Investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian School of medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, nursing, optometry, or pharmacy. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to evaluate the relative merits of the proposals with the purpose of funding or not funding and for observing the progress of those that are funded. Consistent Uses: Information in the bank provides the basis for planning and budgeting of health sciences research activities by the Council, and is useful in the monitoring of the peer review system. Information is shared with the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SHR PPU 025) and Health and Welfare Canada (HWC PPU 105). The results of competitions are forwarded to university research administration officers and Dean's Offices who are responsible for processing application from their institutions before sending them to Council, for administering the grants and for informing the candidates of the outcome of their applications. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files in this bank are retained for eight years: active two years after termination or rejection of special program and dormant six years. They are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 79-006 Related to PR#: MRC MRC 045, 111, 112, 113, 170 TBS Registration: 000527 Bank Number: MRC PPU 015

Classes of Personal Information

Administration

The general administrative and correspondence files of the Medical Research Council contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Such personal information includes suggestions and opinions from the general public which form part of a specific subject file. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject are provided. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Reports and Surveys

For purposes of program planning and evaluation, the Council requires a variety of reports concerning aspects of medical research in Canada. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, do not contain personal information about individuals. In the process of preparing such a report, personal information is necessarily obtained. This may include current academic position, professional qualifications of individuals, nature of research being undertaken by individuals and present and past funding of an individual's research. This information is not used for administrative purposes and is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the study or report involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

National Archives of Canada

Chapter 60

General Information

Background

The purpose of National Archives of Canada is the systematic preservation of government and private records of Canadian national significance, in order to facilitate not only the effective and efficient operation of the Government of Canada and historical research in all aspects of the Canadian experience, but also the protection of rights and the enhancement of a sense of national identity based on archives as the collective memory of the nation.

Responsibilities

The National Archives of Canada provides three basic services: collecting and preserving public (federal) and private historical records of national importance; preserving or disposing of the current records of government and providing assistance to the archival and records management communities. This broad mandate obliges the National Archives to preserve material both from the private sector and federal government institutions. The program records described in this publication, however, do not include material placed in the National Archives by persons or organizations other than government institutions. Access conditions for collections acquired from the private sector are normally established by negotiation between the donor and the National Archives of Canada.

Legislation

- National Archives of Canada Act, S.C. 1987, c. 1.

National Battlefields Commission

Chapter 62

General Information

Background

The National Battlefields Commission derives its mandate and powers from a 1908 Act of the Parliament of Canada, the Act respecting The National Battlefields at Quebec, 7-8 Edward VII, ch 57, and its amendments.

Administratively, the Commission is designated as a departmental corporation and is listed in Schedule II of the Financial Administration Act.

Responsibilities

The Commission was established to acquire the historic battlefields of the city of Quebec and neighbouring communities, to create a national battlefields park and to conserve, develop these historic and urban parks.

The National Battlefields Commission administers the following sites: Battlefields Park (better known as the Plains of Abraham), with an area of about 101 hectares, commemorates the historic battle of 1759; Des Braves Park, with an area of about 6 hectares, marks the battle of 1760. Apart from these two parks, three major thoroughfares come within the Commission's jurisdiction, namely Des Braves Avenue, De Laune Avenue and De Bernières Avenue. The Commission also operates St Denis Park, east of the Citadel, and manages Martello Tower # 4.

In extra of the maintenance, the conservation and the security, the Commission offers public services:

- the Interpretation Centre tells the story of the Plains of Abraham from the time of New France to the present day and presents in complement an temporary exhibition.

National Capital Commission

Chapter 63

General Information

Background

The National Capital Commission (NCC) was created in 1958 to succeed the Federal District Commission (1927-1958) and the Ottawa Improvement Commission (1899-1927).

The NCC carries out its mandate under authority of the National Capital Act. The objectives and purpose of the NCC, are to prepare plans for, and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region, in order that the nature and character of the seat of the Government of Canada may be in accordance with its national significance. The NCC received a new and expanded mandate from Cabinet in 1988: to make the Capital a meeting place for all Canadians, to use the Capital to communicate Canada to all Canadians, and to safeguard and preserve its assets.

Responsibilities

The National Capital Commission is a Crown Corporation whose mandate is to plan and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region in keeping with its significance as the seat of the Government of Canada.

The NCC's mandate was expanded in 1988. This has resulted in the organization, sponsorship and promotion of public activities and events that enrich the cultural and social fabric of Canada, and foster cooperation among organizations with a stake in the Capital's development.

Fulfillment of these objectives will make the Capital more representative of Canada and promote public perception of it as a second home for every Canadian.

NCC's corporate mission is building pride and unity through Canada's Capital Region.

Legislation

- National Capital Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-4, as amended.

Organization

♦ Capital Planning and Real Asset Management

Capital Planning and Real Asset Management Branch develops long-range policies and plans for the physical development of federal lands in the Capital; manages and develops the NCC's assets which includes the design and rehabilitation of NCC construction projects; provides planning advice to federal departments and other levels of government; manages Canada's six "Official Residences"; manages the NCC's Heritage Program, undertakes design, land use and land transaction, reviews and grants approvals on behalf of the Crown; acquires and disposes of properties; negotiates property agreements, manages the Fee Management Agreement for the NCC leased properties and provides property management, marketing and leasing services for the leased properties not included in the Fee Management Agreements; develops assets for ground and head leases.

♦ Environmental and Land Management (ELM)

ELM's mandate is to safeguard and preserve Capital assets and to provide visitors with "Green Capital" services and products. ELM is in the business of land use management; asset lifecycle and maintenance management; natural resources management and environmental stewardship; law enforcement and public safety; visitor information, interpretation and recreational services and programs; support services to NCC and community events. In addition, ELM now has the responsibility for the programming at the Mackenzie King Estate and the management of food and service concessions on Urban Lands and in Gatineau Park. ELM branch is structured under the following portfolios: VP Office; Branch Management Services; Urban Lands & Transportation; Gatineau Park & Greenbelt.

♦ Executive and Corporate Affairs

The Chairman and Chief Executive Officer heads a senior management team comprising the General Manager and Vice-Presidents. The General Manager acts as the Commission's Chief Operating Officer, providing overall direction and coordination for Branch activities.

♦ Human Resources

The objective of the Human Resources Branch is to provide innovative and simplified services, programs and strategies in the areas of organizational development and change management, human resources development, labour relations and transactional operations which support managers in their efforts to: 1) retain and renew a motivated, skilled, competent and cost-effective workforce; 2) create and maintain through teamwork an open, safe, equitable and productive, working environment.

♦ National Programming and Marketing

National Programming and Marketing Branch focuses on Canada's Capital as a means of instilling pride and a sense of unity among Canadians. Through partnerships, the Branch manages, develops, stages and promotes celebrations, festivals and various other public activities such as Canada Day, Cultures Canada, Winterlude, Youth and Family Outreach Programs, the Capital Infocentre and the Canada and the World Program. It also plans, develops and executes promotions and marketing activities of the NCR and NCC sponsored events and services. It showcases and interprets Canadian symbols, values and achievements through a variety of public programs, and orients and informs visitors about the significance of the Capital Region and its national institutions, commemorations and events.

♦ Strategic Planning and Information Management Branch

Strategic Planning and Information Management Branch manages the NCC's strategic and corporate planning function, informatics services, finance and procurement services, information and asset management services and surveys and mapping services. The Vice-President is the corporation's Chief Information Officer (CIO), the Chief Financial Officer (CFO) and the Departmental Security Officer (DSO). The Branch is responsible for strategic and corporate planning; corporate planning; management of information holdings; access and security of information; information technologies; engineering and cadastral surveys, mapping services and the provision of geographic information; provisioning and materiel management; financial services; facilities management; and fire prevention and security.

National Defence

Chapter 64

General Information

Background

The Minister of National Defence has the control and management of the Canadian Forces and all matters relating to National Defence establishments and works for the defence of Canada. The Canadian Forces, besides forming part of National Defence Headquarters, are organized into seven major functional commands and one command with regional responsibilities. The Department is responsible for the administration of the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pensions Continuation Act, the National Defence Act, and the Visiting Forces Act.

Responsibilities

The role and function of the Department of National Defence, and its principal component, the Canadian Forces, have historically been to ensure the security of Canada and to contribute to the maintenance of world peace.

Its basic roles and responsibilities are to supplement and support the civilian authorities in maintaining surveillance and preserving control over and security within the national territory of Canada and areas of Canadian jurisdiction, to assist civilian authorities in the event of emergency or disaster, to provide search and rescue services, and to contribute to national development. To enhance the security of Canada against military threat, the Department co-operates with the United States in the defence of North America, and co-operates in collective defence measures under the North Atlantic Treaty. The Department promotes international stability by contributing to peacekeeping activities in co-operation with other members of the international community, and by providing military training assistance to friendly nations. It controls, manages, and administers all activities of, and provides the services necessary to ensure adequate supply and technical support for, both the Department and the Canadian Forces. It also provides all levels of training for the Canadian Forces. Finally, the Department works to maintain and advance Canadian scientific and technological knowledge and analytical capability in the area of defence.

Legislation

- Aeronautics Act, R.S.C. 1970; for matters therein relating to defence; otherwise, the designated minister is the Minister of Transport
- Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, R.S.C.
- Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, R.S.C. 1970

- National Defence Act, R.S.C. 1970
- Visiting Forces Act, R.S.C. 1970

Organization

Assistant Deputy Minister — Communications and Public Affairs

The Division provides advice and guidance to the minister, deputy minister, chief of defence staff, commanders, and managers on public information and communications matters in support of National Defence and Canadian Forces policies, objectives, programs and activities. It also plans, conducts, and evaluates information programs for groups within and outside the Department; provides the public and media with the maximum amount of information on defence consistent with national and international security; and arranges Canadian Forces participation in exhibitions and displays. The Division maintains a working relationship with communications agencies of federal, provincial, and allied governments.

♦ Directorate of History

Is responsible for the production of official histories of the Canadian Forces. The Directorate collects source documents on Canadian military history, acts as an information centre on the history of the Canadian Forces, and provides historical research facilities.

Assistant Deputy Minister — Finance

♦ Automated Information Services Branch

Responsible for controlling the administration of departmental management consulting services, providing a departmental forms management program, and administering the departmental reports control program. It also controls the administration of automatic data processing support to military commanders and departmental managers by formulating appropriate policies, procedures and plans, as well as conducting evaluations. In addition, the Division directs the analysis and design of departmental information systems.

♦ Financial Services Branch

Responsible for controlling and coordinating the financial administration functions of the Department. This involves ensuring the effective functioning of the departmental budgetary system, the internal controls over funds and assets, and accounting systems, procedures and practices. It is also responsible for the interpretation and communication of financial policies and procedures, the provision of costing, military pay, superannuation administration and financial services, and the operation of the Department's financial information system.

Assistant Deputy Minister — Materiel

◆ Construction and Properties Branch

Responsible for formulating plans and programs for the design, construction, operation, maintenance, protection, and evaluation of accommodations, fixed facilities and utilities. It implements the approved programs, manages real property and utility services, coordinates the disposal of surplus real property and facilities, formulates related policies, and provides the necessary control and guidance for their application.

◆ Materiel Quality Assurance Division

Responsible for planning and directing departmental quality assurance policies and activities, compiling and publishing Canadian qualified products lists, and maintaining surveillance over defence contractors and departmental manufacture and repair facilities. It looks after quality control and inspection systems, establishes and ensures the implementation of quality assurance standards for the repair, overhaul, modification, and acquisition of new equipment; and ensures the quality of materiel being procured for the Department of National Defence, other government departments, and foreign governments, as required.

◆ Research and Development Branch

Responsible for the formulation and conduct of the departmental research and development program. It participates in the formulation and implementation of departmental policies for research and development activities, controls and directs the operation of the defence research establishments, and ensures that knowledge and application of actual and anticipated advances in science and technology are brought to bear on all departmental functions.

◆ Research and Development Operations Division

Responsible for the planning, control, and operation of research and development in the maritime, land, air and communications elements, and in the field of human performance.

◆ Research and Development Policy Division

Responsible for planning and directing the Department's position on all NATO matters relating to research, development and production of defence equipment. It markets defence equipment and participates in all aspects of national and international marketing activities. This includes costing, evaluating, and obtaining necessary approvals for all departmental commitments in support of defence equipment sales. In addition, the Division coordinates export permits, memoranda of understanding, and metric conversion.

◆ Research and Development Services Division

Exercises control over the administrative functions for those units of the Canadian Forces permanently allocated to the assistant deputy minister materiel, provides administrative support to the defence research establishments, provides documentation and discussion papers for review, administers the departmental inventions and patents program, and coordinates the departmental logistics operations.

◆ Supply Branch

Accountable for the provision of materiel for the Canadian Forces.

◆ Transportation Division

Responsible for the provision of transportation and postal services. This includes planning, programming, and managing the actual provision of these services, and managing the Department's vehicle accident prevention program.

◆ Weapons Systems and Equipment Engineering and Maintenance Branch

Responsible for providing all aspects of design, engineering, maintenance, and standardization service for all weapons systems, support systems, and related equipment for the Canadian Forces. These functions are carried out by project managers and life cycle materiel managers organized in maritime, aerospace, land and communications, electronics engineering, and maintenance divisions. It is responsible for providing and managing ammunition design engineering, maintenance, storage, explosive safety, and disposal services for the Department. In addition, it develops and recommends ammunition-related policies and programs, and provides guidance and coordination for their implementation.

Assistant Deputy Minister — Personnel

◆ Chaplain General Protestant Division

Responsible for upholding and fostering spiritual values and pastoral care of Protestant Canadian Forces personnel and dependants. This includes the implementation of ecclesiastical and military policy as it affects the ministry of chaplains; administration of chapel-oriented programs that provide a comprehensive pastoral ministry; development of lay participation and leadership; administration of all religious activities, including those involving chaplain service with the reserves and cadets; and the maintenance of a close working relationship with the Canadian Council of Churches, through its committee on chaplain service in the forces and various civilian committees concerned with sponsorship of Protestant chapel stewardship projects.

◆ Chaplain General Roman Catholic Division

Responsible for upholding and fostering spiritual values and the pastoral care of Catholic service personnel and dependants. This includes recommending and implementing ecclesiastical and military policy as it affects the ministry of chaplains, and administering programs that provide a comprehensive pastoral ministry to meet the needs of service personnel and their dependants. In ecclesiastical matters, the Chaplain General is responsible to the Roman Catholic military vicar of the Canadian Forces.

◆ Civilian Personnel Services Division

Responsible for developing policies and plans and implementing programs for the recruitment, promotion, transfer, training and development, career management, and lay-offs of departmental civilian employees. It implements and maintains a complete departmental civilian personnel administrative service, represents the Department in the development of government-wide policies and programs in all of these personnel areas, and provides advice to senior military and civilian officials on personnel administration matters. The Division also plans, coordinates and advises on the Affirmative Action Program.

◆ Classification Division

Responsible for the administration and application of the classification system for all Department civilian employees. In addition, the Division handles employees' classification grievances, audits regional classification offices, and develops policies, directives, methods and procedures.

◆ Compensation and Benefits Division

Responsible for planning and directing the development of policies and programs for military and civilian compensation, allowances, and personal benefits for personnel employed in a wide variety of environments who require special compensation plans and practices specific to the Department's requirements and equitable with outside compensation policies.

◆ Dental Services Division

Responsible for formulating dental policies, plans, and programs to ensure the dental health of all members of the Canadian Forces and, in certain areas, their dependants and other civilians. This includes providing treatment, accommodation, equipment and supplies; preparing the budget; coordinating command and dental unit resource allocations for the provision of dental services; determining both the professional and technical training standards and requirements for dental personnel; maintaining liaison; and representing the Canadian Forces to dental services of other nations, federal and provincial dental associations, and educational agencies in Canada.

◆ Dependants Education Programs Division

Responsible for developing policy on, and administering, organizing, constructing, equipping, and operating the National Defence Dependants school system. This includes teacher establishments and salary agreements; the attendance of children at municipal schools on payment of school fees; and the payment of education allowances, under Privy Council authority or the Military Foreign Service Regulations, 1979, for children of members of the Canadian Forces serving in Canada and abroad.

◆ Manpower Utilization Division

Responsible for developing personnel policies and systems through which departmental objectives, both present and forecast, are translated into statements of manpower requirements. It ensures that personnel requirements, establishments, and actual strengths are in accordance with approved policies and budgets; allocates military manpower resources within staffing priorities to fill established positions; and prepares and controls annual personnel estimates for military and civilian personnel pay, allowances, salaries, wages, and pension contributions required by the Department. In addition, the Department forecasts and controls military posting and removal expenses and is responsible for determining the occupational analysis requirements for the Canadian Forces.

◆ Official Languages Division

Responsible for the development of all departmental official languages policies, both military and civilian, while ensuring that they are in accordance with the Official Languages Act, government policies, and departmental requirements. This includes evaluating, monitoring, and amending existing policies; and formulating, when necessary, new directives on terminology, translation, language training programs, and testing. In addition, the Division identifies the language requirements of all civilian positions, maintains an automated information system on civilian personnel, and schedules their language training.

◆ Personnel Careers and Senior Appointments Branch

Responsible for controlling and administering the assignments and career progression of military personnel who have completed basic training; developing, implementing, and interpreting personnel management policies; selecting personnel for career development and academic upgrading; and administering honorary military appointments.

◆ Personnel Coordination and Administrative Services Division

Responsible for the administrative functions of the departmental personnel management information systems. It investigates and replies to personnel enquiries and complaints, including those under the provisions of the Canadian Human Rights Act; publishes newsletters for both military and civilian personnel; and provides records management services for personnel and fatal casualties records.

◆ Personnel Development Branch

Responsible for developing personnel policies, for officer training and education, and for conducting research in these areas. The Branch is also responsible for the effective overview and administration of special research, planning, and development studies.

◆ Personnel Services Branch

Responsible for developing and implementing policies on physical education programs for military personnel and for recreation activities for Canadian Forces members, their dependants, and resident Department civilian employees. The Branch administers all non-public fund operations, programs, activities, and the Canadian Forces Exchange System (CANEX). It determines military standards of dress, drill and ceremonial. The Branch also monitors conditions of service as experienced by service members and their dependants, operates the National Defence Dependants school system, and plans and advises on matters concerning the employment of women in the Forces.

◆ Recruiting, Education and Training Division

Responsible for the development and implementation of policy with regard to Regular Force recruiting and selection, and individual training and education of military and civilian members of the Department.

◆ Surgeon General Branch

Responsible for the organization and administration of the Canadian Forces medical services to conserve military manpower and provide medical support for military operations. This includes the development, review, and evaluation of medical policies, plans and programs relating to operational commitments; therapeutic medicine; preventive medicine; social development services; training and staffing of medical, nursing and medical associate officers, and medical trades personnel; pharmaceutical and financial services; the design and maintenance of medical facilities; and the negotiation of medical agreements with other government departments, civilian hospitals, and affiliated universities in support of Canadian Forces requirements.

Assistant Deputy Minister — Policy

◆ Chief Review Services Branch

The Branch provides departmental advice and functional authority on review matters. It is responsible and accountable for the planning and conduct at the National Defence Headquarters (NDHQ) level of program evaluations, internal audits, and military reviews of all aspects of departmental and military operations and activities. It also provides independent, objective reports on the effectiveness, efficiency and economy of the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Forces.

◆ Defence Program Branch

Develops and maintains the defence program management systems, controls and reviews the defence services program, analyzes options to meet the Department's capability goals, reviews and guides the management of major projects, and prepares the defence services program forecast.

◆ Operational Research and Analysis Branch

Directs the operational research and systems analysis program, and is responsible for the maintenance of scientific quality and support of financial research elements.

◆ Organization and Manpower Division

Responsible for generating departmental organizational policy, procedures, structures, changes, and orders; and for identifying current and future military and civilian manpower requirements with the Department. It also controls military rank and occupational code structures, develops and maintains the official position list of continuing civilian employees, controls the casual person-year allocation, develops and maintains manpower scales and standards, manages the on-site manpower evaluation program, and produces and maintains unit establishment documents.

◆ Policy Coordination Division

Effects liaison with Cabinet through the Privy Council Office, monitors departmental policy and conducts relations with Parliament.

◆ Policy Planning Branch

Responsible for originating and advising on policy matters, evaluating strategic developments, developing defence policy proposals (including defence objectives) and guidance for the planning of defence capabilities, and coordinating policy planning with external agencies, NATO in particular.

Chief Review Services Branch

The Branch provides departmental advice and functional authority on review matters. It is responsible and accountable for the planning and conduct at the National Defence Headquarters (NDHQ) level of program evaluations, internal audits, and military reviews of all aspects of departmental and military operations and activities. It also provides independent, objective reports on the effectiveness, efficiency and economy of the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Forces.

Communications Security Establishment

Deputy Chief of the Defence Staff

◆ Air Doctrine and Operations Branch

Responsible for all air force matters, including the type of air force that is required and how it should be used, equipped, and trained to meet established departmental objectives. This branch also advises on air reserve employment and training policy, and provides representation to meet national and international liaison and representational requirements.

◆ Emergency Preparedness Canada

Emergency Preparedness Canada is the federal agency responsible for coordinating the emergency planning and response of the Government of Canada for peacetime and wartime emergency situations.

◆ Executive Secretariat Division

The Division is responsible for providing and managing administrative services to ensure the effective functioning of the Department in general, and National Defence headquarters in particular. This includes providing departmental administrative support such as library services, records management services, personnel identification services, and National Defence headquarters accommodation management services. The Division also provides departmental policy coordination and review, and secretariat support for senior management meetings. The director general of this division is the corporate secretary for the Department of National Defence.

◆ Land Doctrine and Operations Branch

Responsible for army future force development, doctrine (material taught), force structuring, operational training and planning, equipment requirements, and scaling of equipment.

◆ Maritime Doctrine and Operations Branch

Responsible for the development of maritime policy and doctrine relating to force structure, capability requirements, equipment requirements, contingency plans, operational employment, resource management, staffing, training standards, and training and employment policy related to the naval reserve.

◆ Military Communications and Electronics Division

Responsible for providing communications and electronics support to National Defence by directing or coordinating all military communications and electronics matters. This includes coordinating communications for exercises and operations, communications security, communications plans and requirements, the management of radio frequencies, coordination of international military communications matters, and electronic warfare.

◆ Military Engineering Operations Division

Acts as principal adviser on all military engineering and cartographic matters for both Regular and Reserve Forces. This includes training standards, policy, and doctrine for the employment of military engineering and cartographic units. The Division also provides operational information, advice, and guidance for the military engineering and cartography portion of the departmental force structuring, operational planning, training, and resource management processes. In addition, it meets national and international liaison and representational requirements.

◆ Military Plans and Operations Coordination Division

Aligns military (sea, land, air) operations and plans so that they are mutually supporting and centrally controlled. The Director General, Military Plans and Operations applies a National Defence Headquarters overview to current national concerns in planning for war and peacetime emergencies. As well, the Division acts as a focal point for operational training and activity planning by assigning and monitoring operations of the Canadian Forces and coordinating Canadian Forces activities on standardization agreements and equipment requirements for nuclear, chemical, and biological defence operations.

◆ National Search and Rescue Secretariat

The Secretariat is an independent body outside the line authority of the Department that has as its central focus the coordination of the national search and rescue program in Canada.

◆ Office of the Judge Advocate General

The Office provides legal advice to the Department and the Canadian Forces and oversees a system of courts and justice applicable to all members of the Canadian Forces and to civilians subject to the code of service discipline under section 55 of the National Defence Act. The Office also administers and settles damage and injury claims by and against the Department; administers the service estates of all deceased members of the Canadian Forces; and administers the Service Pension Board.

◆ Reserves and Cadets Division

Responsible for advising on policy, training standards, and doctrine for the employment of Reserve Force sub-components; operational information; structuring and development; operational training; equipment acquisition; and the implementation of National Defence Headquarters reserve policy. The Division also provides advice on departmental support to cadet programs sponsored by the navy, army, and air cadet leagues.

Directorate of Military History

Executive Secretariat Division

Judge Advocate General

Vice Chief of the Defence Staff

◆ Flight Safety Directorate

Makes recommendations and develops programs that will result in the prevention of accidental losses of aviation resources. This function includes identifying hazardous areas of Canadian Forces air operations and support functions, developing and monitoring the flight safety program, reviewing aircraft occurrences for trend analysis, providing educational information, participating in the development of new aviation resources, conducting flight safety surveys at civil contractor facilities, and exchanging flight safety information with other military and civilian agencies for accident prevention purposes.

◆ General Safety Directorate

Responsible for overall development, coordination, and administration of the Department's general safety program and for advising on general safety accident experience, risk and loss control management, and occupational health policy.

◆ Infrastructure Planning and Coordination Directorate

Responsible for coordinating base planning activities within the Department. It prepares base planning guidelines, monitors the implementation of a base development plan, plans for joint use and occupancy of Canadian Forces bases by civil authorities and foreign military powers, provides advice to other staff agencies on base planning matters, and coordinates civil use of military airfields.

◆ Military Intelligence and Security Branch

Develops policies and plans for the management of National Defence intelligence and security resources, and produces and disseminates timely defence intelligence. It controls the activities of Canadian Forces attachés and advisers, is the point of contact for foreign military attachés and advisers accredited to Canada, and provides security services to the Department.

Description: Records in the bank consist of access request and correction request forms submitted by individuals requesting access to and correction or notation of their files, the replies to such requests and information related to their processing. Records are used for processing such requests only, and to report on the number of requests received annually. Records are accessible by providing full name, year of request and Personal Information Bank number. Class of Individuals: Civilian employees of National Defence, military personnel and the general public. Purpose: This bank provides a complete record of request activity pertaining to the Privacy Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are destroyed after two calendar years. PAC Number: 69-014 Related to PR#: DND PCA 610 TBS Registration: 000167 Bank Number: DND PPU 030

Reliability/Security Investigation File

Description: This bank contains personal data, such as criminal records, security reliability analyses, investigative reports, credit check reports, related correspondence, notations of the level of security clearance and/or reliability status granted, Security Clearance Review Board documentation and Security Intelligence Review Committee Appeals. Reliability check records apply to pre-employment/employment with the CF/DND and the private sector working under federal government contracts for DND. This bank contains personal information about an individual, his or her immediate family, the names and comments of past employers, the names and comments of character references, and possibly the names and activities of associates with whom the individual would have contact. Personal information is held on individuals who are or have been the subject of security screening procedures in relation to pre-employment/employment with the CF/DND or the private sector working under federal government contracts for DND, when access to classified or designated information/material is a requirement. This information has been obtained to support decisions taken in determining the suitability for a security clearance when an individual requires access to classified information. A reliability check is a condition of employment in the CF/DND and is required to assess the honesty, trustworthiness and discretion of an individual when given access to sensitive information or government assets; or access to valuables, drugs, hazardous or dangerous material; or responsibility for the well-being of persons or control of personnel. Individuals wishing to access only specific types of information should identify the material desired, to expedite the processing of their requests. Records are filed by family name, date of birth (year-month-day) and initials of the individual. However an individual who has been the subject of security screening procedures prior to 1990 must also include his/her social insurance number with the request. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public and some members of other government departments who have applied for a pre-employment/employment security clearance or reliability status check with the CF/DND and contractors working under federal government contracts for DND. By virtue of the security clearance process, personal information may be held on individuals who are not themselves the subject of the security assessment or reliability status check. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain investigative/administrative documentation necessary to assess an individual's loyalty and reliability to Canada as it pertains to a security clearance in order to grant access to classified information/material and to assess reliability as a condition of employment. Consistent Uses: The information in this bank may be used in matters which, on reasonable grounds, may be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada or the Department; information may also be used in other lawful investigations. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a minimum period of ten years from the time of the last administrative action taken on the file PAC Number: 69-014 Related to PR#: DND MIS 085 TBS Registration: 001967 Bank Number: DND PPU 055

Security Intelligence Records

Description: This bank contains information on individuals and organizations whose activities may have been suspected, on reasonable grounds, of constituting a threat to DND personnel, information or material, at home or abroad. Such activities include espionage, sabotage, subversion, and terrorism. This bank also contains information on organizations and individuals whose activities may be detrimental to the interests of Canada and may result in a request to DND for Aid of the Civil Power. Records are accessible by providing specific identifiers, such as dates, organizations, events and geographical areas or locations, along with name, initials and service number. The following individual information is held: name, address and/or telephone number, age, sex, marital status, country of birth, citizenship and/or nationality, case file serial number and service number (1994). Class of Individuals: Individuals suspected of, or involved in espionage, sabotage, subversion, and terrorist activities in Canada and abroad that may have DND security implications. Purpose: The information in this bank is used for the following reasons: to assess the threat posed to DND security by organizations or individuals engaged in espionage, sabotage, subversions, or terrorism; to brief departmental authorities on situations that may result in a request for aid of the Civil Power; to develop policy and provide advice in relation to provisions of the National Defence Act, Queen's Regulations and Orders, Official Secrets Act and the Criminal Code of Canada, respecting activities by individuals or groups that constitute a threat to DND personnel, information or material; and formulate plans or other measures to counter, or respond to, threats to the security of this department during periods of peace and war. Consistent Uses: Information may be disclosed: to the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) for use in the investigation or assessment of the threat to Canada as defined in section 2 of the CSIS Act; to the Attorney General of Canada and the appropriate police officials for the investigation or prosecution of an alleged contravention of the law; and to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records in this bank are destroyed after fifty calendar years, however, they may be retained for a longer period if judged to be of archival value or deemed to be of historical value to the Department of National Defence. Related to PR#: DND MIS 085 TBS Registration: 001968 Bank Number: DND PPU 060

Manuals

Because of the wide range of manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfil its functions, it is impractical to include a complete list of its holdings in this publication. The Department may, on request, provide a list of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity.

The bilingual publication entitled Defence Canada is published annually by the Department of National Defence. It is designed to provide an overview of current strategic considerations relative to defence planning, and to highlight departmental activities during the preceding year.

Reading Room

A section of the Department's library at National Defence Headquarters has been designated under the Access to Information Act as a public reading room. Its address is:

101 Colonel By Drive

Ottawa, Ontario

Because of the security classification and the necessity to continually amend an unusually wide range of technical and training manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfill its functions, it was found impractical to put all 90,000 publications on display. However, a complete list of its holdings is available in AIA Reading Room and the Department may, on request, provide for viewing a copy of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity, provided the material is releasable and sufficient time is allowed to retrieve the publication from the depot.

National Energy Board

Chapter 65

General Information

Background

The National Energy Board (NEB) was created by the National Energy Board Act of 1959.

Responsibilities

The Board's principal responsibilities under the National Energy Board Act are: regulate specific matters concerning oil, gas and electricity in the public interest (granting authorizations for the export of oil, natural gas, electricity and the construction of international and interprovincial pipelines and designated international power lines; setting of tolls and tariffs on pipelines under NEB jurisdiction); responsibilities under the Canada Oil and Gas Operations Act and certain provisions of the Canada Petroleum Resources Act now encompass the regulation of exploration for and the development and production of oil and gas on Frontier Lands in a manner that promotes safety of the worker, protection of the environment, and conservation of hydrocarbon resources; and to advise the Government on the development and use of energy resources (keeping under review the Canadian supply of all major energy commodities and the demand for Canadian energy in Canada and in export markets).

Legislation

Organization

♦ Executive Director

The Executive Director is the Board's senior staff member and Chief Operating Officer. His responsibilities include the overall management of the Board, the acquisition and allocation of human and financial resources, the efficiency of Board activities and operations, and the provision of advice on matters deemed appropriate by the Chairman.

Finance, Administration and Information Technology Branch:

Co-ordinates and administers the financial and administrative policies under which the Board operates; and provides advice and services relating to accounts processing, financial planning and budgeting, and property, materiel, records and mail management. It also provides accounting services for the Northern Pipeline Agency. Responsible for computer systems services, data processing support and telephones. This includes consultative service on computer operations, data management, program design and development, and an advisory service on the latest data processing techniques and applications. Branch responsibilities also include the integration of information and processing systems and services for the Board.

Personnel Branch:

Provides advice and services in the areas of staffing, human resources planning, training, employment equity programs for visible minorities, official languages, classification, staff relations, pay and benefits, safety and health, conflict of interest, employee assistance, merit awards and security.

Economics Branch:

Responsible for evaluating the economic worth to Canada of applications before the Board to licence exports and to certify pipeline and international power line projects. The Branch develops, in collaboration with others in the Board, general approaches to energy regulation and pipeline toll and tariff structures which involve considerations of economic efficacy. The Branch is responsible for preparing detailed projections of energy demand in Canada, macro-economic projections for the long-term performance of the Canadian economy, long-term outlooks for Canadian exports of natural gas and electricity to the American market, and long-term scenarios of world oil prices. These activities are largely in support of the Board's supply and demand reports, market monitoring requirements and evaluations of export licence and facilities applications. The Branch also advises on the state of competitive conditions in energy markets, to the extent required for the Board's regulatory mandate.

Energy Supply Branch:

Responsible for advising on matters relating primarily to the supply of conventional and synthetic crude oil, bitumen, natural gas and natural gas liquids. The Branch prepares both short-term and long-term projections of supplies of these energy commodities from conventional, oil sands and frontier sources, based on its own studies and consultations with industry and other groups. The Branch also prepares estimates of established oil and gas reserves in Canada; conducts analyses of ultimate resource potentials and reserves additions rates; evaluates the supply costs and economics of resource projects; monitors developments in the energy sector, particularly the producing industry; and investigates potential new energy supply sources.

Energy Commodities Branch: Gas and Oil:

Provides advice to the Board on oil and gas matters including evaluation of oil and gas markets and commercial transactions; transmission, processing and distribution of commodities. It also synthesizes such information into assessments applicable to the Board's regulatory roles. The Branch is responsible for export and import regulation, monitoring, and for matters related to traffic and discrimination in service for gas and oil pipelines. The Branch collects and disseminates data on exports and imports including volumes and prices, and also prepares and supplies data on the consumption and transportation of crude oil, petroleum products, gas products and natural gas, incorporating estimates of short-term domestic and export demand and pipeline throughputs.

Electricity:

Advises on matters relating to regulatory surveillance and electricity export licensing and international power line certification. The Branch prepares supply and demand forecasts for electricity that are used in dealing with electrical and other applications, reviews the American market for electricity, and provides advice on matters under federal jurisdiction that relate to the production, transportation, sale, and exchange of electricity.

Environment Branch:

Provides advice on the protection of the environment during the construction and operation of pipeline and power line facilities and on the protection of land-owner rights with respect to land acquisition. It advises on the environmental consequences of energy exports including the impact of the generation, production and end-use of that energy. In addition, Branch staff provide advice on the technical requirements related to third-party crossings on pipeline rights-of-way.

Engineering Branch:

Responsible for all engineering activities related to the regulation of gas, oil and petroleum products pipelines under the jurisdiction of the National Energy Board Act and the regulation of oil and gas activities pursuant to the Canada Oil and Gas Operations Act (COGOA). These activities include: advice on matters related to pipeline certificates and orders and the safety of pipelines under NEB jurisdiction; regulatory approvals of drilling, production, development and abandonment activities in the frontier areas; the development of standards and regulations; facilities and pipeline safety inspections; the administration of certain portions of the Canada Labour Code relating to federal pipeline and oil and gas exploration and development activities; participation in the Program for Energy Research and Development (PERD) and providing engineering services to the Northern Pipeline Agency.

Financial Regulation Branch:

Responsible for tolls and tariffs, financial regulatory advice and costs of transportation under specific areas of the National Energy Board Act. As such, its main function includes the provision of expert financial advice to the Board and to the hearing panel on all toll applications. It also audits the accounts of pipeline companies under the Board's jurisdiction and monitors the financial performance of pipelines on a regular basis to ensure that tolls are just and reasonable.

♦ Law Branch

The Law Branch provides legal advice to the Board on all matters relating to the Board's powers and responsibilities, acts as Counsel for the Board at public hearings, and represents the Board in proceedings before the Federal and Supreme Courts of Canada.

♦ Office of the Secretary

The Office of the Secretary receives all applications and submissions and co-ordinates their consideration by the Board. It advises on the scheduling of hearings, and makes all administrative arrangements for public hearings in Ottawa and across Canada. In addition, it provides media and public relations services, publications services and operates the Board's library. It administers the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act and co-ordinates translation services with the in-house translation unit provided by Secretary of State.

Information Holdings

Program Records

Accounting and Auditing

Description: Audit reports and correspondence of companies under the Board's jurisdiction. Topics: Annual reports. Access: Files arranged by subject and company. Program Record Number: NEB FRB 010

Allocation of Oil

Description: Correspondence between the Energy Supply Allocation Board and the Oil Branch of the National Energy Board on the allocation of oil resources in an emergency. Program Record Number: NEB GAO 195

Associations and Committees on Electric Power

Description: Information on liaison with power transmission companies, associations and conferences on electrical matters. Note: Some files have been transferred to the Historical Branch of the National Archives of Canada. Topics: Reports on, and agendas of, meetings and conferences; associations; power and transmission companies. Program Record Number: NEB EPB 170

Associations, Committees and Conferences on Energy Supply

Description: Information on applications and supporting documents for hearings held on the energy supply. Note: Copies of applications, interventions and transcripts of all hearings are held in the National Energy Board library. Topics: Supply data originating from energy supply and demand hearings. Access: Files arranged by year and company. Program Record Number: NEB ESB 280

Canadian Content in Energy Projects

Description: Information on Canadian content and industrial benefits of energy projects. Topics: Studies; specific applications. Access: Files arranged by application. Program Record Number: NEB ECB 255

Canadian Electric Power Projects

Description: Information on Canadian electric power projects and studies; also generation of electric power and the transmission of extra-high voltage electric power. Topics: Electric power projects and studies — Churchill Falls, James Bay, Fundy Tidal Power Development study; power generation — power potential, load and supply, nuclear, technology for fuel cells, thermal coal-fueled and thermal gas-fueled. Access: Files arranged by project or study. Program Record Number: NEB EPB 155

Certificates, Licences and Orders

Description: Originals of all certificates, licences and orders issued by the Board. Note: See "Prefix Identification of Certificates, Licences, Orders and Permits" issued by the National Energy Board (internal reference memo listing document prefixes and references to legislation). Topics: Certificates of Public Convenience and Necessity — oil and gas pipelines, electric power lines; licences for the export of oil, gas and electric power; safety orders; rates, tolls and tariffs; miscellaneous orders. Program Record Number: NEB OOS 095

Coal

Description: Published material and correspondence on coal. Topics: Forecasts; coal-gasification, liquefaction, reserves. Program Record Number: NEB ESB 320

Construction of International Electrical Power Lines

Description: Applications for certificates and supporting documents to construct or modify existing power lines. Topics: Policy; environmental guidelines; interventions filed by interested parties. Access: Files arranged by power company. Program Record Number: NEB EPB 160

Crude Oil Movements by Pipeline

Description: Correspondence on pipeline capability and the availability of crude oil; also nomination, by refinery, of crude oil requirements. Topics: Pipeline capability — pipeline traffic; nominations by companies for crude oil requirements; allocations of domestic crude, prior to June 1985. Program Record Number: NEB GAO 205

Crude Oil Statistics on Refinery Production

Description: Statistical information on the amount of crude oil received in refineries, the amount of crude processed by refineries each week, the monthly supply survey on Canadian oil products, monthly deliveries of crude oil and condensates under licence, and the amount of products exported each month. Note: Most of these statistics are supplied confidentially to the National Energy Board by individual companies. Information can therefore be released only as a combined total of all companies. Topics: Canadian refinery receipt survey of crude oil; crude oil runs (amount of crude processed in refineries weekly or monthly); Canadian oil product monthly supply survey; oil product export return. Access: Files arranged by company. Storage Medium: Storage Computer disc or tapes. Program Record Number: NEB GAO 230

Economic Benefits of Proposed Energy Projects

Description: Analyses of the economic viability of, and benefits from, projects. Topics: Viability analyses; cost-benefit — committees, studies, specific applications; licences, orders and exports. Access: Files arranged by application. Program Record Number: NEB ECB 260

Economic Considerations in Setting Pipeline Tolls

Description: Information on the operations of pipeline companies and the economic considerations in setting tolls. Topics: Productivity and efficiency of pipeline companies; rates, tolls and tariffs; financial arrangements; certificates and orders. Access: Files arranged by subject and company. Program Record Number: NEB ECB 270

Electric Power Failures

Description: Information on selected electric power interruptions. Topics: Hydro-Quebec power interruption on January 10, 1978; power interruption on the Maritime grid, November 14, 1978; Northeast power failure of 1965. Program Record Number: NEB EPB 175

Energy Cost and Pricing

Description: Correspondence on costs and pricing of energy. Topics: Cost data; profitability data and studies; royalties. Program Record Number: NEB ESB 315

Energy Supply and Demand Statistics

Description: Information on energy supply and demand and related data for all energy commodities. Topics: Information, liaison and data related to co-operation among various associations, committees; statistical energy inquiries; statistical reports and returns; supply and demand data for all energies; international data. Access: Files arranged by subject and committee. Program Record Number: NEB ECB 250

Energy Supply, Surpluses and Reserves

Description: Information on the supply side of enquiry hearings, renewable energy, reserves and surpluses. Topics: Energy supply; renewable energy; reserves and surpluses — particular applicants; licences, orders and exports. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: NEB ESB 275

Enquiry Hearings on the Canadian Oil Supply and Requirements

Description: Submissions of various oil companies and supporting data during public hearings in 1975, 1976 and 1978. Topics: Public hearings — Canadian oil supply requirements; submissions by companies on reserves and demand. Access: Files arranged by year of public hearing. Program Record Number: NEB GAO 220

Environmental Aspects of Energy Development

Description: Correspondence on oil, gas and electric power development. Topics: Arctic hydrocarbon transportation systems; northern oil and gas pipelines; offshore oil and gas transportation; other agency reviews — Federal Environmental Assessment and Review Office (FEARO). Access: Files arranged by committee, project. Program Record Number: NEB ERW 030

Environmental Assessment, Surveillance and Monitoring

Description: Published information on the environmental aspects of applications for certificates and orders to build a pipeline or power line, to commence construction, or to cross a pipeline by a facility over or under a pipeline, submitted by a company or by a private citizen; also documentation for interventions and appeals submitted by interested parties, surveillance and monitoring reports. Note: Applications to build a pipeline, transcripts of hearings and reasons for decisions are held in the Board library. Topics: Applications for certificates and orders; environmental information submitted prior to construction of a pipeline or power line; applications to construct a compressor station, gas plant, meter station, pump station and terminal; crossing of a pipeline by a buried cable, overhead cable, road, ditch, building, parking lot, etc.; crossing of facility by a pipeline; appeals and interventions; environmental assessment of the effects of pipelines or power lines; environmental surveillance.

Access: Files arranged by company and location of pipeline. Program Record Number: NEB ERW 055

Environmental Associations and Committees

Description: Correspondence between the Board and various pipeline, industry, and environmental associations; information on liaison with various committees, conferences, oil and gas pipeline companies, and environmental agencies. Topics: Environmental regulatory matters; co-operation and liaison with oil and gas pipeline companies, interdepartmental committees on environmental matters. Access: Files arranged by association, committee, conference and pipeline company. Program Record Number: NEB ERW 050

Environmental Implications of Oil and Gas Pipeline Operations

Description: Correspondence on environmental aspects of operating pipelines and facilities including storage and processing facilities. Topics: Right-of-way conditions, gas plant emissions, tank farms, loading facilities, PCB and hazardous waste storage and disposal, etc. Program Record Number: NEB ERW 035

Environmental Incidents or Emergencies

Description: Reports of environmental inspection of spills of oil, products or other substances and their impact on the environment. Topics: Leaks, breaks, spillage, environmental impact, clean-up, restoration. Access: Files arranged chronologically by incident and by pipeline company. Program Record Number: NEB ERW 045

Exchange Agreements on Crude Oil

Description: Information on the exchange agreements on offshore and mid-continent crude oil between Canadian and U.S. oil companies and related correspondence before June 1985. Topics: Control of International Oil Exchange; mid-continent exchange agreements; eastern Canada foreign exchange agreements. Access: Files arranged by Canadian and United States oil companies. Program Record Number: NEB GAO 225

Exploration and Development

Description: Information on exploration for and development of hydrocarbon resources in Canada. Topics: Oil and gas discoveries and development — Western Canada and northern and offshore areas; petroleum industry activity. Program Record Number: NEB ESB 325

National Film Board of Canada

Chapter 67

General Information

Background

The National Film Board of Canada (NFB) was established by an Act of Parliament on May 2, 1939, and revised in 1950. The NFB reports to the Minister of Canadian Heritage. Its mandate "...is to produce and distribute films designed to interpret Canada to Canadians and to other nations;..."

Responsibilities

In its most recent mission statement the NFB expresses its mandate as follows: The National Film Board of Canada enriches Canadian society through the production and distribution of audiovisual works which: provoke discussion and debate on important subjects; explore the creative potential of the audiovisual media; and achieve recognition by Canadians and others for excellence, relevance and innovation.

Recent NFB productions include documentaries, animation shorts, CD-ROMS and interactive videos. They can be purchased by calling the toll-free number at 1-800-267-7710. A full catalogue is available on the internet site at www.nfb.ca. Videos can also be obtained through public libraries. Many NFB productions are broadcast on television. The NFB also operates an International Program to sell and market its films abroad.

NFB films are produced by the English and French Program Branches which are also responsible for marketing their films to their respective English and French audiences. NFB production centres are located in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Moncton, and Halifax, as well as in Montreal. There is a permanent creative staff in Montreal, though a large proportion of NFB films are made by freelance independent filmmakers. The average annual production of the NFB is approximately 85 original films and 30 versions and adaptations of existing films. The Services and Technological Development Branch undertakes advanced technical research and development to further the art and technology of film and video. As a by-product of its production mandate, the NFB plays an active role in training people in all aspects of filmmaking.

Legislation

- National Film Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-8

Organization

The Board of Trustees of the National Film Board is composed of the Government Film Commissioner, who is both the chairperson and chief executive officer of the NFB, the Executive Director of Telefilm Canada and six other members appointed by the Governor in Council. The NFB is headed by the Government Film Commissioner and supported by the Directors General of the English Program Branch, the French Program Branch, the Services and Technological Development Branch, the Communications and Distribution Services Branch, and the Directors of Administration, International Program, Planning, Evaluation and Audit, of Human Resources, and the Secretary to the Board of Trustees.

The head office of the NFB is in Ottawa, while its operational headquarters are located in Montreal.

This Branch handles internal and external corporate communications, Government Relations, the operation of a toll-free sales and information telephone system, the management and conservation of the NFB film collection, the operation of a database of the NFB filmography, the publication of catalogues, the annual report and the operation of the internet site. The NFB also works with several public libraries in making NFB products accessible to Canadians. This division administers the provisions in the Official Languages Act.

♦ English Program Branch

This Branch produces and markets films and videos in English to reach audiences in Canada and abroad on relevant social and cultural issues. The Branch produces and co-produces mainly documentaries and animated shorts in Montreal, Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. English Program uses permanent staff and freelancers.

♦ French Program Branch

This Branch produces and markets films and videos in French to reach audiences in Canada and abroad on relevant social and cultural issues. The Branch produces and co-produces mainly documentaries and animated shorts in Montreal, Moncton and Toronto. French Program uses permanent staff and freelancers.

♦ Human Resources

This Division is responsible for personnel management as well as for the Employment Equity Program.

♦ International Program Branch

This Division sells NFB productions in French and English outside Canada.

◆ Planning, Evaluation and Audit

This Division is responsible for monitoring the strategic, operating and budgetary process within the NFB, the elaboration of policies and the application of program evaluation policy. It is also responsible for overseeing internal audits.

◆ Secretary of the Board of Trustees

In addition to assuming the duties ascribed to the Secretary of the Board of Trustees, acts as the legal counsel of the NFB and administers the Code governing conflicts of interests, the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act.

◆ Services and Technological Development Branch

This Branch provides some technical production services for the Program Branches, operates a technical research and development section as well as a CinéRobothèque.

National Gallery of Canada

Chapter 68

General Information

Background

The National Gallery of Canada (NGC), a Crown corporation, was established in 1990 by the Museums Act.

Responsibilities

The corporate objectives of the National Gallery of Canada are to develop, maintain and make known, throughout Canada and internationally, a national collection of works of art, historic and contemporary, with special but not exclusive reference to Canada, and to further knowledge, understanding and enjoyment of art in general among all Canadians.

Legislation

- The Museums Act, 1990

Organization

♦ Corporate Management

The Museums Act provides for a fourteen member board of Trustees, which reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. The Act establishes the position of Director who, on behalf of the Board of Trustees, directs and manages the business of the Corporation in all matters that are not, by the Act or by-laws, specifically reserved to the Board, or a committee of the Board.

♦ Director's Office, Deputy Director's Office, Comptroller's Branch, Museum Services Branch

These provide overall guidance, direction and common services to the programs and operations of the National Gallery. Included in these common support services are both administrative (financial, personnel, records, etc.) and technical (design, framing, matting and crating) services.

♦ Collections and Research Branch, Canadian Centre for the Visual Arts Branch

These Branches are responsible for the following operational areas: curatorial, registration, restoration and conservation, photography and a research library, known as the Canadian Centre for the Visual Arts. The Branch develops a record of visual art, historic, modern and contemporary, situates that record within an international cultural context, and maintains documentary records on the condition and cultural and historical origins of the objects collected. Through the Canadian Centre for the Visual Arts, the Branch provides a major study and teaching resource for Canadian and international artists, scholars and students, and interested members of the public.

♦ Communications and Marketing Branch, Exhibitions and Installation Branch

These branches make the collection of more than 40,000 works of art and related knowledge accessible to national and international audiences through its displays of the permanent collections and special exhibitions, education services, publications, sales and media relations.

♦ Canadian Museum of Contemporary Photography

This museum undertakes a broad range of activities involving contemporary Canadian photographs and photographers. Its activities include acquisition and ordering of photographs, public programs, travelling exhibitions, loans, publications, educational programs, special exhibitions and national service.

Classes of Personal Information

Some NGC files summarized in the Program Records contain personal information which is not used in a decision-making process directly affecting the individual to whom it relates. Examples are inquiries about NGC collections, programs and services, information and advice given to individuals by NGC employees about museums and museum objects, and information about individuals in documents relating to grants or proposed grants to institutions.

These classes of personal information are kept on the relevant subject files and are not identifiable by name of the individual or other personal identifier. To retrieve these classes of personal information, the NGC would need as much detail as possible about the subject matter, the geographic location and the time the information would have come to the NGC.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are the same as those for the subject files containing the information.

National Library of Canada

Chapter 69

General Information

Background

The National Library of Canada, created in 1953, operates under the National Library Act (1969) and its amendments, and administers the National Library Book Deposit Regulations (revised 1995). The Library is a branch of government having the rank of a department and reports to Parliament through the Minister of Canadian Heritage. The National Library serves Canada from the National Capital Region.

Responsibilities

The National Library ensures that the published heritage of the Canadian people is preserved and made accessible to Canadians directly and through the country's libraries.

To fulfil its responsibilities the Library collects and promotes the Canadian literary and musical heritage in its broadest sense. This includes listing the nation's publications to facilitate their retrieval, availability and use; providing reference, information, referral and document delivery services to support similar services provided by other Canadian libraries, with special emphasis on Canadian-related subjects; making known the written and musical heritage of the nation through a cultural events program; and facilitating the use of the nation's total library resources by coordinating and participating in national and international programs for sharing information on publications and for identifying and supplying needed documents on interlibrary loan.

Legislation

- National Library Act (R.S. (1985), c. N-12) and its amendments
- National Library Book Deposit Regulations (revised 1995)

Organization

◆ Acquisitions and Bibliographic Services

Under the Book Deposit Regulations of the National Library Act, the Branch acquires publications issued in Canada. The Branch also acquires for the National Library's collections published materials about Canada, by Canadians published abroad as well as non-Canadians in support of Canadian studies, library development and resource sharing, by purchase, gift and exchange. The Canadian Theses Service coordinates a national program for the microfilming and publication of graduate theses accepted by participating Canadian universities and colleges.

The Branch also catalogues and creates machine-readable bibliographic records for the Canadian and non-Canadian material being added to the Library's collections. These records appear in the Library's automated data base, AMICUS. In addition to the online database, a variety of bibliographic products are compiled and published: current and retrospective national bibliographies; a bilingual list of headings for corporate and personal authors' names used in the bibliography; classification schedules for Canadian literature and history; a list of Canadian subject headings in English; a list of subject headings in French which it co-publishes with Université Laval and a bibliography of Canadian theses. In addition, the Branch coordinates the Canadian Cataloguing-in-Publication program; distributes machine-readable cataloguing records for Canadian and foreign publications and assigns International Standard Serial Numbers (ISSN), International Standard Book Numbers (ISBN) and International Standard Music Numbers (ISMN) to Canadian publications. It contributes to the development of national and international cataloguing standards; contributes cataloguing records for Canadian serials to CONSER, a North-American machine-readable database of serial records. The Branch also compiles and maintains the National Library's Union Catalogues (monographs, serials and alternate format materials for people unable to use conventional print material) on the AMICUS database to support interlending services in Canada, and from this database produces microfiche products: CANUC:H, (Canadian Union Catalogue of Library Materials for the Print Handicapped); CANUC:S, a Union List of Serials in the Social Sciences and the Humanities; and the Union List of Canadian Newspapers (ULCN). The last two union lists are included in Romulus, the CD-ROM product jointly produced by the National Library and CISTI.

◆ Corporate Policy and Communications

Corporate Policy and Communications is responsible for the Library's corporate policy, planning and communications activities, including internal audit, program evaluation, staff development and strategic planning. It is also responsible for marketing the National Library and promoting its programs, services and role as a national cultural institution through publications.

◆ Information Resource Management

Responsible for developing and implementing resource development strategies, policies and plans to enable the National Library to meet the information service needs of its clients and partners. Also coordinates the Library's participation in government-wide initiatives to ensure the effective management and use of federal information resources.

◆ Information Technology Services

The branch consists of the following units: Applications Management, Information Analysis and Standards, Management Services, Systems and Telecommunications Support, and User Support.

The branch plans, develops, and operates information systems to support the program requirements of the National Library. It provides systems and technology support to external clients, and provides leadership and coordination in the development of nation-wide library and information networking through research, standards development and promotion. The Branch operates and enhances computer systems and databases required by the National Library in support of its programs. It also provides leadership in the development of automated systems that can be used widely by Canadian libraries and provides advisory services to Canadian libraries that are developing automated systems.

◆ National and International Program

Responsible for developing and implementing new Library services, and for coordinating the Library's participation in national and international cooperative projects and programs. Also advises the Library, its clients and partners, on national and international cooperative ventures.

◆ Office of the National Librarian

The National Librarian is responsible for the overall direction and management of the Library's activities and resources.

◆ Research and Information Services

The branch is responsible for providing a location and interlibrary loan service and a reference and information service, to libraries, and researchers. Special advisory services are offered in Canadian literature including children's literature, in music, and in library and information science. It also provides service from the National Library's collections, including official publications, serials, reference, music, rare books and literary manuscripts, Canadian newspapers and native studies. Surplus library materials from Canadian libraries are collected and exchanged through the Canadian Book Exchange Centre in Ottawa. Public Programs offers a variety of lectures, readings, musical events, and exhibitions based on the Library's collections.

Classes of Personal Information

Some NMST and NAM files summarized in the Program Records contain personal information which is not used in a decision-making process directly affecting the individual to whom it relates. Examples are inquiries about NMST and NAM collections, programs and services, information and advice given to individuals by NMST or NAM employees about museums and museum objects.

These classes of personal information are kept on the relevant subject files and are not identifiable by name of the individual or other personal identifier. To retrieve these classes of personal information, NMST and NAM would need as much detail as possible about the subject matter, the geographic location and the time the information would have come to the SAT or NAM.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are the same as those for the subject files containing the information.

National Parole Board

Chapter 71

General Information

Background

The National Parole Board, part of the criminal justice system, was created by the Parole Act in 1959.

Responsibilities

The National Parole Board is an agency within the Ministry of the Solicitor General. Board members are appointed by the Governor in Council (Cabinet) to offices in the Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Prairies, and Pacific regions and to the Appeal Division at the national office in Ottawa. The national office also houses Legal Services, Corporate Services, Policy, Strategy and Support, Performance and Service Measurement, and the Clemency and Pardons Division.

The Corrections and Conditional Release Act empowers the National Parole Board to make conditional release decisions for offenders in federal penitentiaries, territorial, and provincial prisons in those provinces which have not established their own Board of parole. Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia maintain parole boards for offenders serving sentences of less than two years in their provincial institutions.

The National Parole Board has adopted policies to guide Board members in making decisions; the Board uses information from police, prosecutors, psychiatrists, judges, officers of the Correctional Service of Canada, the offender, victims and others to assess risk. Most conditional release decisions are made after Board members hold a hearing with the offender. Some decisions are reached simply after a review of an offender's file.

The Criminal Records Act allows the Board to issue or grant, or refuse to grant or issue, or revoke pardons for convictions under federal acts or regulations.

If a pardon is in force, any federal agency or department that has records of convictions must keep the records of those convictions separate. They may not disclose the information in the record without permission from the Solicitor General of Canada.

Legislation

Organization

Chairman and Vice-Chairperson

The Chairman is the chief executive officer, responsible for all National Parole Board matters. Reporting directly to the Chairman are the Executive Vice-Chairperson; Executive Director, the Vice-Chairperson of the Appeal Division and the Vice-Chairpersons in the Board's regional offices in Moncton, Montreal, Kingston, Saskatoon, and Abbotsford; the Legal Counsel; and the Director of Communications.

◆ Director, Corporate Services

The Director Corporate Services is accountable for overall planning, coordination and direction of the National Parole Board's Corporate Services functions including finance, human resources, procurement, security and administration.

◆ Director, Information Management Division

The Director is responsible for providing planning, coordination and Direction of the National Parole Board's Information Management Services which includes Informatics and Records Management.

◆ Director, Performance Measurement

The Director is responsible for providing the National Parole Board with an independent and objective assessment of its performance and recommendations for its improvement and provides statistics to support the management and improvement of programs.

◆ Director, Policy, Planning and Operations

The Director Policy, Planning and Operations, is accountable for the establishment of the broad policy framework governing the national operations and administration of the National Parole Board's (NPB) conditional release and clemency and pardons programs and for its contribution to major reviews and amendments to the Canadian Justice System legislation and operations. The incumbent is also accountable for the Board's strategic and operational planning processes and for providing broad functional advice, directions and automated system support for regional operations, and for ensuring the conduct of research.

◆ Director, Professional Development and Decision Processes

The Director is responsible for development and support of Board member appointment and appraisal processes as well as the development and implementation of Board member training and development. The Director is also accountable for managing the process of granting pardons as well as supporting the Clemency and appeal process and the case audit and investigation functions.

♦ Executive Director

The Executive Director is responsible for advising the Chairman on all matters related to the Board's mandate, for providing leadership to the five regions as well as the staff functions providing support and policy direction to the organization.

Personal Information Banks

Access requests files

Description: This bank contains formal requests made by individuals under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act, the replies to such requests and information relating to their processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals requesting access to information under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act. Purpose: This information is used for processing requests made under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act. Consistent Uses: This information may be used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes; it is also used in response to a complaint filed by an individual to the Privacy or Information Commissioner, or in defence against a Court action. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for two years after all actions have been completed. PAC Number: 85-018 Related to PR#: NPB NPB 005 TBS Registration: 000508 Bank Number: NPB PPU 015

Clemency case files

Description: This bank contains the following information: Criminal histories; police and court reports; social, financial, educational, medical and psychiatric histories; appraisals and recommendations and decisions from NPB and/or Correctional Service of Canada staff; records of Board members recommendations and decisions and related documentation; warrants and certificates; memoranda and letters of other agencies, government departments and the general public; and electromagnetic cassette tapes of hearings with applicants. Social insurance numbers (SIN) are found in this bank in the cases of military personnel who request pardons from the Board, since the Department of National Defence (DND) uses the SIN as a personal identifier for its personnel. Board usage of SINs is dependent on DND usage. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have applied to the National Parole Board for a pardon under the Criminal Records Act or an act of clemency under section 110 of the Corrections and Conditional Release Act with respect to the Royal Prerogative of Mercy or pursuant to the Letters Patent and sections 749 and 750 of the Criminal Code. Records may also contain personal information on individuals other than the individual for whom a file was opened, e.g. the individual's family, friends or representatives. Purpose: To determine eligibility and suitability for the granting of a pardon or other act of clemency or for revocation of a pardon. Consistent Uses: To fulfil its legislative mandate, the National Parole Board gathers a great deal of personal information about applicants under its jurisdiction. To obtain the information, it is necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. However, unless the pardon was subsequently revoked, personal information banks containing files of individuals who have been granted a pardon are kept separate and the content cannot be disclosed to any person without the prior approval of the Solicitor General of Canada who, before granting such approval, has to be satisfied that the disclosure is desirable in the interests of the administration of justice or for any purpose related to the safety or security of Canada. This information is also used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence when court actions are brought against the National Parole Board. Data matching: law enforcement agencies, Correctional Service of Canada and other federal institutions and provincial authorities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Pardon — for premature requests, files are kept for two years; for discontinued requests, files are kept for two years after the last contact with the applicant; for pardon granted, files are kept for 25 years after administrative activity ceases or one year after the death of the subject is confirmed by the RCMP; for pardon revoked or not granted, files are kept for five years following the last administrative action. Royal Prerogative of Mercy — files are kept for a period of twenty-five years following the last administrative action or one year after the death of the subject is confirmed by the R.C.M.P. Once the retention periods are satisfied, Pardon case files are destroyed. Clemency files (RPM) are retained by National Archives of Canada for archival or historical value. PAC Number: 85-018 Related to PR#: NPB NPB 010, 015, 020 TBS Registration: 000507 Bank Number: NPB PPU 010

Information disclosed to investigative bodies

Description: This personal information bank contains copies of the written requests or Treasury Board forms 350-56(83/2) (Request for Disclosure to Federal Investigative Bodies) forwarded by investigative bodies listed in schedule II of the Privacy Regulations to the National Parole Board under paragraph 8(2) (e) of the Privacy Act. These nation-wide requests are made for the purpose of law enforcement. This bank also contains the replies to such requests and information related to their processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have been involved in investigations under the Criminal Code, federal and provincial statutes or municipal by-laws. Purpose: This information was compiled in compliance with the Privacy Act to enable the National Parole Board to account for the number of requests under paragraph 8(2) (e) of the Privacy Act. Consistent Uses: This bank enables the Privacy Commissioner to audit the procedures utilized, as set out in Treasury Board Guidelines .3.7.5. It is used to verify the conditions of information disclosure to federal investigative bodies under paragraph 8(2) (e) of the Privacy Act and to account to the Privacy Commissioner for the number of access requests from investigative bodies received annually. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank is retained for two years after a case is resolved. Related to PR#: NPB NPB 050 TBS Registration: 002505 Bank Number: NPB PPU 020

Parole Case Files

Description: Criminal histories; police and court reports; social, financial, educational, medical and psychiatric histories; progress reports, appraisals and recommendations from staff of penal institutions and parole offices; records of Board decisions and related documentation; warrants and certificates; memoranda and letters from other agencies, government departments and the general public; and electromagnetic cassette tapes of hearings with offenders. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are serving or who, at one time, were serving a sentence of imprisonment in a federal penitentiary; individuals who are serving or who, at one time, were serving a sentence of imprisonment in a provincial institution and applied for parole to the National Parole Board. These records may also contain personal information on individuals other than the individual for whom a file was created, e.g. the individual's family, friends or representatives. Purpose: Parole case files are used by the National Parole Board in accordance with the provisions of the Corrections and Conditional Release Act and other relevant statutes, to determine eligibility and suitability of offenders for full parole, day parole, unescorted temporary absences and, in some cases, escorted temporary absences; to set conditions of all types of conditional releases including statutory release and to review performance on such releases; to consider modifying or reducing conditions of release; to review cases to order detention past their presumptive release date. Consistent Uses: To fulfil its legislative mandate, the National Parole Board is provided with a great deal of personal information about offenders under its jurisdiction. To obtain the information, it is necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including, the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. In addition, the significant public education role that the Board has to play and the wish to demonstrate to the public the fairness of its decisions, allows the general public, where legitimate reasons exist, to be informed of decisions concerning offenders currently under its jurisdiction as well as the general reasons supporting these decisions. However, the information shared under these circumstances is either factual and/or publicly available, and is general enough to ensure sufficient protection against any invasion of privacy of the individual to whom the information pertains. This information is also used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence when court actions are brought against the National Parole Board. Data matching: law enforcement agencies, Correctional Service of Canada and other federal institutions and provincial authorities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are kept for 10 years after Warrant Expiry Date or death of the individual and destroyed thereafter except when they are the subject of criminological research. Records deemed to be of archival or historical value are retained by the National Archives of Canada. PAC Number: 85-018 Related to PR#: NPB NPB 025, 030, 035, 040 TBS Registration: 000506 Bank Number: NPB PPU 005

National Research Council Canada

Chapter 72

General Information

Background

Operating under the National Research Council Act, the National Research Council of Canada (NRC), as the principal research agency of the federal government, carries out a wide spectrum of activities which include the performance of scientific and engineering research in response to national, economic and social needs; the provision of direct financial and technical assistance to industry; the establishment and maintenance of standards; the provision of national scientific and technological facilities for industry and the universities; and the operation of a nationwide network of scientific and technical information services.

Responsibilities

In pursuing the above activities, the Council, on occasion, is involved in the collection and use of personal information. Details of those instances where the information is used to make administrative decisions affecting the individual are described under Personal Information Banks — General Public. Persons wishing access to their own records should include their full name and address, and any additional information specified in each information bank. Where no additional information is indicated, only the full name and address are required.

Personal information in NRC files that is not used for administrative purposes and is normally neither organized nor retrieved by personal identifiers is outlined in the Classes of Personal Information section.

Legislation

- National Research Council Act

Organization

Executive Offices

The President is the Chief Executive Officer of the National Research Council and has supervision over and direction of the work of the Council. The President is assisted by two Vice-Presidents for Research, and for Technology and Industry Support respectively.

Included in the Executive Offices is the Office of the Secretary General/Director General Corporate Services. This office includes the Executive Offices Secretariat, and the Corporate Services Function.

The Executive Offices Secretariat supports the operations of NRC's executive offices in day to day activities such as ministerial and parliamentary relations, executive correspondence and support for NRC's Council and corporate committees. It is also responsible for conflict of interest as well as access to information and privacy policy support, and research ethics and review.

The Corporate Services function includes all the planning, external and business relations, and communications efforts undertaken in support of NRC and its managers. This element is divided into three business lines, in the following areas: Business Relations, including Intellectual Property Services, and Market Research and Business Strategies; Communications and External Relations; Planning and Assessment, including Corporate Strategies, Corporate Planning Operations, and Audit and Evaluation.

National Research Council Institutes

♦ Biotechnology Research Institute (Montreal)

The Biotechnology Research Institute (BRI) conducts research in biochemical and molecular engineering in close collaboration with industry, universities and public research agencies. The objective is to establish a strong national program in biotechnology R&D that will have extensive and eventually dominant private sector involvement.

The Institute houses one of the nation's largest facilities for pilot-scale R&D, giving Canadian industry unique access to technical expertise and state-of-the-art equipment. Dozens of projects are in progress with industry and university partners in areas such as biosensor development, anaerobic waste water purification systems, computer programs for protein design, and the culture of mammalian cells.

♦ Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (Ottawa)

The Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI) is this country's largest scientific, technical and medical information resource, serving industry, governments, universities, and individuals with a need for specialized information. Services are based on a comprehensive collection of published information and the expertise of information specialists.

CISTI provides customized literature searches, access to specialized databases, reference services and referrals to experts and current awareness services.

CISTI responds to nearly half a million requests for copies of articles, reports, conference papers, and books annually. Industry is its largest client with government being second, followed by academia and health care facilities.

To promote Canada's international presence in science and technology, CISTI offers scientists and engineers from

Canada and elsewhere, journals of high quality in which to communicate their work to their peers and other interested communities.

NRC publishes 14 primary Research Journals: the Canadian Journals of Botany, Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Earth Sciences, Fisheries and Aquatic Sciences, Forest Research, Physics, Microbiology, Physiology and Pharmacology, Zoology, the Canadian Geotechnical Journal, Biochemistry and Cell Biology, Genome, and Environmental Reviews.

These highly cited publications feature top quality refereeing and excellent technical production, and attract international contributions and subscriptions. Eight rank in the top 13 per cent of the world's science literature as measured by total citations.

♦ Canadian Hydraulics Centre (Ottawa)

The Canadian Hydraulics Centre offers physical and numerical modeling and analysis services to the engineering community in the general field of hydraulics, specializing in coastal engineering, environmental hydraulics, and cold regions technology.

♦ Centre for Fluid Power Technology (Ottawa)

CFPT offers its clients unique expertise and facilities in the area of fluid jets and more recently water hydraulics. CFPT is equipped with world class facilities including high pressure plunger and intensifier pumps, AWJs, cavitation test cell, X-Y gantry, pulsed laser for photography and PC workstations.

CFPT is committed to the development and commercialization of fluid power products for several types of industries.

♦ Centre for Surface Transportation Technologies (Ottawa)

CSTT offers its clients unique expertise and facilities to improve the productivity, competitiveness, reliability and safety of rail and road transportation equipment and systems. Expertise includes engineering research and development, computer modeling and analysis, field evaluation, climatic simulation, and vehicle performance certification. Highlights of CSTT's work include large improvements to railway wheels and rails, discovery of tank car failure mechanisms, and performance evaluation and improvement of railway passenger coaches, municipal buses, and farm equipment built in Canada for export.

♦ Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics (Ottawa and British Columbia)

As a mandated responsibility, the Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics operates and maintains astronomical observatories as national facilities which are made available to scientists across the country. These are the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria and the Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory in Penticton, British Columbia. In addition, the Canada-France-Hawaii

Telescope atop Mauna Kea in Hawaii, is operated as an international partnership of the National Research Council, France's Centre national de la recherche scientifique and the University of Hawaii, as is the James Clerk Maxwell Telescope, operated by NRC, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands, also in Hawaii.

In support of its mandate, the Institute carries out research in astronomy, solar terrestrial physics, and develops new techniques and instrumentation for collecting and assessing data in these fields.

♦ Industrial Materials Institute (Boucherville, Quebec)

The Industrial Materials Institute (IMI) assists Canadian companies to become more competitive in national and international markets by conducting research and development activities in the area of materials processing. IMI has nearly 150 employees, including 125 scientists, engineers and technicians, and works in close cooperation with the industry, universities and government through the creation of technology groups, consortia and joint research projects.

IMI's expertise is valuable to all industrial sectors where materials play a role, from raw materials producers, through instrumentation and equipment suppliers, to semi-finished and finished product manufacturers. The Institute's activities deal with metals, polymers and ceramics as well as their composites and alloys, and the multidisciplinary expertise focuses on:

- Process Modeling and Optimization (development and experimental validation of process modeling software)
- Process Development (development and upgrading of processes optimizing microstructure to obtain higher performance materials) and
- Process Instrumentation (development and use of optical and ultrasound sensors for process and quality control).

IMI possesses extensive state-of-the-art equipment which helps bring new technologies on line. These facilities, some of which are unique in Canada, are available to the industry so it can pursue its own experimental development work.

♦ Industrial Research Assistance Program (Offices across Canada)

The Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP) helps Canadian companies to develop and exploit technologies. IRAP's support stimulates R&D within Canadian firms and allows them to build their technical knowledge and expertise. This support is tailored to assisting firms in meeting the challenges of a changing and competitive economy.

IRAP is founded upon a national network of some 255 Industrial Technology Advisors who are situated in more than 90 communities across Canada. These officers provide technical advice and assistance to Canadian firms. IRAP can also provide limited funding for technically risky projects, where appropriate.

Through IRAP, companies can access the full range of resources available through a unique technology network, involving specialized technology centres, as well as NRC laboratories, federal departments, provincial research organizations, universities and colleges, and other professional bodies.

◆ Institute for Aerospace Research (Ottawa)

The Institute for Aerospace Research (IAR) performs research and applies technology in the fields of aerodynamics, structures and aerospace materials, flight systems, and propulsion technologies for clients, and collaborators which include aerospace manufacturing industries, government departments and universities.

Research activities are directed toward the development of solutions and advancing technologies critical to Canada's industrial competitiveness and to issues addressing public safety, security and protection of the environment.

Major test facilities are available to outside agencies on a cost-recovery or collaborative basis. These include seven wind tunnels of various sizes and wind speeds, experimental aircraft, facilities for structural and engine testing, a Flight Recorder Playback Centre, and flight impact and intense noise facilities. Considerable effort is directed toward development of advanced testing techniques and equipment which attract customers from around the world.

◆ Institute for Biodiagnostics (Winnipeg)

The Institute for Biodiagnostics, located in Winnipeg, carries out research to develop techniques and instrumentation for improved diagnosis of disease and monitoring of therapy in humans. Research is performed in partnership with medical schools, universities, other institutes, instrument manufacturers and the pharmaceutical industry. The technology developed as a result of research in the Institute is transferred to the medical instrument industry and medical practice. Research areas include biosystems, magnetic resonance technology, spectroscopy and informatics. Techniques are developed to model and characterize normal and disease states in humans. The principal areas of research are cancer, heart disease, and stroke.

Magnetic resonance technology focuses on development of magnets, spectrometer systems and pulse sequences for localized spectroscopy. A 3 Tesla MR spectrometer/imager is currently being developed. Infra-red spectroscopy is used to investigate the molecular basis of structural changes underlying the transformation from healthy to disease states. Mathematical methods and computer software are developed for the improved analysis of instrumentally derived data for medical diagnosis and evaluation of therapy.

◆ Institute for Biological Sciences (Ottawa)

The Institute collaborates with industries, universities, research hospitals, and other government departments.

The Institute's innovative research, related primarily to mammalian systems, has resulted in novel techniques for the development of diagnostic and therapeutic agents and methods.

The Institute for Biological Sciences (IBS) focuses on cell biology and immunochemistry to achieve economic impacts through research and development on neurodegenerative diseases and vaccines, diagnostics and immunotherapeutics in partnership with the human and animal health sectors.

◆ Institute for Chemical Process and Environmental Technology (Ottawa)

With core capabilities in chemical sciences and engineering, as well as outstanding research facilities, NRC's Institute for Chemical Process and Environmental Technology (ICPET) focuses its expertise in the areas of process and materials chemistry, process technology and related environmental technology.

Evolving from two previous institutes at NRC, the Institutes for Environmental Chemistry and Environmental Research and Technology, ICPET continues to advance and expand its well-founded R&D capabilities in polymer membranes, materials research and surface analysis, electrosynthetic and electrochemical processes, liquid and gas separations, atomizer and spray technology and particulate waste treatment and reduction — with a view to helping manufacturing and industry clients optimize their process operations and reduce the impact of these operations on the environment.

◆ Institute for Information Technology (Ottawa)

The Institute for Information Technology (IIT) takes advantage of its expertise in information technology (IT) as a critical enabling factor in the development of technologies with a wide range of applications.

IIT's seven research groups include human-computer interaction, interactive information, integrated reasoning, photonic systems, seamless personal information networking, software engineering, and visual information technology. The capabilities gained from these areas of research are applied in collaboration with the information technology suppliers to Canadian business.

Background studies on the competitive positioning of Canadian industry have demonstrated that the telecommunications and software industries have a particularly strong technological capacity and that private funding of research in these fields is considerably higher than in other sectors of the economy. Therefore and to maximize the impact of its activities, IIT concentrates its efforts on providing IT expertise in research where there is a demonstrated need, and clear potential for wealth generation for the Canadian economy.

◆ Institute for Marine Biosciences (Halifax)

The Institute for Marine Biosciences (IMB) pursues a highly focussed program in marine biotechnology aimed at deriving economic benefit from aquaculture and from other products from marine organisms. Its mandate is national in scope.

IMB's research program, which is divided into two sections (Marine Biology and Marine Chemistry), focuses on fish, shellfish, and seaweed biology; hatchery microbiology; seafood safety, particularly with respect to toxic phytoplankton; bioorganic chemistry; biochemistry; microscopy; molecular biology, particularly large-scale DNA sequencing and computer analysis of sequence data; and advanced mass spectrometry and separation science. Through the Marine Analytical Chemistry Standards Program (MACSP), IMB produces certified standards and reference materials for use in analytical laboratories worldwide.

The Institute provides innovative, multi-disciplinary research and problem solving to a broadly based client and collaborator community. Key industrial sectors include aquaculture and fisheries, pharmaceuticals, agrochemicals, scientific instrumentation manufacturers, and analytical laboratories servicing the environmental and seafood safety sectors.

◆ Institute for Marine Dynamics (St. John's, Newfoundland)

Since its official opening in 1985, in St. John's, the Institute for Marine Dynamics (IMD) has developed internationally recognized facilities and expertise in the field of oceans engineering research and development. The Institute is a leading centre of expertise in three areas: Offshore Engineering, Marine Systems and Advanced Ocean Technologies.

A number of high value-added global niche markets in Ocean Technology (OT) have emerged in recent years in which small, innovative Canadian firms are competitive. OT firms specialize in fields such as cold ocean environmental engineering, subsea systems, and ocean information systems with applications in the oil and gas, and ocean transport sectors.

Within this context, IMD therefore increasingly concentrates its efforts on enhancing the competitiveness of the emerging OT sector in Canada, as well as the offshore oil and gas and marine transportation sectors. The Institute also plays an important role in collaboration with other government departments in ocean environmental protection, marine defence, and ocean transport safety systems. It also works with other NRC institutes to serve Canada's ocean technology community.

◆ Institute for Microstructural Sciences (Ottawa)

In large part, the Institute for Microstructural Sciences (IMS) operates on the leading edge of R&D for the information technologies, telecommunications equipment and instruments sectors. Its focus is on optoelectronics and photonics in telecommunications, microelectronics, systems requiring advanced components, equipment and instrumental analysis and control, and computer hardware systems. It works with the Canadian industrial community to provide a critical mass in R&D through directed research projects, joint development of key advanced technologies and consulting in product development.

The institute's program encompasses artificially structured materials, devices and processes, device integration, and exploratory applications. In addition, the institute assists in the development of an expanded technological base through participation in and support of Canadian consortia and through direct interaction with industrial clients and partners.

◆ Institute for National Measurement Standards (Ottawa)

NRC has a mandated responsibility for metrology, the development and maintenance of standards of measurements, and has well-established programs in this area.

The Institute for National Measurement Standards (INMS) draws together all activities related to metrology to provide a basis for the national measurement system of Canada. R&D is aimed at the realization of high accuracy primary standards compatible with those of other countries and at specific applications of measurement techniques, including contract research and development for individual clients, R&D conducted jointly with industrial partners, and R&D in the national interest.

A high accuracy calibration service is provided to industry, universities, hospitals, clinics and other government departments and agencies. A calibration laboratory assessment service (CLAS) is also provided to enable private and government laboratories to become accredited as calibration laboratories and become members of the Canadian Calibration Network. These services give industry easy access to calibrations facilities with traceability to national and international standards.

The Institute maintains active interaction with the international community, represents Canada in its obligation connected with the Convention du Mètre and acts as the Canadian focal point in the field of measurement science. Since international trade increasingly depends on internationally recognized measurement standards, this Institute provides an important national service, building on a foundation of basic research.

◆ Institute for Research in Construction (Ottawa)

The primary strategic thrust of the Institute for Research in Construction (IRC) is the support of Canada's physical and technological infrastructure as applied to construction activities. IRC's expertise in the provision of safe and secure built facilities, effective urban infrastructure systems, structures and construction materials evaluation, energy efficiency technologies, acoustics research, and the development of codes and standards are critical assets in support of this objective.

Construction activity in Canada was valued at $106 billion in 1990. Although only a small fraction of those services or products is exported, efficient and safe built infrastructure is considered to be a critical factor in economic efficiencies for wealth generation through cost savings in energy, repair and replacement. IRC's close interactions with industry associations, professional societies, and national and international standards bodies provide it with the capability of having a pervasive incremental impact on a highly diverse and fragmented sector of the economy.

Efficient production of high value-added goods and services in a knowledge based economy relies heavily on an efficient physical infrastructure and a productive environment. The technologies needed to support the development of such systems are addressed by IRC in collaboration with its partners and clients with the goal of enhancing Canada's economic competitive positioning.

◆ Integrated Manufacturing Technologies Institute (Ottawa)

IMTI's mission is to be a leader and catalyst in the research and development of technologies required to provide Canadian industry with a competitive base in the development and integration of systems for the manufacture of discrete products. The IMTI research focus is grouped into two areas of competency associated with discrete product manufacturing. These include the design and optimization of manufacturing systems, and development and application of electro-physical-mechanical processes. In 1997, IMTI will be located in new facilities in London, Ontario.

◆ Plant Biotechnology Institute (Saskatoon, Saskatchewan)

The Plant Biotechnology Institute (PBI) is Canada's national laboratory for advanced research in biotechnologies for higher plants, especially those important in agriculture, forestry and industrial processing. The Institute focuses on producing new, exploitable biotechnology for Canadian needs, concentrating on techniques of cell and molecular biology, and biological chemistry. Identification of useful genes is a program priority.

PBI's Transgenic Plant Centre permits large-scale propagation and testing of genetically engineered plants in a year-round facility. (A transgenic plant is one which is genetically engineered with a gene from some other species of plant or other life form.)

◆ Steacie Institute for Molecular Sciences (Ottawa)

The Steacie Institute for Molecular Sciences (SIMS) was formed in June 1990, and was named in honour of esteemed scientist and former NRC President Dr. E.W.R. Steacie. It is devoted to basic research in molecular science and brings together groups from within NRC for collaborative research with universities, other research organizations, and NRC institutes.

The Institute's research program emphasizes three areas: femtosecond science; nanoscale materials and processes; supramolecular chemistry and biology.

The Institute offers a stimulating and fertile environment for collaborative research, providing an attractive entry point into NRC for young scientists. Its programs attract visiting researchers and graduate students from universities and other Canadian and foreign research organizations.

The Institute contributes scientific knowledge to support and reinforce other NRC programs.

◆ Thermal Technology Centre (Ottawa)

The Thermal Technology Centre consists of a well-qualified team of engineers, researchers, and technologists, with broad experience in R&D in thermal engineering systems and advanced processes. This group has worked extensively with industry and acquired specialized expertise in the application of alternative refrigerants technology in HVAC&R systems. This high level of technical competency is combined with the operation of a range of special purpose state-of-the-art test facilities.

TTC offers its services to clients in the commercial refrigeration, air-conditioning, heat pump, and process heat transfer equipment manufacturing industries. Applied R&D projects are also conducted in collaboration with government departments and agencies involved in energy and environmental issues...

Scientific Numeric Databases

Description: On-line retrieval and analysis of scientific numeric data, tape lease for private use, and customized searches. Topics: Infra-red spectral data; crystallographic data; thermochemical data; molecular biology data.

Program Record Number: NRC CIS 700

♦ Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics (Ottawa and British Columbia)

Administration

Description: Correspondence and memoranda pertaining to policies, contracts, contributions, special projects, program forecasts and other administrative matters as they apply to the operation of each laboratory section.

Topics: Administration; general correspondence; enquiries; visits; lectures; talks and papers; review of manuscripts and theses for outsiders; seminars and colloquia; unsolicited suggestions and ideas submitted to HIA; exhibits and displays; research — general; miscellaneous work done for outsiders. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 335

Dominion Astrophysical Observatory

Description: Data and general correspondence on astronomy related to observations and research on stars, galaxies and cosmology, testing and construction of instruments, archiving of data. Storage Medium: Photographic plates, computer printouts, magnetic tapes and disks, publications and reprints. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 350

Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and astronomical data. The latter are stored on computer printouts, magnetic tapes and computer disks. Topics: General correspondence; operation and administration of the national facility; observing proposals; research concerning the interstellar medium; various other topics in radio astronomy; design and construction of radio telescopes; aperture synthesis techniques. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 341

JCMT Group

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and working papers connected to the topics listed below. Topics: Policy; millimetre and submillimetre astronomy, James Clerk Maxwell Telescope, SIS receivers, planar arrays; interstellar molecules; long baseline interferometry; long-range planning; instrumentation; applications for observing time; data processing. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 340

Optical Components

Description: Data, correspondence, memoranda, and working papers related to the research of the group.

Topics: Optical components and systems, optical design, fabrication of components and systems, testing and calibration of aerial survey cameras, testing of optical components and systems. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 537

Solar-Terrestrial Physics

Description: Correspondence and memoranda related to the currently active and discontinued research programs of the section. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; Ottawa River Solar Observatory; solar research; auroral research; auroral radar; airglow; space plasmas in the ionosphere and magnetosphere; aeronomy and upper atmosphere research data; modelling of ionospheric currents and geomagnetic pulsations; cosmic ray research. (Discontinued Topics: meteor research; non-meteoritic sightings; Shuttle and Spacelab experiments.) Program Record Number: NRC HIA 355

Spectroscopy

Description: General correspondence and information related to spectroscopic research. Topics: Policy; infra-red spectra of molecules; electronic spectra; vibrations in polyatomic molecules; spectra of molecular ions. Program Record Number: NRC HIA 370

♦ Industrial Research Assistance Program (Offices across Canada)

Management

Description: Information on program policy, program planning and coordination, policy proposals and evaluations, cost-benefit reviews, industrial surveys, program promotion, program analysis, methods and procedures. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; cooperation with provincial research organizations; industrial research institutes; provincial and trade associations; IRAP newsletter; program forecasts. Program Record Number: NRC IRP 705

Program Delivery

Description: IRAP provides advisory services through its national network of experienced Industrial Technology Advisors. ITAs can help a firm define its technical needs or identify technological opportunities; obtain technical information; solve technical problems; identify sources of appropriate technology and expertise; acquire and adapt technology; or access other programs. IRAP can also provide limited funding for projects designed to enhance a firm's technical capability, under two program elements: Technology Enhancement and Research, Development, and Adaptation. Program Record Number: NRC IRP 720

♦ Institute for Aerospace Research (Ottawa)

Administration

Description: The files contain material related to the orderly management of all programs and projects in the Institute, contracts and agreements relating to external commitments, correspondence with national and international clients, and material pertaining to IAR involvement in organizations devoted to the aeronautical sciences. Topics: Administration — general correspondence, personnel, procurement, national and international agreements and contracts, publications, technical enquiries, programs and projects, planning, conferences, laboratory operations, policy, aircraft accidents, publicity and inventions, security, AGARD, CAARC; research; tests and work done for outsiders.

Program Record Number: NRC IAR 465

Aerodynamics Laboratory

Description: Information on research projects, contracts and agreements with external civil and military agencies and industry; operation and maintenance of wind tunnels, management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: (Active): General correspondence; aircraft aerodynamics; computational fluid dynamics; manoeuvring aerodynamics; unsteady aerodynamics; propeller/rotor aerodynamics and aeroacoustics; effects of icing on aircraft performance; aerodynamics of helicopter/ship operations; dynamic wind tunnel tests and techniques; nonlinear airloads analysis, oscillatory characteristics of aircraft and components; wind engineering; vehicle aerodynamics; subsonic and transonic engine aerodynamics; cascade and stage testing and computational fluid dynamics analysis of turbomachinery; turbine nozzle heat transfer; operation and maintenance of wind tunnels; operation and maintenance of turbomachinery test facilities; wings and bodies in transonic flows; advanced airfoil development; high lift systems; viscous flow drag reduction; flutter analysis; stores clearance; wind tunnel test technology. (Inactive): Aviation security; wind energy research; helium hypersonic wind tunnel; modelling of drift in aerial spray operation; passive dosimeter for UFFI home; trace vapour detection of explosives, and narcotics; Canadian sounding rockets; flow about cones at supersonic speeds. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 480

Flight Research

Description: Information on the operation of NRC research aircraft fleet and on research projects in the general areas of flight mechanics and airborne geoscience. Topics: (Active): Flight test techniques and instrumentation; handling qualities and flight dynamics; airborne simulation; flight safety and operational problems; flight recorder playback facilities; guidance, navigation and control of aircraft; pilot-aircraft interface technologies; atmospheric studies; biospheric studies/global change; aeromagnetism; synthetic aperture radar. (Inactive): VTOL/STOL projects; lighter-than-air vehicle technology; agricultural and forestry spray research. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 470

Structures, Materials and Propulsion

Description: Information on internal research, external commitments, agreements with other agencies in government and industry, management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: (Active): Policy; general correspondence; flight loads, fatigue; durability and damage tolerance; acoustic excitation of structures; aerospace applications of metallic and composite materials; structural analysis; structural dynamics; vibration, real-time photogrammetry; impact strength of structures; crack propagation theory of structures; non-destructive inspection of structures and materials, NDI of manufacturing defects and service induced damage; gas turbine engine performance including aerodynamic, thermodynamic and structural factors. (Inactive): Road accidents study group; orthopedic implants; biomedical materials; Ottawa-Carleton computer traffic control system. Program Record Number: NRC IAR 490

♦ Institute for Biodiagnostics (Winnipeg)

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports relating to the planning and execution of the Institute's programs. Topics: General correspondence, Administration and Operation, technical inquiries, visits, lectures, seminars, publications, patents, project reports. Program Record Number: NRC CPE 165

Process and Materials Chemistry

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on focused scientific research programs to improve the performance of materials in the manufacturing industries. Topics: Functional polymers for separations; solid waste reduction; surfaces and nanoparticles; combustion research; reduction of toxins in batteries. Program Record Number: NRC CPE 175

Process Systems

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on process integration, modeling, environmental stewardship relating to the manufacturing system. Topics: Airborne contaminants; technology impact assessment. Program Record Number: NRC CPE 180

Process Technology

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on innovative processes and technologies for the chemical and manufacturing industries. Topics: Gaseous separations and emissions control; electrosynthetic methods and electrochemical processes; particulate waste treatment and reduction; process development for liquid separation. Program Record Number: NRC CPE 170

◆ Institute for Information Technology (Ottawa)

Research Result

Description: This is the output of the Institute and is in the form of technical reports, external publications, correspondence, designs, patents and transfer of technology. Topics: Human-Computer Interaction: multi-modal interfaces; integration of language and visualization in 3-D models; modelling dialogue structure to improve computer-human interaction. Interactive Information: software tools to improve identification and navigation of information sources; machine learning; intelligent agents; navigational tools for digital libraries. Integrated Reasoning: diagnostic and decision making systems; integration of multiple reasoning techniques (fuzzy logic, case-based reasoning, decision networks, induction and model-based reasoning.) Photonic Systems: optically enhanced computing and data transmission; optical back-planes; ultrafast laser sources; fibre-optic links, all-optical computer networks. Seamless Personal Information Networking: information networks; seamless integration of heterogeneous information sources and applications into homogeneous environments; advanced AI technologies. Software Engineering: real-time and embedded systems; commercial software products; large scale systems; design recovery; configuration control; software portability, software costing. Visual Information Technology: 3-D visual information acquisition and processing; sensor systems; machine vision; 3-D data interpretation; virtual environments and museums; 3-D shape and colour reproduction. Program Record Number: NRC IIT 265

◆ Institute for Marine Biosciences (Halifax)

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, requests, minutes, and technical reports. Topics: Plant engineering; requests (analyses, chemicals and cultures, scientific information); scientific societies and institutes; committees (health and safety, scientific committees); Aquaculture Research Station files (basically engineering and maintenance); unpublished manuscripts; financial services; purchasing; inventory control records; and personnel files. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 035

Director General's Office

Description: Director General's working files include material on the activities of projects, such as research and development and project planning; travel and conference files; NRC committees (e.g., Committee of Directors

General). Topics: General correspondence and files on research and development pertaining to research projects; files by subject interest, general correspondence from various institutes within the NRC, by institute; working files; forward planning. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 030

Marine Biology

Description: General Correspondence; seminars; research files of published and unpublished data, reprints and information relating to: aquaculture of seaweeds, finfish and shellfish; cell biology; light and electron microscopy; biochemistry; molecular biology; genomics; bioinformatics; marine microbiology; molecular evolution; DNA sequencing; marine macro and microalgae; floristics; seaweed products. Topics: Aquaculture research; commercial tank cultivation of seaweeds; phycocolloid polymers; seaweed food products; chemistry and biochemistry of shellfish toxins; toxin production and transfer in the marine food web; enzymes; proteins; natural products; DNA markers; genomic sequencing. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 045

Marine Chemistry

Description: General correspondence; seminars; equipment; research files of published and unpublished data, and reprints and information relating to: marine chemistry; analytical chemistry; biochemistry; bioorganic chemistry; high resolution separation techniques, such as high performance liquid chromatography, gas chromatography, supercritical fluid chromatography, and capillary electrophoresis coupled to mass spectrometry, for quantitative analysis of target organic compounds in marine and other complex matrices; production and certification of instrument calibration standards and reference materials (Marine Analytical Chemistry Standards Program), including related research; purification and characterization of bioactive natural products from marine macro and microorganisms; applications of NMR, IR and UV spectroscopy. Topics: Marine toxins; peptides; proteins; carbohydrates; therapeutic residues; organochlorines; biological mass spectrometry; fundamentals of mass spectrometry; certified standards and reference materials; preparative extraction, separation and purification of marine toxins and other bioactive metabolites; structural determinations; biosynthetic and metabolic (including in-vivo) NMR studies using stable isotopes. Program Record Number: NRC IMB 040

Acoustics and Signal Processing

Description: Information related to research on sound propagation and environmental studies; sound reproduction; sound and vibration; acoustical technology, devices, measurements and standards; signal processing. Topics: Physical acoustics and noise control, DSP hardware and software, control algorithms, array processing; design and testing of ear defenders; design and calibration of circumaural earphones; noise survey in industrial plants; community noise — industrial, construction, transportation, domestic, outdoor sound propagation, noise legislation, committee on noise; exposure of individuals to noise; e.g. microphone and sound level meter; psychoacoustics committee on physical acoustics; specific project — adaptive loudspeakers, active noise control beam forming, acoustical data processing, reduction of noise from small engines, and sound level measurement technique. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 510

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports and statistics on the administration and operation of the Institute. Topics: Enquiries; visits to the division; visits and invitations to outside organizations; lectures, talks and papers presented by staff; review of manuscripts and theses; seminars and colloquia; inventions submitted to the Institute patent and licensing activities; finance; equipment and supplies; work done for outsiders. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 505

Advanced Processes

Description: Information on advanced silicon processing technology; focused ion beams; surface and interface physics. Topics: Focused ion beam processing; In-situ silicon processing; Advanced silicon processes; surface and interfaces of semiconductors. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 439

Condensed Matter

Description: Information on condensed matter Topics: Solid state phenomena; superlattices; semiconductors; mesoscopic physics; and superconductivity. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 440

Device Physics

Description: Research on the physical processes important to the operation and design of electrical and optoelectronic devices. Topics: Backgating in GaAs Mosfets; electrical characteristics of compound semiconductor devices; modelling of electrical devices, photodetectors and ridge-waveguide lasers; development of two-dimensional numerical modelling tools for devices; transport in heterostructures. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 441

Epitaxy

Description: Information on molecular beam epitaxy. Topics: Controlled growth of semiconductor materials by molecular beam epitaxy and related techniques: characterization of material; (Si/Si_xGe) strained layer superlattices; III-V compounds such as GaAs/AlGaAs; lasers LED's diodes transistors. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 455

Microfabrication

Description: Information on microfabrication. Topics: Prototype test structures and devices; semiconductor processing; lithography; metallization; insulator deposition; laser and modulator fabrication; focused ion beam processing. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 460

Optoelectronics

Description: Information on optoelectronic devices. Topics: High-power pulsed lasers; solid-state lasers, modulators, waveguide amplifiers, optoelectronic integrated circuits, optical switching. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 462

Quantum Physics

Description: Information on quantum electronics; quantum transport. Topics: Photon echo modulation; optical hole-burning memories; electronic and optical properties of semiconductors; magneto-transport and magneto-optical properties of the two-dimensional electron gas; quantum Hall effect; Fractional Quantum Hall effect; transient behaviour of hot electrons. Nanostructures; Quantum well infra-red detectors; Resonant tunneling. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 461

Surfaces and Interfaces

Description: Information on surfaces and interfaces; properties and degradation of materials. Topics: Formation, growth and breakdown of surface films; Auger electron spectroscopy; secondary ion mass spectrometry; X-ray photoelectron spectroscopy; electron energy loss transmission electron microscopy; reflection high energy electron diffraction, and scanning electron microscopy. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 410

Thin Films

Description: Information on thin film coatings and optical thin films. Topics: Policy; correspondence; thin film coatings and optical thin films; Superconducting thin films. Program Record Number: NRC IMS 535

◆ Institute for National Measurement Standards (Ottawa)

Chemical Metrology

Description: This group is involved in the development of state-of-the-art methods and instrumentation for both organic and inorganic trace analysis, in the production of environmental certified reference materials (CRMs), and in various international activities related to the traceability of chemical analysis measurements. Facilities include an array of atomic spectroscopy instrumentation for inorganic trace analysis, mass spectrometry instrumentation for both organic and inorganic trace analysis, a variety of gas and liquid chromatography equipment for chemical separation, and "clean room" facilities for contamination-free sample preparation and manipulation. The CRMs produced in the laboratory are essential to both public and private sector laboratories routinely engaged in the analysis of environmental samples (e.g., water samples, sediments, biological tissues) as a means to ensure the accuracy of their results. The CRM production program provides the focus for many of the methods and instrument development research activities of the group. The group also offers analytical chemistry services on a contract of fee-for-service basis for selected industrial clients with needs which cannot be met by any private sector Canadian chemical analysis laboratory. A notable example is our glow discharge mass spectrometry (GDMS) facility for direct analysis of conducting and semi-conducting materials, in particular very high purity materials such as gallium and cadmium telluride, destined for use in fabrication of microelectronic devices. The group also seeks opportunities for collaborative research with manufacturers of instrumentation for chemical analysis, either through in-house development of prototype instruments or through "beta-site" testing of pre-commercial instruments. Program Record Number: NRC INM 535

Electrical Power Measurements

Description: This group is involved in the development of new state-of-the-art instrumentation and measurement techniques. These include revenue meters for electric utilities and calibration facilities for equipment such as instrument transformers, active/reactive power and energy meters under sinusoidal/nonsinusoidal waveform conditions, high voltage capacitors, high current resistors and shunts, and high voltage loss measuring systems transformers and inductive reactors. The group is also involved in the development of new diagnostic measurement techniques and instrumentation to assess the operating conditions of electric power apparatus in service and to predict their remaining life. An important element of this program is the development of new and improved measuring techniques and instrumentation to meet and anticipate the measurement requirements of the electrical power industry. Program Record Number: NRC INM 525

Electrical Standards

Description: Electrical standards of measurements play a basic role in maintaining compatibility, coherence and safety in all services connected to the field of electricity. In fact electricity touches essentially all sectors of the economy. The proper monitoring of electrical energy consumption at either the individual or the industrial level depends on the use of well calibrated reference standards. The fabrication of electrical instruments, their testing and the marketing of these instruments require internationally accepted electrical standards. These standards are developed and maintained by the Electrical Standards Group. The group is involved in the ac, dc and rf fields. It does basic research on primary standards of voltage and resistance using the Josephson and Quantum Hall effect and develops techniques and instruments connected with ac and rf measurements. The group also maintains a calibration service for high accuracy secondary standards and top of the line instruments. Program Record Number: NRC INM 530

Frequency and Time

Description: The demands of science have pushed the capability for accurate frequency and time determination to a very high level. Accuracy levels are available that might appear excessively high for everyday applications, yet they provide the basis of many modern systems such as navigation and communication, as well as the basis of measurements in diverse fields such as advanced physics, radio astronomy, geodesy, length metrology, voltage measurements, and electronics manufacturing and testing. The Frequency and Time Group designs, builds and maintains atomic clocks which serve as Canada's standards for frequency and time. The standard of length, the metre, is now also defined in terms of time. The Group therefore also maintains lasers whose wavelengths define the metre. Frequency calibration and laser wavelength calibration services are provided. Time is disseminated throughout Canada by various means, some of which include short-wave radio transmissions on NRC station CHU, digitally coded signals on telephone lines, the National Satellite (Parliament) Channel on cable television and by other direct satellite links. The Group conducts research to further extend the range and accuracy of frequency and wavelength standards to ensure internationally recognized, state-of-the-art standards for Canada. Program Record Number: NRC INM 545

Ionizing Radiation Standards

Description: Ionizing radiation plays a major role in modern medical practice, both for diagnostic purposes (e.g. CT scanners, x-rays) and for therapeutic purposes primarily in cancer therapy. The monitoring of radiation exposure is also very important in many industrial environments particularly in nuclear power production and uranium mining. In order to provide a degree of accuracy that ensures that radiation exposure levels are properly monitored and that therapy is done with maximum efficiency without endangering life, industrialized countries provide reference standards for the calibration of instruments or devices used in these various sectors. The national laboratories in charge of these standards make sure that they are accurate by comparison with those of other countries. This is done under the umbrella of the Bureau International des Poids et Mesures. This important activity which takes place on a continuous basis ensures uniformity of the national standards with the international measurement standards system. In Canada the standard in this field is provided by the Ionizing Radiation Standards Group of the NRC. The Group develops, maintains and promulgates Canada's primary measurement standards for ionizing radiation and provides calibration service as well as the link to the international measurement system. Program Record Number: NRC INM 555

Mechanical Metrology

Description: The Group is composed of three programs rooted in fundamental metrology. The Mass Standards Program is responsible for the maintenance and propagation of primary mass standards and derived standards of pressure and mass flow which are based on the kilogram mass unit. It establishes the mass scale for Canada which supports domestic and international trade in bulk commodities and ensures traceability of mass measurements to the international prototype of the kilogram. It realizes the SI unit of pressure, the pascal, and subdivides and multiplies it over sixteen decades in the interest of the avionics, power generation and transport industries. It is directly involved with industrial collaborators in the measurement of the flow of bulk commodities in the fluid states. The Dimensional Metrology Program establishes and operates measurement systems based upon the Canadian realization of the metre, the SI primary unit of length. It calibrates end standards, such as gauge blocks and line standards, as well as scales, engineering and surveying tapes and levelling rods for industrial use. It also calibrates angle standards, optical flats and parallels as well as roundness and diameter standards. General form, profile, roundness, and surface roughness are also determined in support of Canadian industry. The Acoustical Standards Program is responsible for the reciprocity calibration of condenser microphones and carries out ultrasound power calibration for medical applications. It offers a primary interferometric calibration service for accelerometers which is unique in Canada. This program plays a particularly important role in the area of normative standards directly related to the public good in Canada. Program Record Number: NRC INM 515

Photometry and Radiometry

Description: Radiometry (measurement of optical radiant energy) and photometry (measurement of optical [luminous] radiant energy as sensed by the human eye) are important to a large part of the public, manufacturing, and service sectors. Recent rapid expansion of electro-optical, photodetector, and optical fibre communications industries have produced a concurrent demand for more accurate and wider ranging radiometric measurements. It has been estimated that one-quarter of electricity consumption is for lighting; the enormous potential benefit of increased efficiency through improved photometric standards is obvious. Transportation (highway, air, marine) depends heavily upon visual signals and lighting where photometric energy and colour are of prime importance. Public health and safety require accurate measurement of such quantities as ultraviolet, laser, and phototherapeutic radiation levels. Other areas requiring photometric, radiometric, or colorimetric standards include paint, textile, and plastics industries; pulp and paper; television; agriculture; meteorology; environment; military and space agencies. To serve this wide and varied clientele, the Photometry and Radiometry section has developed and maintains the SI base unit of luminous intensity (candela) and basic standards for the measurement of light, colour, and optical radiation in the wavelength range from 200 nm to 50,000 nm. Program Record Number: NRC INM 540

Thermometry

Description: Temperature plays a most important role in everyday life as well as in the many specialized activities of industrialized countries. Processes such as those concerned with advanced materials preparation and growth, fabrication, analytical processes and diagnosis require either good temperature control or accurate temperature determination. Other important and diverse fields that require an excellent knowledge of temperature conditions include biology; biotechnology and clinical studies, analysis and diagnosis; aircraft industries; metallurgical industries; food industries, chemical industries; oceanography; pharmaceutical production. In order to ensure for these activities an accurate temperature scale, industrialized countries support a national laboratory which maintains accurate reference standards and provides a high accuracy calibration service based upon an International Temperature Scale. In Canada this role is fulfilled by the thermometry group of the NRC which does basic research in the field of thermometry, contributes to international activities in that field, and ensures through intercomparisons that its standards are compatible with those of other countries. Program Record Number: NRC INM 550

◆ Institute for Research in Construction (Ottawa)

Acoustics

Description: Information on field measurements of the sound absorption and transmission properties of buildings and building elements, and research on vibration related to experimental studies of the response of actual structures under dynamic excitations, such as those provided by wind and road traffic. Topics: Development of impact tests for floors; acoustical test methods; development of noise criteria; insulation of buildings from external noise; determination of dynamic response characteristics of structures; measurement of sound power of noise sources; outdoor noise propagation;

reverberation room acoustics; vibration problems in buildings; earthquake engineering; commercial test reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 640

Administration

Description: Personnel data on all members of staff, financial reports, purchasing documents, travel authorizations, correspondence and documents on the shops and building up-keep. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 595

Building Materials

Description: Information on the characterization and evaluation of the performance of materials such as concrete, sealants, paints, plastics, roofing materials and clay brick through the use of chemical, physical and mineralogical techniques. Topics: The performance of clear and pigmented coatings; basic engineering properties of concrete; durability to frost-action in concrete and other porous materials; properties and performance of joint materials; characterization of building materials by their microstructure and composition; processes of degradation of organic building materials; performance of concretes as related to the chemical processes in cements; physical and mechanical properties of repair systems; performance of Canadian aggregate; performance of concrete in the presence of aggressive solutions; weathering factors and accelerated test methods for assessing durability of organic building materials; durability of cover and absorber materials for solar collectors; physics of coating formation and adhesion, and the durability of structural clay products. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 600

Building Performance

Description: Information on the evaluation of the thermal characteristics and performance of materials, components and systems leading to standards, product development and proper design; the development of techniques for monitoring the movement of these products within the building envelope; and other aspects of the products. Topics: Energy calculations; energy auditing; lighting practice; efficient lighting energy use; smoke control in tall buildings; passive solar heating; ventilation and air movement in buildings; thermal and hygric properties of materials, hermetically sealed multiple glazing; thermal performance of walls and ceilings; thermal performance of windows; airtightness of walls; development of remedial measures for institutions and commercial establishments; thermal insulation materials; properties and emissions; techniques for measuring particulate materials in air. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 620

Building Structures

Description: Information on the introduction of "limit states design" into Canadian structural codes and standards, and the development of improved serviceability criteria based on risk considerations, including the investigation into the variability of masonry strength. Topics: Case histories of structural failures and problems due to differential movement in buildings; structural safety and serviceability; snow loads on roofs; wind effects on buildings and structures; failure of structures and progressive collapse; masonry research; wind tunnel studies of buildings; and others. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 610

Canadian Construction Materials Centre

Description: Information on the suitability for use of construction materials, systems or services. Topics: Technical information and advice to manufacturers and suppliers of construction materials, systems and services on how to obtain the evaluation of these products and services with respect to their suitability for use; technical information and advice to architects, specification writers, engineers and regulators on the suitability of use of construction materials, systems and services; information to the construction industry on laboratories which conduct testing of construction materials, systems and services; assistance to Canadian exporters of construction-related products and services on the evaluation requirements of these products and services by other countries; replies to inquiries and requests for interpretation of evaluation reports and listings; technical information and advice to Canadian Commission on Construction Materials Evaluation. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 657

Codes and Standards

Description: Information on topics related to the operation of the Codes Technical Section, the Codes Secretarial Service and the Editorial, Translation, Distribution and Records Units. Topics: Technical information and advice to code committees; code requirements for committee consideration; replies to code enquiries and requests for interpretation; seminars and conferences on the NBC and NFC; the continuing review of the code documents in the light of developments in building design and technology to determine the areas that may require expanding or updating to keep them current; technical studies to provide information needed in preparing new or improved code requirements. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 615

Director's Office

Description: Documents on the operation of the individual sections, advisory bodies, research and development studies and seminar or workshop information. Topics: The American Society for Testing and Materials; International Standards Organizations; CIB; Construction Industry Development Council; minutes of the Board of Directors; NRC five-year plan; sectional program and budget submissions; divisional annual reports; proceedings of council; research and development for engineering in cold regions; divisional planning committee notes; and Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation — Institute for Research in Construction reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 590

Fire Research

Description: Information on the development and revision of standard methods of fire tests and research activities, which include fire performance on structural components, flammability of materials, products of combustion, growth of fire, and the influence of fire risks on the overall design of buildings. Topics: Thermal decomposition of polymers; behaviour of building components in fire; evaluation of fire behaviour of plastic components; flammability studies; fire performance information; production and movement of smoke in fire; fire protection features of buildings; development of fire; combustion of organic materials; toxicity of combustion products; fire resistance safety factors; restraint and fire severity; and commercial test reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 625

Industry Liaison

Description: Information on the activities of the Library, the Publications Service, Seminar Service, Network & Client Services. Topics: Reference service; loans; information retrieval; periodical subscriptions; acquisitions; translation requests; Manual on Metric Building Drawing Practice; requests for information; preparation of publications and reports. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 650

Infrastructure

Description: Information on cold climate effects on civil infrastructure. Numerical modelling, laboratory testing and full scale field studies and demonstrations. Topics: Development and optimization of construction techniques, frost action in soils, buried municipal services, frost heave, construction in permafrost regions, thermal conductivity of soils. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 630

System Support Unit

Description: Information on the Institute's calibration and standards facility, the instrument pool for loans, the maintenance and repair shop and the co-ordination and advisory services provided to the Institute. Program Record Number: NRC IRC 635

◆ Plant Biotechnology Institute (Saskatoon, Saskatchewan)

Biological Chemistry

Description: Information on the biology and chemistry of abscisic acid and its analogues. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports; synthetic and analytical methods, contracts; charts; documents. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 575

Brassica Biotechnology

Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of canola (rapeseed) as well as microspore culture. Topics: Correspondence, documents, protocols; laboratory reports, contracts; plant regeneration from cells, genetic transformation of plants. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 579

Cereal Biotechnology

Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of wheat and barley as well as cryoselection for improved cold tolerance. Topics: Correspondence; documents, contracts, protocols; laboratory reports; plant regeneration from cells; cryopreservation; genetic transformation. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 580

Conifer Biotechnology

Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of Canadian conifers as well as micropropagation. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports, contracts; plant regeneration from cells; genetic transformation. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 586

Legume Biotechnology

Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to genetic improvement of grain legumes. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports; contracts; plant regeneration from cells, genetic transformation. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 570

Regulation of Gene Expression

Description: Information on vector construction, gene promoters, gene fusion, developmentally and tissue specific expression of genes; on assembly of functional amino acids assisted by chaperonins. Topics: Correspondence; documents, protocols, laboratory reports, contracts, charts, DNA analysis and synthesis. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 585

Seed Oil Modification

Description: Information on the enzymology and genetic manipulation of storage lipid accumulation in cruciferous plants. Topics: Correspondence; protocols; laboratory reports; contracts; chemical analysis; protein sequencing. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 589

Stress Tolerance Genes

Description: Information on cell and gene technology as applied to improvement of salt tolerance, cold tolerance and disease resistance in plants. Topics: Correspondence; documents; protocols; laboratory reports; contracts; DNA analysis and synthesis. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 588

Support Services

Description: Information on on-going services to research inside and outside PBI. Records of the Administrative Office, the Research Illustration Group, the chemical analysis groups, the DNA analysis group, the Transgenic Plant Center, Plant Engineering Services and Purchasing are included. Topics: Correspondence; personnel and budget documents; progress reports and records of research; published research papers; records of operation of magnetic resonance and mass spectroscopy; records of building facilities and equipment; purchasing orders. Program Record Number: NRC PBI 560

◆ Steacie Institute for Molecular Sciences (Ottawa)

Inorganic Chemical Dynamics

Description: The group uses laser, molecular beam and surface techniques to study chemical dynamics emphasizing the chemistry and physics of coordinatively unsaturated metal centres, including atoms, radicals, clusters and van der Waals complexes. Current projects include: 1) preparation and properties of naked and derivatized metal clusters; 2) reaction kinetics of metal-centered reactions; 3) high resolution optical spectroscopy of small inorganic radicals, and 4) scanning tunneling microscopy. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 205

Molecular Selectivity

Description: The group is concerned with the application of physical and synthetic organic chemistry to the understanding of the initiation, impact, and control of free radical processes in living systems. Included are studies of biological autooxidation and its prevention by natural and synthetic antioxidants, of biokinetics and of metabolism of vitamin E. Features stressed are the identification and understanding of the underlying fundamental mechanisms, and relevance to medical diseases and disorders (cancer, heart disease, ischemia-reperfusion injury). Additionally, some non-radical research activity is focused on the mechanism of action of cholesterol esterases. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 195

Molecular Structures and Dynamics

Description: Characterization of naked metal and metal-containing clusters in condensed phases by ESR, NMR, ultraviolet, vibrational and photoelectron spectroscopies; studies of small metal-cluster chemical reactivity in relation to catalysis; studies of fullerenes and their reactivity. Study of order, disorder, molecular motion and structural evolution in solids, particularly host-guest supramolecular systems, vapour-deposited and high-pressure amorphized materials, using NMR and vibrational spectroscopies, calorimetry, diffraction and the latest techniques of computational chemistry. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 200

Organic Reaction Dynamics

Description: The group performs spectral, kinetic and thermodynamic characterization of short-lived organic and organometallic reaction intermediates in condensed phases. It studies mechanism and dynamics of free radical electron transfer reactions; photoprocesses in heterogeneous media; pico- and nanosecond laser flash photolysis with uv-visible and infrared transmission and uv-visible diffuse reflectance. Other techniques include ultrafast electrochemical measurements; photomodulation voltammetry, microelectrode cyclic voltammetry; and photoacoustic calorimetry. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 220

Theoretical Chemistry

Description: The group studies the dynamics of elementary chemical reactions and relaxation processes in molecules, clusters and crystals; specific examples are hydrogen tunneling, isomerization and radiationless transitions. These calculations are based on quantum-chemically computed vibrational force fields in ground and excited states and on the analysis of molecular spectra. In addition the group studies reaction kinetics in inhomogeneous systems. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 225

Ultrafast Phenomena

Description: Using nonlinear optical techniques, the group develops lasers with duration as short as a few optical periods. The application of these sources to atomic and plasma physics problems is a major component of the current research. The group is also developing methods to time resolve, and perhaps control, the photodissociation of simple molecules. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 530

Administration

Description: Documents on the operation of the different individual laboratory sections such as project planning and reports, program forecasts, research and development on industrial materials, travel and seminar information, replies to technical enquiries, and records on technical support — i.e., supplies and equipment, safety committee. Topics: Administration; liaison (with associations, industries, foreign countries, universities, federal departments, and provinces); Government Industrial Assistance Programs; finance; budget; operations-general; projects and project evaluations; tests; and technology. Program Record Number: NRC IMR 380

General-Use Series

Description: Information on the organization of international conferences — memberships, fees, minutes, annual reports regarding associations and societies; co-operation and liaison activities with universities, institutes, provincial and federal departments and agencies; commercial agreements with provincial research councils and federal government departments; interdepartmental committee correspondence and minutes; research agreements; correspondence, policy and guidelines on the Canadian Human Rights Act, status of women and access to information and privacy. Topics: Associations, clubs and societies; universities; institutes of technology; international conferences; commercial agreements; provincial governments; federal government departments; interdepartmental committees; Canadian Standards Association; publications; status of women; Canadian Human Rights Act; Access to Information Act and Privacy Act, Employment Equity, Advisory Board on Scientific and Technological Information; Scientific and Technological Information Services; research agreements. Program Record Number: NRC GEN 750

Personal Information Banks

Accounts Receivable

Description: These files record debit and credit entries in connection with National Research Council accounts receivable. Files include information on financial transactions and outstanding balances. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who have purchased goods and services offered by the National Research Council. Purpose: In addition to recording payment, records are used to follow up on overdue accounts. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000937 Bank Number: NRC PPU 045

Contracts between NRC and Individuals

Description: This bank contains the initial proposal and submission, evaluations and correspondence, details of contract, financial transactions and interim or final reports. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who submit proposals for work to be performed for the National Research Council. Purpose: To evaluate proposals, to process contracts, and to provide information for the verification of invoices, payments and scientific monitoring, and to administer contracts. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years after termination of the contract or two years after rejection of the proposal and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000939 Bank Number: NRC PPU 055

Deposit Accounts

Description: These files contain a record of credit balances of individuals in account with the National Research Council for the purchase of goods and services. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who have established a deposit account for the purchase of scientific and technical information. Purpose: Files are maintained for the purpose of recording debit and credit entries against deposit accounts established by private individuals. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000938 Bank Number: NRC PPU 050

Employment Applications

Description: This bank contains information on candidates available for employment at the National Research Council when vacancies arise. Records contain letters, completed application forms, applicant resumes, comments of interviewer, and letters of reference. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who apply for employment at the National Research Council. Purpose: To select candidates for vacancies at the National Research Council. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000940 Bank Number: NRC PPU 060

Industrial Research Assistance Program

Description: The records in this bank are used to support proposals for financial assistance to cover the costs of salaries for company research staff engaged in approved projects. Participating companies provide the research facilities and other expenses involved in the project and retain all titles or have rights to access to the results of the jointly-funded research. Class of Individuals: Directly-related employees of companies that submit proposals for financial assistance through this program. Purpose: To determine the amount of financial contribution to the company if the proposal is accepted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Accepted proposals are retained for 20 years. Unaccepted proposals are retained for 5 years. TBS Registration: 001683 Bank Number: NRC PPU 026

Information Dissemination

Description: Information in this bank is provided by the purchaser of publications, subscriptions, information or computerized services. Class of Individuals: Scientific community, contractors, architects, engineers and technicians. Purpose: To provide individuals with information on prepaid subscriptions, publications, or computerized services, and to assess and collect charges. Consistent Uses: This information is used to record financial transactions and update computerized mailing lists. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000944 Bank Number: NRC PPU 080

International Exchanges and Visits

Description: This bank contains applications from individuals who wish to visit France under the NRC/CNRS Scientific Co-operation Program or the France/Canada Exchange Agreement, recommendations, decisions of the selection committee, and related correspondence. Class of Individuals: Members of the scientific community. Purpose: To select individuals for these two programs and to implement administrative procedures connected with the exchange or visit. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the termination of exchange or visit, or two years after the date on which the application was rejected; and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000934 Bank Number: NRC PPU 030

Inventions: Submissions by Private Individuals

Description: This bank contains information on inventions submitted by individuals for assessment and scientific comments and patent protection advice provided by the National Research Council. Information includes the original submission, evaluation by scientific personnel where expertise was available, and the reply to the enquirer. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who request advice about their inventions. Purpose: To carry out an assessment and provide scientific comment and advice on inventions submitted by the general public. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000932 Bank Number: NRC PPU 010

Manuscripts for Publication

Description: These records contain manuscripts, forms and publishing department correspondence related to the printing of Council research journals. Full name, address, title of paper, name of journal to which the paper was submitted and date of submission are required for access. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have submitted manuscripts. Purpose: To record information relating to the publication of papers in research journals.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000936 Bank Number: NRC PPU 040

National Research Council and Committee Membership

Description: This bank contains background information, including the educational background, affiliation, publication list, and professional experience of individuals nominated for service on Council and its associated committees. Class of Individuals: Past and current members of Council and members of committees of Council. Purpose: To assist in the selection and appointment of members of the National Research Council and its committees. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records of persons who are or have been members of the Council and/or its committees are retained for 30 years and then transferred to the Archives Branch of the National Archives of Canada. TBS Registration: 000931 Bank Number: NRC PPU 005

Personal Letters of Recommendation by National Research Council Personnel Relating to Non-Staff Members

Description: This bank contains requests for recommendations and copies of letters of recommendation made by staff members for non-staff individuals. Class of Individuals: Members of the scientific and academic communities who ask for letters of recommendation. Purpose: To provide letters of recommendation to members of the scientific and academic communities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000933 Bank Number: NRC PPU 015

Requests to Access Personal Information

Description: This bank contains requests for access to personal information contained in personal information banks administered by the National Research Council. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have applied for access to personal information banks administered by the National Research Council. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to verify the identity of individual applicants and to process requests. Consistent Uses: To prepare statistics for annual reports required under the Privacy Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000943 Bank Number: NRC PPU 075

Research Associateship Program: Applicant Inventory

Description: Records contain application forms, curricula vitae, academic records, publications, letters of recommendation, personal characteristics and employment history. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have made application to the National Research Council for research associateships. Purpose: To select recipients of NRC research associateships. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000941 Bank Number: NRC PPU 065

Secondments and Exchanges Between the National Research Council and Outside Organizations

Description: This bank contains requests for secondment or exchange of personnel and memoranda leading to the approval or rejection of requests. Class of Individuals: Persons other than NRC employees who have been involved in exchanges or loans. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of exchanges and loans of personnel. Information is used to make decisions on these exchanges and loans. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for three years after the agreement ceases or after rejection of the proposal and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 000942 Bank Number: NRC PPU 070

Classes of Personal Information

The personal information contained in this class is distributed across a wide range of subject files. It is not used for administrative purposes, and is normally neither arranged nor retrieved by personal identifiers. The most common types of personal information contained in this class are name, address, and, in some cases, affiliation, educational background and experience. The information was collected through general enquiries, complaints, requests for assistance, and personal views and opinions directed by the public to the scientific laboratories; to the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information; to the Industrial Research Assistance Program regarding its assistance programs; and to the Council's supporting administrative branches such as Personnel and Administrative Services, Contract Services, Public Relations and Information Services, and External Relations. Individuals wishing to access information relating to themselves should provide specific details regarding:

- (1) the institute, branch, or individual to whom the correspondence was addressed;
- (2) the approximate date of the correspondence;
- (3) the subject matter;
- (4) the name of the program (if applicable); and
- (5) the file reference number, if available.

The retention periods for this class of personal information vary and are provided in the records schedules of the general subject files in which the information is stored.

Natural Resources Canada

Chapter 73

General Information

Background

Previously known as the Department of Energy, Mines & Resources and Forestry Canada, the Department of Natural Resources was created by the Department of Natural Resources Act on January 12th, 1995. Some branches of the Department have been in existence for more than a century.

On August 16th, 1995, the Department of Natural Resources was re-organized into four science-based sectors and one Corporate Services Sector. The mandate of the Department focuses on science and policy for the sustainable development and use of Canada's natural resources.

Responsibilities

Natural Resources Canada's objective focuses on the interests of Canada's natural resources industries such as: developing Canada's mineral, energy and forestry potential consistent with broader environmental and social objectives; promoting sustainable development of forests and coordination of national forest policy in close cooperation with the provinces and territories; conducting research, developing an appropriate regulatory framework and managing incentive programs; and, monitoring international developments and the domestic energy environment to ensure secure energy sources for Canadians.

Organization

The following description does not reflect the departmental structure announced on August 16, 1995.

The Department of Natural Resources Canada is organized into seven sectors and three branches: Canadian Forest Services Sector; Energy Sector; Geological Survey of Canada; Geomatics Canada; Mining Sector; Mineral and Energy Technology Sector and the Corporate Sector; Executive Coordination Branch; Communications Branch; and Audit and Evaluation Branch. There is also a crown corporation and several boards, commission, committees and councils which report to Parliament through the Minister of Natural Resources Canada.

♦ Audit and Evaluation Branch

The Audit and Evaluation Branch is responsible for the systematic review and assessment of the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of the departmental programs and their operations.

♦ Canadian Forest Service (CFS) Sector

The mission of the Canadian Forest Service (CFS) is: "To promote the sustainable development of Canada's forests and competitiveness of the Canadian forest sector for the well-being of present and future generations of Canadians." In an effort to increase understanding of the complexity of forest ecosystems, the CFS evaluates approaches to forest management, monitors forest health conditions and conducts research on issues of national and international significance such as biodiversity, the impact of atmospheric change on forests and climate change. Equipped with the scientific and technical expertise, the CFS plays a strong policy role in addressing national and international issues affecting the sustainable development of Canada's forests. To this end, the CFS brings together various stakeholders to develop common strategies and arrive at national consensus on forestry issues. The CFS also establishes links with other federal departments, provinces, industry and non-governmental organizations to better address issues such as international trade, market access and sustainable management of forests world-wide. It delivers its many services through a network of five national forest research centres and its Headquarters in the National Capital Region.

♦ Communications Branch

The Branch is responsible for monitoring public and media reaction to departmental initiatives and for providing a full range of communications services to the Minister, Deputy Minister and senior management. It also provides advice and helps different Sectors in the Department to plan and implement strategies for keeping the public informed.

♦ Corporate Services Sector

This Sector is responsible for providing financial, administrative, informatics, information management and support services to departmental operations so as to ensure accountability and control. Other responsibilities include: the development, implementation and provision of a full range of personnel policies, programs and services; providing information on environmental and socio-economic issues and analysis and advice at the strategic level on environmentally related concerns.

♦ Earth Sciences Sector

The Earth Sciences Sector rises from the recent reorganization of Natural Resources Canada and combines the former sectors of Geomatics Canada and the Geological Survey of Canada, along with the Polar Continental Shelf Project into a single administrative unit. GC, GSC and PCSP have retained their identity under the Earth Sciences umbrella.

Geological Survey of Canada:

The Geological Survey of Canada (GSC) is now part of the Earth Science Sector and fulfills a requirement of the Resources and Technical Surveys Act of 1949 and 1994 that the Minister "make a full and scientific examination of the geological structure and mineralogy of Canada". GSC is responsible to provide Canada with a comprehensive geoscience knowledge base contributing to economic development, public safety and environmental protection by acquiring, interpreting and disseminating geoscience information concerning Canada's landmass, including offshore. Aspects include mapping the regional geologic and tectonic framework of Canada's landmass and offshore; developing an understanding of the nature, quantity, distribution and formation of Canada's mineral and energy resources; developing an understanding of the contemporary geological processes affecting Canadian society; maintaining a National Geoscience Data-base (including appropriate archives and reference collections), and ensuring that all information is available as maps, reports or computerized databases in a timely fashion. These programmes are national in scope and carried out in every province and territory and in the offshore 200 mile Economic Zone, from each of the GSC's sites. Projects range from basic scientific research to the development of new methodologies and technologies for transfer to the private sector.

Geomatics Canada:

Geomatics Canada is now part of the Earth Sciences Sector and represents the principal presence of the government in matters relating to surveying, mapping and remote sensing. Geomatics Canada provides a reliable system of surveys, maps, remotely sensed data and geographically referenced information describing the Canadian Landmass, for use by our clients for the formulation of public policy, and for developing the infrastructure to support internationally competitive Canadian enterprises through the acquisition and dissemination of topographical and geographical information and remotely sensed data, the development and transfer of associated technologies to clients, and the provision of support for related international commercial activities.

♦ Energy Sector

The objective of the Energy Sector is to foster the sustainable development and safe and efficient use of Canada's energy resources with due regard to their economic, regional, international and environmental implications; to develop policies, strategies, and technologies; and to provide technical knowledge and advice to the energy industry and government as a basis for formulating policies and implementing regulations and enhancing job and wealth creation.

♦ Minerals and Metals Sector (MMS)

The Mineral and Metals Sector promotes the sustainable development and use of Canada's mineral and metal resources. The Sector develops policies and technologies and provides advice and expertise to industry and governments on issues affecting the industry. The Sector also administers the federal mandate for the Cape Breton Development Corporation.

♦ Strategic Planning and Coordination Branch SPCB

(Formerly the Executive Coordination Branch, Corporate Policy and Executive Services): Information relating to the SPCB which provides executive services in the area of Cabinet and Parliamentary relations and managing executive correspondence.

Information Holdings

Program Records

♦ Audit and Evaluation Branch

Audit and Evaluation

Description: Information relating to the assessment of all NRCan management systems and practices in order to analyze their effectiveness, use of protection of resources, etc., also includes the review and evaluation of all NRCan programs to assess their relevance and objectives.

Topics: Internal audit and program evaluation; internal audit methodology; auditor general audits; Treasury Board; Comptroller General; cooperative audits; project audits; departmental program evaluation. Program

Record Number: NRCan AEB 640

♦ Canadian Forest Service (CFS) Sector

CFS National Forestry Centres/Networks

Description: The CFS delivers much of its research and communicates the result through a system of 10 networks, involving five national research centres across Canada and within two key theme areas: understanding forest ecosystems and advancing sustainable development. This network system allows the CFS to address national and international issues while delivering programs through regionally-based research centres. The networks are better suited to create partnerships and alliances between the CFS and outside agencies, to undertake specific projects and to identify and address strategic national issues. The Research Centres are located in: Victoria, British Columbia; Edmonton Alberta; Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario; Québec, Québec; and Fredericton, New Brunswick. Each Centre is also interconnected to other parts of the forestry sector such as universities, private research facilities, international institutes, and non-governmental organizations. Topics: Each of the five centres has been designated as the "lead centre" for scientific leadership in the following 10 key priority areas within the CFS S&T program: Victoria — Effects of Forest Practices, and Landscape Management. Edmonton — Fire Management, Climate Change, and Socio-economic Research. Sault Ste. Marie — Pest Management Methods and Forest Ecosystem Processes. Québec — Forest Ecosystem Processes, Tree Biotechnology and Advanced Genetics. Fredericton — Forest Biodiversity and Forest Health. Program Record Number: NRCan CFS 004

Industry, Economics and Programs Branch (IEPB)

Description: Working with other federal departments and forest sector stakeholders, this Branch helps the CFS address key issues on trade, industrial policy and market access, and facilitates the continuing sustainable development of the forest industry. The Industry, Economics and Programs Branch is responsible for industrial liaison and relations and programs related to the forest industry and trade. This Branch provides direction to the CFS's five forestry centres and the other two Branches on matters regarding industry, trade and economics. The IEPB also gives forest economic and statistical advice and services, including support to projects such as the development of Criteria and Indicators, the State of the Forest Report, the National Forestry Database and other federal forestry mandated programs. Topics: Industry, economics and programs; FSAC; Forintek; National Association Liaison; Non-Tariff/Tariff Trade Issues PWN; Market Access (Building codes, eco-labeling); Regulatory Issues (Effluents, preservatives); Softwood Lumber; Timber Certification; Economic Studies Program; Support to the State of the Forest Report — Economics and Statistics; Support to C&I — Indicator Development; General Economic Intelligence; Trade and Environment Technical Support; National Forestry Database Management; Model Forest Network; Tree Plan Canada;

Aboriginal Forestry Program; Federal Lands. Program Record Number: NRCan CFS 002

Policy, Planning and International Affairs Branch (PPIAB)

Description: The Policy, Planning and International Affairs Branch is responsible for forest policy development and coordination, operational and strategic planning and international relations. The PPIAB gives direction and assistance to the CFS's five forestry centres and the other two Branches on the development and implementation of policy for all forestry activities in science, environmental and international affairs. This Branch also serves as liaison with the Strategic Planning and Coordination Branch, other Sectors of Natural Resources Canada and federal departments. Working closely with Foreign Affairs and International Trade Canada, the provincial and territorial governments and other forestry stakeholders, this branch helps the CFS continue its leadership role in international forestry initiatives. The PPIAB is responsible for the management of federal-provincial relations in the Canadian forest sector including initiatives involving the Canadian Council of Forest Ministers (CCFM). The PPIAB also fosters regional development and relations with Environmental Non-governmental organizations (ENGOs). Topics: Policy, planning and international affairs; Sustainable Development Strategy; CCFM (Canadian Council of Forest Ministers) Activities; CCFM Partnership Programs; State of the Forest Report; National Forest Strategy Coordination; Criteria & Indicators (C&I lead) — National and International; Secretariat to the Montreal Press; Environmental Affairs; Regional Development; Expenditures Management Process; Strategic Planning; Operational Planning; UNCSD (United Nations Commission on Sustainable Development) International Forestry; Convention on the International Trade of Endangered Species (CITES); Bilateral Agreements — Coordination; FAO Relations; Support to North American Forestry Commission; International Timber and Trade Organization. Program Record Number: NRCan CFS 001

Science Branch

Description: With the help of this Branch, the CFS forges productive partnerships with the science and technology community, resource management agencies, and stakeholder groups in order to meet common national and international objectives. The Science Branch not only provides information and functional direction on CFS Science and Technology (S&T) programs and issues, but it also ensures, in cooperation with the CFS's five national centres, the implementation of the new S&T strategic directions within the framework of the CFS Strategic plan. The CFS's S&T program promotes sustainable forest management and a competitive Canadian forest sector through the development and implementation of knowledge databases and technology. The Science Branch is also responsible for distributing information on the CFS S&T program and for the publication and distribution of national scientific documentation. As well, this Branch strives to identify business and marketing opportunities for the commercialization and transfer of forest technologies. Topics: S&T Coordination; FERIC; S&T Opportunities and Merit Awards; Commonwealth Institute of Biological Control; Plant Health and Quarantine; Coordination of CFS Involvement in Federal S&T Issues; Program Evaluation; International Union of Forest Research Organization; National S&T Advisory Board; Experimental Forests; S&T Management Framework; Research Scientist Promotions; S&T Publishing and Editing; S&T Agreements/MOU; CFS/NSERC Partnership Program; Graduate Student Supplements; ENFOR; Intellectual Properties; Commercialization; Technology Transfer; International Energy Agency; S&T Marketing. Program Record Number: NRCan CFS 003

♦ Communications Branch

Communications

Description: Information relating to the provision of information to be communicated to the public on federal policies, strategies and programs affecting energy, forestry, minerals, earth sciences and selected research and technology endeavours. Topics: Communications' automated systems and electronic equipment; associations, conferences and committees; contracts; evaluation studies; marketing; client services; publishing; publications design contracts; press clippings and releases; publications; employee newsletter, The Source; advertising; exhibitions and displays. Program Record Number: NRCan CB 620

♦ Corporate Services Sector

Assets Management and Administrative Services

Description: Information relating to the provision of general administrative services which reflect central and departmental guidelines. Aspects include management of departmental Real Property (lands, buildings and sites leased or owned by the Department), signage, as well as the Office of Environmental Affairs. Topics: Assets management and administrative services; assets planning; workplans and reports; mail and messenger services; parking; crown-owned living accommodation; master accommodation plans; long term capital plan; Accommodation information management systems; facilities operations; liaison with Public Works; service agreements; buildings and properties; conservation and health issues; emergency and safety procedures in buildings; tenant services; security — incidents, physical, personnel and clearances; vehicles; motor vehicle accidents; vehicle (fleet) management; audio-visual and graphic services; environment; environmental sciences; mandatory and voluntary environmental requirements; environmental compliance, auditing, evaluation and inspection; environmental strategies, management, protection, assessment process; strategic environmental assessment; cumulative impacts; environmental stewardship; greening of departmental operations; action plans; priority substances; environmental risk assessment and management; environmental toxicology; strategic options process; contaminated sites; remediation of contamination; toxic chemicals; accelerated reduction/elimination of toxins; waste management; composting; recycling; ozone depleting substances (ODSs); polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs); heavy metals; polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs); dioxins and furans; persistent organic pollutants (POPs); storage tanks; green procurement; environmental performance monitoring and reporting; environmental assessment public registry; natural resources and the environment; nuclear energy issues; water and wastewater; air issues; long range transport; acid rain; ocean dumping; land-use management; state of environment reporting; analytical chemistry; pollution prevention; ecosystem approach; due diligence; expert advice; national pollutants release inventory; national guideline, objectives and standards; occupational health and safety requirements; fire protection and prevention; dangerous substances management; investigations; associations and organizations; training; conferences; committees; and working groups. Note: Formerly Assets Management and Administrative Services, Environmental Affairs, Facilities Management and Security, and Strategic Planning, Policy and Systems, NRCan CSS 730, 750, 780, & 790 Program Record Number: NRCan CSS 003

Corporate Services Sector

Description: Information relating to the provision of management direction, policy, advice and comprehensive management support functions, systems and services to the Department. Topics: NRCan administration; legislation; regulatory reform legislation; associations and organizations; departmental authorities; campaigns and canvassing; ceremonies and celebrations; committees, task forces, working groups; corporations; conferences, meetings and seminars; consultants; inventions, patents and copyrights; legal documents and matters; circulars and directives; reports; domestic visits. Note: Formerly Natural Resources Canada Administration, NRCan CSS 700 Program Record Number: NRCan CSS 001

Financial Management

Description: Information relating to the provision of a decentralized financial management service to organizations throughout the Department, including the preparation of departmental operational plans and the distribution by allotment of appropriate funds from Treasury Board. Aspects include the procurement, leasing and inventory control of goods and services for organizations throughout the Department. Topics: Financial management; operational plans; financial analysis and planning; Mineral Development Agreements; reference levels; reductions and restraints; accounting and policy; accounts payable and receivable; advances; allotments; resource management; chequés and chequing; claims; financial commitment control; expenditures; cost recovery; estimates and budgets; fees; authorities; encumbrances; professional services contracts; specified purpose accounts; Treasury Board submissions; resource tracking system; hospitality; investments; loans; multi-year operational plans; public accounts; pay verification; financial reporting and information systems; financial reports; statistics and statements; revenue control; contracts; grants and contributions; awards; suppliers; taxes; travel allowances, expenses, and relocation; government financial system; ocean drilling program; passports and visas; goods and services; accounting and inventories; procurement of materiel and services; manuals and price lists; disposal and loan of equipment; sources of supply and services. Note: Formerly NRCan CSS 720 & 740 Program Record Number: NRCan CSS 004

Human Resource Services

Description: Information relating to the development, implementation and provision of a full range of personnel policies, programs and services to foster efficient human resources management in NRCan. Activities include the provision of complete and comprehensive services in the area of operations, program development, staff relations, human resources information management and management services. Topics: Staff relations and Compensation; human resources information management; career consulting services; classification and staffing; executive resourcing; organizational development; employment equity; human resources research and projects; training and development; official languages and human resources excellence; workforce adjustment; compensation and benefits and human resource operations units. Program Record Number: NRCan CSS 765

Information Management Branch

Description: Information relating to the development and implementation of sound information management (IM) practices in NRCan; promoting and providing information technology (IT) and central computing and support services; designing, developing and maintaining common administrative applications; developing and managing inter-sector and external data communication; providing IT telecommunications infrastructure for participating sectors; managing information holdings and supporting records offices; administering the Access to Information & Privacy Acts within the Department; providing voice telecommunications and Headquarters Library Services. Topics: Information management; Access to Information and Privacy Acts; inventory of electronic data; departmental central index; essential records program; information systems design, implementation and maintenance; service agreements; information evaluation and scheduling — authorities, accessions and transfers, disposal, storage facilities; historical records; work plans and reports; electronic information management systems; training; library services; information technology; contracts; local purchase orders; capital purchases; associations and organizations; committees; conferences; policy planning and coordination; information management plans; information technology systems plans; NRCan and Treasury Board information technology standards; computing study; central computing; computing facilities services and projects; computer hardware, software and operations; laser printing; micro-pool; data communications lines; telecommunications; telephones; information resource centre; corporate systems; consulting services; communications services; directories.

Note: Formerly Information Management and Information Technology, NRCan CSS 710 & 770 Program Record Number: NRCan CSS 002

◆ Earth Sciences Sector

Business Development

Description: Information relating to the Business Development corporate group whose principal functions include the provision of a consistent “business” framework for ESS, as well as providing assistance in the advancement of business opportunities for Canada’s geoscience and geomatics industries. In general terms, the group’s main responsibilities include the development, implementation and monitoring of business plans, policies, guidelines and procedures; the coordination of domestic and international business relations; and the coordination and provision of advice to line divisions on business related issues. The group also provides leadership in the management of the Sector’s Revolving Fund, as well as promotion of international business opportunities for ESS and its industry clients. Topics: Business development; reports; associations and organizations; liaison with companies, other departments, provinces and countries; committees; conferences; marketing; license agreements and patents; copyrights information. Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 005

Canada Centre for Remote Sensing

Description: The Canada Centre for Remote Sensing (CCRS) uses and develops state-of-the-art operational systems to collect, produce, correct and analyze data from Earth-observation satellites and other sources. CCRS cooperates with resource management agencies and value-added industry to establish and demonstrate improved remote sensing information extraction techniques. Also includes information on the development and maintenance of national geographic information systems (GIS); national geographic information databases; and research to improve GIS technology and information used to promote and coordinate the development of a Canadian GIS industry. Topics: Reports; Committees; conferences; Canadian Partnerships and Liaison — Industry, associations and organizations (Canadian Space Agency (CSA), Radarsat International Inc., Canadian Geomatics Industry, Geomatics Industry Association of Canada (GIAC)), and other government departments; International Earth Observation Partnerships & Liaison, including but not limited to: European Space Agency (ERS Radar Satellites), NASDA (Japan — JERS Radar Satellite), SpotImage (France — SPOT Satellite), National Aeronautics and Space Administration’s NASA/National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration’s NOAA (US — Landsat & Meteorological Satellites), other international Remote sensing centres; International Technology Transfer Partners and Liaison, including but not limited to: Canadian International Development Agency CIDA,

International Development Research Centre IDRC, Foreign Affairs and International Trade Canada FAITC, World Bank, United Nations, NATO, Interamerican Development Bank, Asia Development Bank, Commonwealth Science Council, PAIG, SELPER; National Remote Sensing support programs; Scientific and industrial liaison; economic and concept design studies; mission requirements, technology development, and dissemination of information (WWW & Multimedia); algorithm and methodology development, image processing and data integration research; client services and communications; licensing and intellectual property; revenue generation activities; applications research, development, demonstration, training and technology transfer on effective use of RADAR in fields including agriculture, forestry, geology, cartography & mapping, hydrology, ice & oceans, coastal zone management, international development assistance; image mapping, environmental monitoring, global change, local environment research, land information management, data fusion, multimedia applications development, physics research; EO ground Receiving station operations; EO data reception and processing, SAR digital processor development; user systems development; EO data archive and distribution development and maintenance; spectroscopy; radiometry; sensor development; sensor calibration and validation; internal informatics and computer/network services and support; GIS development; geo-data access systems development; implementation and management; geo-information dissemination; data interchange formats; geodata marketing and needs assessment; Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP); program impact assessment; Departmental policy and planning liaison; market assessment. Note: Formerly NRCan GC 418, 470, 475, 480, 485, 490, 495, 500 and 505 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 001

Geodetic Survey

Description: Information relating to overall management of a national geodetic survey network which is fundamental to all forms of surveying. They are responsible for providing and maintaining spatial reference systems, standards and national networks of control points for Canada in support of geomatics applications. Geodetic Survey ensures the availability of spatial referencing information, expertise and services that are responsive to client needs. Aspects include research and development of standards, measurements of latitude, elevation and geometry of the earth’s surface and its physical anomalies.. Topics: Geodetic Surveys; operations; unsolicited proposals; status reports; grants and contributions; associations and organizations; liaison with companies, departments, provinces and countries; committees; conferences; memorandums of understanding; Canada-Nfld land surveying and mapping agreement; territorial land use regulations; baselines; geodetic data management; geodetic data analysis and adjustment; geodetic data services; North American Datum and Adjustment (NAD83); North American Vertical Datum and Adjustment (NAVD88); NAVD88 symposia; US national geodetic survey involvement in NAVD88; geodetic field surveys; surveying equipment and instruments; Inertial Survey System (ISS); levelling systems; global positioning system; positional control; primary horizontal control; primary vertical control; satellite Doppler; supplementary control; very long baseline interferometry; geodetic systems development; contracting-out; source list for control survey contractors; geodetic projects; internal research projects; gravity; gravity — surveys and projects, survey systems development and instrumentation, standards, data base, maps, international liaison & projects, mathematical methods applications, and crustal evolution applications. Note: Formerly NRCan GC410 and GSC 360 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 003

Legal Surveys

Description: Information relating to the management and regulation of all surveys carried out in Canada Lands, as stipulated in the Canada Lands Surveys Act. Canada Lands include all land in the Territories that is not privately owned, Indian reserves, national parks and the offshore. Information relating to the maintenance and regulation of the boundaries between Canada and United States, including the positioning of boundary line points, settlement of disputes and jurisdictional questions, regulation of construction and removal of boundary obstructions.

Topics: Legal surveys, operations and meetings; status reports; monitoring results of plans of surveys; matrices reports; analysis of completed survey reports; projects; survey information requests; grants and contributions; associations and organizations; Surveys Records Information System; liaison with companies, other departments, provinces and countries; committees and conferences; modernization and standards; memorandum of understanding; Board of Examiners for Canada Lands Surveyors; contracts; Indian reserves surveys; Indian reserve survey — legal matters; native land claims; Indian Reserves name changes; national and historic parks and sites; bird sanctuaries and wildlife areas; rights of way for pipelines, roads, and transmission lines in the territories; territorial resources base mapping; territorial mining surveys; settlements site surveys; interprovincial and territorial boundary commissions and surveys; international boundary surveys; coordinated survey areas; oil and gas — grid areas; aerial photography surveys; survey information and procedures; offshore survey information and procedures; manual of instructions for the Survey of Canada Lands; intergovernmental and interdepartmental agreements; acts and regulations; description of electoral districts; North American Datum and Adjustment; Offshore oil and gas surveys; survey and mapping research and development; legal survey monument coordinate data base; surveys records depository; International Boundary Commission; International and offshore boundary issues; boundary regulation; International boundary field operations; geographical coordinates of boundary monuments; Indian Reserves Boundaries. Note: International Boundary Commission is now part of Legal Surveys Division. Formerly NRCan GC 405 and 425. Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 004

Mapping and Services Branch

Description: Information relating to the management of the program responsible for the formulation and maintenance of national standards for mapping and for the production of topographical, topomymic and aeronautical information in Canada. Information relating to mapping of the Canadian landmass in detail, showing relief elevation, lakes, rivers, roads, buildings, airports and canals, and including names of features and places.

Topics: Mapping services; grants and contributions; unsolicited proposals; status reports; associations and organizations; liaison with companies, other government departments, provinces, and countries; industry support; committees; conferences; partnerships; foreign projects; research and development; National Topographic Data Base (NTDB); Canadian Road Network (CRN); National Topographic Series of maps (NTS); arctic and northern program; maps and mapping; remote sensing; topographical mapping; contract mapping; flood risk contract mapping; digital topographical mapping; data conversion; data structuring; data revision; geographical information systems; new mapping; nomenclature and toponymy; quality control; quality assurance; revision mapping; map derivation; standards and specifications; survey control; aerial photography; aerial survey data base; data and map distribution; distributors; user support; inquiries; aeronautical charting; flight information; instrument flight rules products (IFR); Canada flight supplement; water aerodrome supplement; areas, regions and zones; visual flight rules (VFR) product; charts; Canadian Aeronautical Charts System (CANACS); Canadian Geographical Names Data Base (CGNDB); Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names (CPCGN); technical services; imaging; reprographic material; pre-press printing. Note: Formerly Canada Centre for Mapping and PR Number NRCan CG 408, 415, 420 & 430 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 02

Minerals and Regional Geoscience

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of the Minerals and Regional Geoscience Branch activities whose responsibilities are the mapping and interpreting the geology of the Canadian Shield and Cordilleran regions; documenting and interpreting the deep geology of Canada's continental crust; operating national observatories in seismology, geodynamics and geomagnetism; conducting national mapping programs of the earth's magnetic fields; setting standards for and undertaking contracted aeromagnetic surveys; providing expert knowledge and information on natural hazards such as earthquakes and magnetic storms; providing expertise on the nature and origin of mineral deposits of Canada, including the development of innovative exploration guidelines and techniques; providing essential information on mineral deposits to land-use planning and policy formulation; setting national standards for, and undertaking, contracted regional geochemical surveys and airborne radiometric surveys. Topics: Committees; conferences; liaison; associations and organizations; field work; research and development, projects; Mineral Development Agreements; Unsolicited Proposals; Boundary Disputes; Juan de Fuca geoscience studies; library, publications; seismology; Canadian Seismograph Networks, Eastern Canadian Telemetered Network, Western Canadian Telemetered Network, strong motion seismograph network, Yellowknife geophysical observatory; seismological systems development and instrumentation, data centre, Canadian Seismograph Network — Seismograms; earthquake studies and seismic hazards; seismological earth structure studies; geoscience of nuclear explosions; geomagnetism, Canadian Magnetic Observatory Network, geomagnetic systems development and instrumentation, earth structure studies; palaeomagnetism; geodynamics, Geophysical Data Centre, Canadian Crustal Motion Network, deep earth processes and global change, regional crustal dynamics; aeromagnetism, survey contracts, standards, maps, applications; continental geoscience; geological maps; geochronology; petrology; paleontology; exploration geophysics; radiation geophysics; borehole geophysics; Skyvan aircraft; geochemistry; National Geochemical Reconnaissance Surveys; information systems; mineral deposits geology; International Strategic Minerals Inventory; mineralogy and analytical chemistry; national collections; information services; resource assessments; information bank; metallogenic studies. Note: Formerly NRCan GSC 355, 360, 370 and 390 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 009

Office of the Chief Geoscientist

Description: The Office of the Chief Geoscientist is responsible for coordinating and reporting on the science programs of the sector, including priority setting and long term planning, identifying areas of synergy among program components, preparing sector wide science plans, and facilitating new program initiatives; liaising on scientific matters with client, partner and stakeholder groups, both internal and external to NRCan, with other federal and provincial government departments, universities, industry, and international geoscience programs and agencies; providing science advice to the Assistant Deputy Minister. Topics: Liaison, domestic and international; new technology and international programs; research and development, projects; Industrial Research Agreements Program; Panel on Energy Research and Development; Unsolicited Proposals; Foreign Aid Projects; Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) Geoscience Aid Projects. Note: Formerly NRCan GSC 350 and GC 400 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 006

Polar Continental Shelf Project (PCSP)

Description: Information relating to the management and overall functions of the Polar Continental Shelf Project. It includes provision of coordinated logistic support to public and private sector groups, provision of information on scientific operations to the scientific community and local inhabitants. Topics: Polar Continental Shelf Project; Arctic sciences; native land claims; committees; conferences; PCSP logistical support, base operations, field activities, land use permits and research licences, radio and navigational systems, goods and services, aircraft, fuel, and vehicles. Note: Formerly NRCan GSC 435 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 010

Policy, Planning and Information Services

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of the Policy, Planning and Information Services Branch activities whose mandate is to provide leadership and a central focus for the administrative, information, policy and planning functions for the Sector; publishing and distributing the scientific output of the GSC; coordinating internal and external communications; providing library and information services and managing the information technology infrastructure; delivering administrative services for the National Capital Region; accountable with other groups for Sector planning processes, providing policy analysis and development and support to the Assistant Deputy Minister in carrying out the Sector's mandate. Topics: Committees; conferences; federal/provincial relations; strategic planning; branch management; geoscience information; library and services, exchange agreements, liaison, communications technical services; National Geoscan; exhibits; advertising. Note: Formerly NRCan GSC 350, 365 and GC 400 Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 007

Sedimentary and Marine Geoscience

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of the Sedimentary and Marine Geoscience Branch activities whose responsibilities are the mapping and interpreting the Appalachian regions; providing expertise in near-surface geology, in natural terrain hazards, geomorphology and glaciology, with special emphasis on public safety and the environment; providing expert knowledge on the distribution, geotechnical properties, and economic use of the unconsolidated materials at the Earth's surface; undertaking coastal and offshore geoscientific surveys; providing assessments of the hazards and environmental quality of Canada's extensive coastal and offshore regions; providing expert geological, geochemical and geophysical information on the coastal zone, seabed, onshore and offshore sedimentary basins and crustal processes; providing the geoscience knowledge base from which to make assessments of oil, gas and coal resources throughout Canada, both onshore and offshore; providing the principal focus for research and collections in paleontology and palynology. Topics: Committees; conferences; liaison; associations and organizations; field work; surveys; research and development; Program for Industry Laboratory Projects; Panel on Energy Research and Development; Unsolicited Proposals; Boundary Disputes; Frontier Geoscience Program; research projects; ocean mining and research; oil and gas resources and exploration; basin analysis; environmental marine geology; terrain sciences, environmental studies; publishing and editing; Nuclear Fuel Waste Management Program; terrain dynamics, permafrost research, transportation and hydrocarbon development; geothermics; geothermal energy; quaternary environments, paleoecology and radiocarbon laboratories; sedimentology research; quaternary geology; research grant agreements; federal/provincial agreements, mineral development agreements; coal geology; paleontology, calibration testing and facilities; petroleum geology, geochemistry, resources, Petroleum Resources Appraisal Secretariat; regional geology, geochemistry, resources, arctic islands, mainland. Note: Formerly NRCan GSC 380, 385 and 395

Program Record Number: NRCan ESS 008

Geological Survey of Canada:

Mineral Resources

Description: Information relating to the management and operations of Mineral Resources activities which are to provide scientific and technical support services for Geological Survey of Canada and to maintain a national information base of Canada's non-hydrocarbon mineral resources and deposits. Topics: Mineral resources, publishing and editing; exploration geophysics, instrumentation research and development, calibration testing and facilities, special projects, skyvan aircraft equipment and use; radiation and borehole geophysics; exploration geochemistry; national geochemical reconnaissance surveys; mathematical application in geology; mineral resources information systems; mineral deposits geology; international strategic minerals inventory; mineralogy and analytical chemistry; national collections; rock and mineral information services; regional mineral resources assessments; uranium resources evaluation and information bank; uranium reconnaissance program; regional metallogenic studies; mineral resources special projects. Program Record Number: NRCan GSC 355

♦ Energy Sector

Conservation and Non-Petroleum (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the overall management of the energy conservation and non-petroleum sources activities to ensure the development of adequate, and secure sources of non-petroleum energy to meet Canada's energy requirements and to develop and maintain policies and programs for the efficient use and conservation of energy. Topics: (CN series) conservation and non-petroleum; energy issues; energy research and development; non-petroleum energy sources; Uranium Canada Limited; 5 year modernization program; Remote Community Demonstration Program; Accelerated Demonstration of Solar Domestic Water Heater Program phase 1 and 2; Purchase and Use of Solar Heating Program; Solar Domestic Hot Water Program phase 3, 4, 5 and 6; Alternative Energy Enderdemo Program; International symposium on alcohol fuels; ridesharing; Federal Vanpool Program. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 245

Conservation and Renewable Energy (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the planning and management of activities in support of the promotion of energy conservation and the development of renewable energy resources in order to meet Canada's energy requirements and other economic, social, regional and environmental objectives. Topics: (CE series) Conservation and renewable energy; memorandum of understanding; energy research and development, panel, task one — taxation; transportation energy; regional operation, energy, promotional activities; national conservation and alternative energy initiatives; economics of energy conservation in Canada; program sector strategic planning; program review and evaluation; urban systems analysis; energy activities; residential sector energy conservation; contracts; transportation fuels; outreach programs; home energy; home energy conservation codes and standards; energy conservation, industrial sector, residential sector; indoor air quality; solar energy; home energy technology and industry, building issues and training and seminars; new housing; R-2000 Home Program; residential technology and industry development contracts; medium and high-rise apartments; industrial energy; task forces, commercial sector energy conservation, agricultural sector; industrial energy data base and analysis; industrial task forces council; industrial energy techniques, equipment and technologies; waste management and resource recovery; energy issues affecting federal energy management; energy conservation — codes and standards; energy pricing and taxation; renewable energy; energy conservation technology; task four of the Panel on Energy Research and Development; Solar Energy Development Program; small and low head hydro technology research and development project; geothermal technology research and development project; active solar technology research development and demonstration project; passive solar technology research development and demonstration project; photovoltaic technology research and development project; wind technology research and development project; Solar Domestic Hot Water Demonstration Program, phase seven, eight; Bioenergy Development Program; PEI Alternative Energy Development Program; Canada/ Nova Scotia Energy Conservation Subsidiary Agreement; Remote Community Demonstration Program; (CR series) Canertech; technology transfer and demonstration; commercial sector energy conservation; energy issues; energy conservation issues; energy research and development; liaison on technology transfer and demonstration; solar energy; residential sector energy conservation; arctic and northern housing; new housing; socio-economics impact of energy conservation; transportation and urban sector energy conservation; Energy Management and Technology Transfer Program; federal energy programs; Atlantic Energy Conservation Investment Program; Biomass Energy Loan Guarantee Program; Canadian Home Insulation Program; consumer education programs; Federal Energy Management Program; Internal Energy Conservation Program; surveys workshops information and monitoring; Industrial

Conversion Assistance Program. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 310

Energy Efficiency

Description: Information relating to the advice, development and delivery of programs concerning the efficient use of energy in Canada; and the adoption of economic and environmentally attractive options for use of more efficient energy using technologies and alternative fuels. Topics: Efficiency and alternative energy — policy development and analysis, initiatives, models and data base, marketing and communications activities; energy efficiency and diversity initiatives; energy efficiency and the environment; appliance energy efficiency; energy conservation standards; energy efficiency training; industrial/commercial energy efficiency; environment; federal buildings initiatives; national energy retrofit program; R-2000 Home Program; builder education program and training; Canadian Home Builders Association international activities; marketing and information; Canadian Home Builders Association contract management; alternative energy; biomass energy; bioenergy development program; transportation energy; transportation energy — database; alcohol transportation fuels; Methanol Demonstration Program; gaseous transportation fuels; propane transportation fuels; compressed natural gas (CNG) transportation fuels; CNG Vehicle Grant Program; CNG Fuelling Station Program; liquefied natural gas transportation fuels; hydrogen transportation fuels; PERD Task Five — New Liquid Fuels; liquid hydrocarbon fuel; liquid synthetic transportation fuels; transportation systems; Driver Outreach Program; vehicles; aircraft; marine vehicles; railways; road vehicles; emission standards; road vehicle engine systems; fuel consumption standards program; trucks. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 200

Energy Policy

Description: Information relating to energy policy, which encompasses the coordination of the review and analysis of policy objectives and instruments, and the analysis, development and coordination of new energy policy recommendations and the analysis of those recommendations with particular reference to revenue sharing, fiscal policy, project economics, industry investment and rates of return including provincial fiscal regimes and energy corporations. Includes workplans and internal meetings. Topics: Policies — Federal Economic, Energy Trade, Federal Energy, Public views; strategic planning; committees, regulatory boards and agencies, briefings; relations; federal government priorities; energy research and development; energy security; industry assistance programs; energy and the environment; Canadianization; Cooperative Energy Corporation; Cooperative Energy Development Corporation; crown corporations; issues and projects relating to petroleum, oil, natural gas, electricity, uranium, nuclear and coal; international energy relations; domestic organization and agencies; Petro-Canada International Assistance Corporation; international conferences; Canadian committees of the world energy conference; energy relations — by countries; liaison on Canadian energy commodities, policies, budgets and fiscal policy; international energy commodities comparisons; international organizations; visits and protocol; Economic and financial analysis; consultants and contracts; reports; financial data in support of the Energy Sector; analysis techniques; energy industry analysis; energy revenues forecast; financial, fiscal and supply analysis models; fiscal analysis; energy market analysis; Federal/Provincial agreements; energy supply and project analysis; petroleum resources; pricing; reserves; resources and production; macroeconomic analysis; monitoring and information systems; energy statistics and publications; megaproject monitoring; International Energy Agency (IEA); supply and demand refinery feedstock survey; Petroleum Monitoring Agency (PMA); monitoring of the coal industry; petroleum industry; energy research and development survey; estimates and forecasts in petroleum industry; quarterly industrials corporations survey in petroleum industry; ownership and control in petroleum industry; survey questionnaires in petroleum industry; special studies drilling fund study; taxation study; (EP series) energy policy analysis; corporate development; energy issues; National Energy Program; non-petroleum energy sources; petroleum energy resources; energy conservation; Energy Security Act; energy policy planning; federal energy planning; effect of federal energy policies on northern development; Beaufort Sea petroleum planning; corporate development; crown corporations; energy envelope; Energy Deputies Committees; industrial benefits; alternative energy sources; coal; electricity; electricity exports and generation; nuclear — issues, export, heavy water industry, industry review and policy review; petroleum — industry downstream, downstream marketing, downstream refining and downstream upgrader; natural gas; natural gas exports; Petroleum Incentives Program; uranium; uranium exports. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 161

Energy Research and Development

Description: Information relating to the development of federal research and development policies to ensure that Canada has the necessary research resources to support national energy strategies. Topics: Office of Energy Research and Development (OERD); planning; information coordination; library services; publications; associations and organizations; national energy research, development and demonstration programs review; committees; conferences; Alberta — Canada Energy Resources Research Fund (ACERRF); federal-provincial demonstration agreements; Interdepartmental Panel on Energy Research and Development (PERD) — meetings — program evaluation — tasks and programs — proposals and funding. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 255

Energy Research and Development Tasks and Programs

Description: Information relating to the development and implementation of plans for research and development activity in response to energy research policy and strategy, and to the coordination and administration of the interdepartmental research and development program. It includes the management and allocation of resources for projects that will help achieve and sustain domestic energy self sufficiency. Topics: Energy efficiency — Task 1; industrial energy research and development (IERD); advisory board meetings; energy efficiency — industry program; heat transfer fluid flow service; Development and Demonstration of Resources and Energy Conservation Technology (DIRECT); National Incinerator Testing and Evaluation Program (NITEP); industrial process electro-technology; agriculture and food; fisheries; energy efficiency — buildings — transportation — energy systems; coal — task 2; international coal liquefaction; coal technologies — coal environment; fusion — task 3; fusion international; magnetic confinement — tokamak; fusion materials/engineering — Canadian Fusion Fuels Technology Project (CFFTP); renewable energy and generic environment — task 4; hydraulics; active solar; passive solar; photovoltaic; bioenergy; wind; geothermal; generic environment; alternative transportation fuels — task 5; hydrocarbons enhancement; bitumen and oil recovery; fuel use; hydrogen and energy storage; alternative transportation fuels — environment; oil, gas and electricity — task 6; geoscientific research and development; marine engineering; offshore geotechnics; materials; transportation of oil and gas; environment; electrical research and development; coordination and contributions. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 256

Energy Resources

Description: Information relating to the development and efficient use of oil and natural gas liquids, the development and implementation of federal policies associated with the interprovincial and international trade of natural gas, and contingency plans for the control and regulation of emergency production, distribution and use of petroleum resources, the administration of oil and gas exploration and production activities on frontier lands, and the provision of analysis and advice regarding all aspects of electrical energy to effectively and efficiently implement policies relating to electrical energy, provide effective information services to the public and manage the federal government's contribution to the Canadian Electrical Association's research and development program.

Topics: Oil and gas; committees; associations, institutes and societies; legislation and regulations; petroleum energy issues; oil supply electronic data systems; emergency oil inventory; domestic oil export pricing, taxes and charges; oil imports; domestic oil in industry, pricing and supply and demand; domestic heavy crude oil supply and demand; domestic oil transportation; crude oil and petroleum products; supply surveillance reports; natural gas liquids; Propane Distribution System Expansion Program; international oil markets; international world energy market; petroleum utilization; petroleum products marketing; petrochemical industry processing; natural gas — Canadian exports, fiscal regime, industry information program and major projects; pipeline — projects,

Construction Cost Task Force, pipeline review project, marketing, pricing, supply and demand; provincial activities; Natural Gas Market Development Incentive Program, Natural Gas Laterals Program; Natural Gas Transportation Assistance Program; energy emergency planning; Energy Supplies Allocation Board (ESAB); IEA allocation systems test; allocation program; rationing program; National Emergency Agency for Energy (NEAE); North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO); energy demand restraint measures, interprovincial advisory committee on energy, liaison; crude oil and petroleum products allocation planning; ESAB allocation system test; replacement of fuels; rationing program. (PT series) Natural Gas Distribution System Expansion Program; Gas Marketing Assistance Program; Oil Pricing and Compensation Program; petroleum compensation; pipeline companies; Restricted Trade Practices Commission; domestic transfer compensation; Domestic Transfer Inspection Program; exchange compensation for domestic and imported petroleum; Oil Import Compensation Program; asphalt imports; carbon black feedstock imports; heavy fuel oil imports; special compensation; petroleum levies; Canadian ownership special charge petroleum levy; petroleum compensation charge; transportation fuel compensation recovery charge; new oil reference price; program for pentane plus, synthetics oil; reference oil pricing; special old oil price; Frontier lands management; Canada/Newfoundland Offshore Petroleum Board (CNOPB); Canada/Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Board (CNSOPB); offshore oil and gas; international treaties and agreements; maritime boundaries; benefit plans and studies; oil and gas development projects; rights management administration; exploration agreements; licenses; assessment of oil and gas resources; electricity; energy issues; Panel on Energy Research and Development — Task Six, Conventional Energy Systems; international electrical energy; electrical utilities; Canadian electrical energy economics and finance; supply and demand; technology; Lower Churchill electricity development; Annapolis River Tidal Project; Coleson Cove Conversion Study; Churchill Falls dispute between Quebec and Newfoundland; Lepreau One Nuclear Project; nuclear energy and exports; fusion; heavy water; nuclear power; Point Lepreau Two Nuclear Project. Note: Formerly Oil and Gas, Frontier Lands and Electrical Energy Program Record Number: NRCan ES 195

Energy Technology

Description: Information relating to energy research and development to ensure the availability to Canada of adequate technology for the extraction, processing, use and conservation of energy resources, such as oil, gas, coal and uranium. Topics: Coal and energy research and development projects; efficiency and alternative energy technology; liaison; conservation; renewable energy; project selection and monitoring; technology transfer and marketing; energy diversification research laboratory; Office of Coordination and Technical Research; Federal Industrial Boiler Program; Industry Energy Research and Development Program; Class 34 Program — Accelerated

Capital Cost Allowance. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 205

Siting Task Force for Low-Level Radioactive Waste in Ontario

Description: Information created or received at the corporate level on the establishment of the task force which was initiated by the Minister to implement an innovated process which will lead to the establishment of a long-term low-level radioactive waste management facility for Ontario. Topics: Siting task force on low-level radioactive waste in Ontario; reports; memorandum to Cabinet; requests for proposal; planning process; committee; guidelines; liaison; liaison with federal government departments, crown corporations, regional governments and communities; media relations; regional information sessions; community sessions and workshops; public relations; distribution program; correspondence program. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 320

Uranium and Nuclear Energy

Description: Information relating to the provision of advice and the formulation of policies to ensure that Canadian uranium resources and nuclear energy industries make optimal contributions to the country's economic development by providing a secure and economical source of energy and by realizing export opportunities. Topics: Uranium and nuclear energy; research and development; international uranium and nuclear issues; Uranium Institute; International Uranium and Nuclear Conference; committees and working groups; nuclear safeguards and non- proliferation agreements; uranium; Uranium Resource Appraisal Group (URAG); exploration and production; ownership of uranium industry; processing and refining; enrichment and reprocessing; exports; Uranium Exports Review Panel (UERP); supply and demand; radioactive waste management. Program Record Number: NRCan ES 220

♦ Minerals and Metals Sector (MMS)

Canadian Exploration and Development Incentive Program (CEDIP) (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the Canadian Exploration and Development Incentive Program (CEDIP) established to encourage oil and gas exploration and development activities on Canada lands and offshore areas including the development of policy and regulations and the determination of individuals' and qualified corporations' eligibility for reimbursement of approved expenditures in this area. Topics: Automated Incentive Management System (AIMS); acts and regulations; status reports; committees; conferences; liaison activities; communications; operations; quality control; financial payments and controls; monitoring; forecasting of expenditures; evaluation; application assessment; annual expense limit control; technical services; audits; interpretation and rulings of act and legislation; training and development; consultations and inquiries. Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 596

Canadian Exploration Incentive Program (CEIP) (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the Canadian Exploration Incentive Program (CEIP) established to encourage mining, oil and gas exploration and development activities on Canada lands and offshore areas including the development of policy and regulations and the determination of individuals' and qualified corporations' eligibility for reimbursement of approved expenditures in this area. Topics: Automated Incentive Management System (AIMS); Automated Exploration Incentive System (AXIS); acts and regulations; status reports; committees; conferences; liaison activities; communications; operations; quality control; financial payments and controls; monitoring; forecasting of expenditures; evaluation; annual expense limit control; technical services; interpretations on rulings for CEIP act and regulations; audits; training and development; policy; consultations and inquiries. Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 595

Canadian Ownership and Control Determination (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the development and maintenance of policies, systems, procedures and regulations to administer the Canadian Ownership and Control Determination (COCD) Act. Includes receiving, processing and certifying applications for the Canadian Ownership Rate and Control Status Program. Topics: Canadian Ownership and Control Determination (COCD) corporate information; COCD guidebook; COCD operations; COCD committees; COCD conferences; COCD operations reports; Canadian ownership rate and control status programs (COR/CS); COR/CS documentation; COR/CS certificates; COR/CS guidelines; COR/CS operating procedures. Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 115

Canadian Ownership and Control Determination Policy (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the development and maintenance of policies, precedents, and special studies in administering the Canadian Ownership and Control Determination (COCD) Act and Regulations in order to encourage increased Canadianization of the petroleum industry. Topics: Canadian Ownership and Control Determination (COCD) policy committees; COCD policy conferences; COCD policy reports; COCD Act; COCD Act interpretation; COCD Act qualified applicants; Canadian ownership rate and control status determination; COCD Act applications, certificates and administration; COCD Act disclosure of information; COCD Act regulation-making authority; COCD Act enforcement; COCD Act judicial review and transmission provisions; Canadian ownership and control determination regulations; COCD Regulations interpretation and applications; specified Canadian ownership rates; Canadian ownership rates other than specified rates and rates of insurance companies and trust; COCD regulations administration; Canadian ownership rates of insurance companies; Canadian ownership rates of trust companies; COCD regulations schedules. Program Record Number: NRCan MSS 120

Economic and Financial Analysis

Description: Information relating to developing and recommending federal fiscal, financial and economic policies; providing detailed information and analysis to potential investors in Canada and abroad; and providing advice and support to Department of Finance, Revenue Canada and other federal departments in implementing policies affecting the minerals and metals sector. Topics: Mineral economic analysis; economic and financial analysis operations (EFAB), contracts, mining taxation — international comparisons; conferences; memoranda to Cabinet; economic and tax briefings/presentations; federal government policies; federal government house standing committees; environmental issues; mineral exploration and mine development studies; federal government committees, task forces and working groups; international investment climate for mining and mineral activities, international projects; associations and organizations; Mining Association of Canada (MAC); Prospectors and Developers Association of Canada (PDAC); Coal Association of Canada; corporation mergers acquisitions and strategic alliances; interdepartmental, provincial, and international relations; intergovernmental working group IGWG task force on mineral investment climate competitiveness — Mines Ministers Conference (MMC); foreign ownership/control; Queen's Center for Resource Studies (CRS); Economic Analysis Division (EAD), database renewals and negotiations; federal/provincial survey of mines and concentrators; concentrators database and mines database management; EAD factor cost studies; EAD mining community issues; competitive cost studies by commodity, studies by stage; competitive position industry studies; non-ferrous smelter study; US Bureau of Mines (USBM); production capability assessment (perspective); reserves, productions, exploration assessments; mine investment, mineral economic forecast/commentaries; cost benefit analysis; unsolicited proposals; free trade studies; world trade mineral system (WTMS); financial corporate analysis; financial markets and investment community; flow-through shares, monitoring programs, limited partnerships; mineral exploration statistics; tax policy analysis; mining taxation media commentaries; federal income tax rules and provisions; mineral industry federal income tax rules and provisions; oil and gas federal income tax rules and provisions; federal, foreign, US, tax reform; federal budgets; provincial income and mining taxation; provincial tax reforms and budgets changes; US and Australia tax rules; commodity taxation; goods and services tax (GST); mining industry acts and regulations; mineral trade taxation issues; special studies and projects on mining taxation issues; intergovernmental working group on the mineral industry (IGWG) tax sub-committee; mine reclamation expenditures — taxation and funding issues; Revenue Canada issues; tax models; tax policy analysis of federal mineral tax cases; EFAB informatics which include SoftAccess, Internet, On-Line databases; mineral and metal information services, statistics division (MMSD) operations, corporation information, information requests; mineral statistics (production, trade, consumption, exploration, prices), questionnaires; mineral statistics information exchange with associations, commodity profiles; Federal/Provincial committees on mineral and mining statistics, annual meetings, task forces and working groups; Federal/Provincial consultative council on statistical policy, Federal/Provincial collection and joint sharing of mineral statistics; mineral and metal surveys, publications; various databases; mineral exploration activity survey. Note: Formerly NRCan MS 560 & 570 Program Record Number: NRCan MSS 003

Explosives Branch

Description: Information relating to the administration of the federal Explosive Act and Regulations which control the manufacture, importation, sale and storage of blasting explosives, propellants and pyrotechnics in Canada.

Topics: testing and research; certification and technical advice; research and development of new technical standards; administration of the Canada Explosive Act; liaison with interdepartmental, international, provincial, departmental; explosive types and classes; explosive in model rocketry; authorization and testing of explosives; explosives acts and regulations; fireworks; explosives incidents/accidents; explosives destruction and disposal; manufacturing and production of explosives; explosives compositions; manufacturing and security of factory sites; explosives safety standards for equipment, magazines, packaging, labeling and marking, transportation, storage; explosives licenses; importation permits. Note: Formerly NRCan METS 455 & 510 Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 005

Mineral and Metal Policy Branch

Description: The Mineral and Metals Policy Branch acts as the federal government's main source of in depth knowledge and expertise on mineral and metal commodity markets and domestic and international policy issues. It manages minerals related policy and program coordination within the federal government and with the provinces/territories, and administers federally owned mineral rights and the federal mandate for the Cape Breton Development Corporation. Topics: Metal and mineral policy planning, Mining Association of Canada (MAC), committees, task forces and working groups; Whitehorse Mining Initiative (WMI); conferences, meetings and seminars; constitutional reform; center for resource studies (CRS)/Queen's university; Canadian Institute of Mining, Metallurgy and Petroleum (CIM); provincial mining associations; prosperity initiatives in mining; policy planning liaison; health and safety in metals and minerals; international mine accident databases; worker's compensation board; minerals and metals job creation programs, mining/human resource investment program; minerals and metals labour markets and issues; mining communities, task forces, remote area development, single industry towns, sustainable development; environment, strategy, global and ecological concerns; resource management; liaison with environment Canada, Fisheries and Oceans; Canadian Environmental Protection Act (CEPA), toxicity assessment and management; national parks; Federal Environmental Assessment Review Office (FEARO); Canadian Environmental Assessment Act (CEAA); Integrated Resource Management Information System (IRMIS); land use and ecosystems projects and studies; public lands titles and descriptions by provinces; international mineral relations; international mineral policy; trade and environment; domestic mineral conference; world mineral notes; international mineral relations interdepartmental liaison; Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA); International Business Plan (ITBP); international organization; North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO); united nation; Organization for Economic cooperation and Development (OECD); United Nations Conference on Environmental and Development (UNCED); mineral trade analysis; general agreement on tariffs and trade (GATT); mineral profiles by country; task forces and working groups; US Bureau of Mines; US/Canada free trade; European Union (EU); Mineral and metal commodities, press clippings; Energy, Industrial and Domestic Industrial commodities; uranium and nuclear energy; Baie Verte Mining corporation; Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy; ferrous commodities; nonferrous commodities; regional mineral development; regional intergovernmental affairs division; federal regional program; Canada/Quebec subsidiary agreement on the economic development of the regions of Quebec; renewed financial assistance program for prospecting in the lower St. Lawrence and Gaspé regions (round 2); financial aid program for the mining region of Chapais-Chibougamau; NWT economic development framework agreement (round 2); Yukon economic planning agreement (round 2); Northern Development, native land claims; Northern land use planning; infrastructure; transportation infrastructure; land use infrastructure; regional mineral land use; regional mineral and provincial ecological issues; environmental acts and regulations; CANMET environmental technical research; regional analysis; Mineral Development Agreements (MDA) round 2; Environmental Assessment of MPS projects and proposals; Ocean Mining; regulatory regime for offshore non fuel minerals; mineral rights registry; foreign research in Canadian offshore; Canada/US boundaries and resources jurisdiction; national marine parks; law of the sea (LOS). Note: Formerly NRCan MS 555, 565, 575, 580, 581, 582, 585, 590 & 597. Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 002

Mineral Resources and Supply Analysis (Closed)

Description: Information relating to the analysis of mineral resource supply to ensure adequate supplies of minerals and metals for Canada. Topics: Mineral resources and supply analysis; operations; Canadian resources and supply; Non-Renewable Resources Evaluation Program (NREP); Canadian mineral exploration; ocean mining — by province; federal ocean mining acts and regulations; regulatory regime for offshore non-fuel minerals; ocean mining — by province; Mineral Rights Registry — Hudson

Bay, offshore NFLD, offshore PEI, offshore NS, offshore Que, offshore BC; Canadian services and technology relating to ocean mining; ocean mining corporation information cases; foreign research in Canadian offshore; international ocean mining; international ocean mining consortia information; US and USSR ocean mining; ocean mining international science programs; ocean mining boundaries and resource jurisdiction; Canada/US boundaries and resource jurisdiction; National Marine Parks; ocean mining environmental and fisheries issues; ocean mining resource assessment; Law of the Sea (LOS); United Nations conference on Law of the Sea; United Nations convention on Law of the Sea. Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 590

Mineral Technology Branch (MTB)

Description: MTB is composed of two laboratories: the Mining and Mineral Sciences Laboratories (MMSL) and the Materials Technology Laboratory (MTL). MMSL conducts research and development over a wide range of processes and technologies involved in transforming ore that has been removed from the ground into a concentrate, mineral product or metal and develops technological solutions to reduce the environmental liabilities facing the minerals industry. MTL develops and deploys technologies to improve all aspects of producing and using value-added products from metals and minerals, provides practical advice to small and medium-sized enterprises on how to improve their products and processes to ensure their competitiveness. Topics: MMSL — Mine and Mill Effluents; Mine Rehabilitation; Metals and the Environment; research in areas of acid mine drainage (AMD) prediction, prevention and control, treatment and monitoring; Aquatic Effects Technology Evaluation (AETE); Metallurgical Processing; certified and custom reference material for the mineral industry; uranium umpire analyses; Mine Mechanization and Automation; Coal Mining Health and Safety; Ground Stability and Control; Underground Mine Environment. MTL — Materials selection; materials fabrication; in-service materials performance; materials characterization; materials prototype product production; experimental casting; pilot-scale rolling; formability testing; corrosion testing; mechanical testing; investigation of a wide variety of materials; simulated manufacturing processes; reduction of environmental impact of foundry operations; molten metal filtration; aluminum casting procedures; improved rehear furnace practices; elimination of quench and temper operations to reduce energy requirements; improved scrap analysis; high performance steels; computer modelling; characterization of metal-based powders for rechargeable batteries; forming techniques for aluminum; pipeline stress corrosion cracking; pipeline critical crack size prediction; pipeline corrosion inhibitors; non-destructive crack detection by electro-acoustic magnetic transducers; engineering critical assessment (ECA) and improved weld repair; new alloys for marine machinery; prediction of fracture resistance of steel and weldments for critical applications; development of codes and standards for reliable characterization and use of modern steels; materials selection for new and converted combustors; use of supplementary cementing materials; durability of concrete; concretes for extreme Canadian environments; high-performance concretes; non-destructive testing (NDT) certification. Note: Formerly NRCan METS 465 & 470 Program Record Number: NRCan MMS 004

Offshore Operations — Divers

Description: Cases relating to an individual diver's diving history. The information consists of the names, addresses, birthdates, birthplaces, physical condition and training of divers. Class of Individuals: Individuals — divers. Purpose: Main use is to provide rapid access to a diver's history to expedite certification and provide data required for annual certification. Diving program approval is contingent upon knowledge of an individual diver's qualifications and work history in order to prevent accidents caused by lack of experience in unusual circumstances. Consistent Uses: Information is also used to develop statistical profiles of the diving population, and to otherwise identify areas of diving regulations requiring updating and improvement for increased diver safety. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained until the diver reaches 65 years of age, and for two years thereafter, after which the data will be transferred to the National Archives of Canada for archival purposes. Contact: Director General, Energy Resources Branch, ES PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: NRCan ES 230 TBS Registration: 000406 Bank Number: NRCan PPU 045

♦ Minerals and Metals Sector (MMS)

Canadian Exploration Incentive Program (CEIP)

Description: This bank contains information relating to the Canadian Exploration Incentive Program (CEIP) and the Canadian Exploration and Development Incentive Program (CEDIP). The CEIP incentive was available to any corporation that incurred eligible exploration expenses for mineral or oil and gas exploration in Canada using funds raised through the issue of flow-through shares. The CEDIP incentive was available to any individual, corporation or trust that incurred eligible expenses for oil and gas exploration in Canada. Applicants were required to complete forms on which they provided their identification, the amount of incentive claimed and the eligible expenses of each well, program, or project claimed. Applicants also provided a certification confirming the completeness and accuracy of the information submitted. Applicants were required to submit technical data and detailed expense summaries for each well, program or project claimed when this information was not submitted previously. If an applicant shared the $10 million annual expense limit with another person or persons, a form specifying the amount allocated to each person had to be completed. Class of Individuals: Under CEIP, individuals who were partners in a partnership that had acquired flow-through shares and individuals who were associated with applicant corporations. Under CEDIP, individuals who apply for incentives for oil and gas exploration and development in Canada. Purpose: The objective of collecting this information was to determine the eligibility of claimants and expenses for the purpose of making incentive payments. Consistent Uses: This information will also be used to determine cost norms for expenses; to track and control outstanding and completed applications; to facilitate recovery of incentives paid in error; to audit claimants' expenses and eligibility; and to establish internal effectiveness of the incentive payment process. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for 10 years after program termination. Information is then transferred to Federal Archives Division, National Archives of Canada, for archival purposes. The CEIP Program was terminated on February 20, 1990. Contact: Director General, Mineral and Metal Policy Branch, MMS Related to PR#: NRCan MPS 596 TBS Registration: 001868 Bank Number: NRCan PPU 055

Certification in Non-Destructive Testing

Description: Information relating to the certification, on a national and international basis, of non-destructive testing personnel in accordance with the CAN/CGSB-48-9712. This standard fully complies with the ISO standard 9712 on certification of NDT personnel. Aspects include examination and re-certification in industrial radiography, ultrasonics, magnetic particle, liquid penetrant, and eddy current methods. Includes names, addresses, medical certification on eyesight, original application forms, examination copies and results, date(s) of certification and methods, and data on three-year term certification renewal of individuals who undergo examination. Class of Individuals: Individuals desiring certification in non-destructive testing. Purpose: Information is used to certify individuals in non-destructive testing and answer queries from outside organizations on an individual's certification status. The information is also used to prepare a list of certified personnel in good standing which is published annually and made available to the public. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained ten years after expiry of certification. Contact: Director General, Mineral Technology Branch, MMS PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: NRCan METS 465 TBS Registration: 000400 Bank Number: NRCan PPU 015

Emergency Fuel Rationing Program

Description: This bank contains information relating to the implementation of an emergency fuel rationing program in Canada required in the event of a severe oil shortage and pursuant to the Energy Supplies Emergency Act (1979). Ration coupons would be issued to eligible applicants who would be required to provide various discrete personal data elements such as name, address, vehicle plate number and driver's license number. Business applicants would be required to provide information on the nature of their business and fuel consumption over specific periods in order to enable calculation of their ration share. Individuals would be hired under contract to collect this information and issue the ration coupons. Class of Individuals: Individuals who purchase gasoline and diesel fuel at retail outlets during rationing and individuals hired under contract to issue coupons. Purpose: The data would be collected in order to administer the various aspects of the fuel rationing program and only in the event that such rationing is necessary. Consistent Uses: Information would be used to substantiate applicants' eligibility to obtain fuel coupons. Selected samples of vehicle registration data will be checked for accuracy with the Motor Vehicle Registrars in each province. Information relating to individuals hired under contract will be used for processing payments. Retention and Disposal Standards: The Emergency Fuel Rationing personal information bank will be retained for two years after the discontinuance of the rationing program, then transferred to the federal Archives Division, National Archives of Canada, for archival purposes. Contact: Director General — Energy Resources Branch, ES Related to PR#: NRCan ES 195 TBS Registration: 002833 Bank Number: NRCan PPU 050

Explosives Licenses and Permits

Description: Information relating to the issue and control of licenses and permits granted for storage, transportation by road, importation, manufacture and sale of explosives.

Class of Individuals: All individuals with a need to manufacture, store, transport, or handle explosives.

Purpose: To fulfil the responsibility of the Explosives Branch as the federal licensing and inspection agency for explosives in Canada. Consistent Uses: Transmittal of information to investigative bodies when an infraction or incident concerning explosives occurs. Retention and Disposal Standards: Licenses and permits are retained for seven years after expiry date. Contact: Chief Inspector of Explosives, Explosives Branch, MMS PAC Number: 85-010 Related to PR#: NRCan METS 530 and 540 TBS Registration: 000398 Bank Number: NRCan PPU 005

Classes of Personal Information

Explosives Safety and Accident Statistics — Explosives Division

The purpose of this class is to provide a record of statistics on safety measures in the explosives industry as well as on all accidents related to explosives. The files contain information on the nature of the accident as well as the victim's name, age and address, if applicable. Records are retained for 25 years after the date of the incident and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention.

Human Resources Planning and Management

Personal information about employees is also maintained in other departmental files and data bases held by various organizations involved in the human resource planning and management functions. Such systems are used to provide aggregated reports for the purpose of human resource planning and management and to assist in analysis of trends or developments. Although some of the information may be retrieved by a personal identifier, the data bases are not used to provide information about individual employees nor to make any administrative decisions affecting individual employees.

Mailing Lists

This class includes correspondence and request cards from individuals regarding departmental mailing lists for publications. The information is used for amending addresses and to add or delete individual names on mailing lists which are retained permanently. The correspondence and request cards are retained until the mailing list has been amended.

Ministerial Correspondence

This class of information contains correspondence addressed to the Minister and/or Deputy Minister from external organizations and individuals in the form of requests for information, complaints, opinions and other submissions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to Natural Resources Canada's activities, wherein some unsolicited personal information has been provided by the correspondent. This form of information would be retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject were to be provided; it is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Research Agreements Program

This class contains applications for grant submitted to the Department from candidates affiliated with Canadian research institutions. Applications contain information on the description and budget for the proposed project and the applicant's curriculum vitae. The information is used to select and award grants in the natural, physical and social sciences and engineering which can contribute to the Department's purpose. The information is also used to compile general statistics of interest to the Department with respect to the program as a whole, and not in relation to individual applicants. The program was terminated in April 1994. Accepted applications are destroyed after a period of six fiscal years (until April 2000) and those not accepted are destroyed after two fiscal years (until April 1996.)

Technical Enquiries — Canada Centre for Mineral and Energy Technology (CANMET)

This class includes technical enquiries, comments and opinions of individuals corresponding with the Department regarding issues related to energy, mining and mineral technology. The information is used for reference purposes regarding any subsequent enquiry by an individual. Correspondence is retained for a minimum of two years.

Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada

Chapter 74

General Information

Background

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC) is the national instrument for making strategic investments in Canada's capability in science and technology. NSERC was established in 1978 as a departmental corporation, a specialized agency that operates at arm's length from government. It is responsible for the promotion and support of research in the natural sciences and engineering, other than the health sciences. NSERC supports basic university research through research grants and project research through partnerships of universities with industry, as well as the advanced training of highly qualified people in both areas.

Responsibilities

NSERC's mission is to foster the discovery and application of knowledge through the support of university research and the training of scientists and engineers. The Council promotes the use of this knowledge to build a strong national economy and improve the quality of life of all Canadians. NSERC fulfills its mission by awarding grants and scholarships through a competitive process and by building partnerships among universities, governments and the private sector.

Over 8,000 Canadian researchers benefit from NSERC support. In addition, over 3,300 Canadians hold an NSERC scholarship or fellowship. NSERC programs provide employment to about 14,000 persons, of which 80% are students and postdoctoral fellows; the remainder are skilled technicians and research professionals.

Legislation

- Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act (1976)

Organization

President

The President, who is chief executive officer of Council, is responsible for the overall management and direction of the work of Council staff in the development and delivery of programs.

♦ Communications

This division is responsible for publications, media relations and public affairs.

♦ Research Grants and Scholarships Directorate

This directorate co-ordinates activities associated with support of the research base (research grants in support of a spectrum of research activities, grants for the purchase, operation and maintenance of research equipment, facilities and installations) as well as the prestigious E.W.R. Steacie Memorial Fellowships. It also administers awards to undergraduate and graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, and scientists and engineers for advanced study and research training in Canadian universities, industry, and government laboratories.

♦ Common Administrative Services Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the systems and services which support NSERC's officers and staff and facilitate the implementation of programs. In general, this includes administration, finance, human resources management and information management.

♦ Council Secretariat

The Secretariat co-ordinates Council's parliamentary requirements and administers a complex network of committees which form the basis of NSERC's operations. The office plays an important co-ordination role in corporate policy within NSERC and in liaison with central agencies and external organizations. It is also responsible for the administration of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act and for ethical issues related to research.

♦ Policy and International Relations

This division co-ordinates strategic planning, program policy development, evaluation, internal audit, international relations and special research projects.

♦ Research Partnerships Directorate

This directorate administers programs intended to promote research in selected fields of national importance and to forge closer links between the university research community, research-oriented government departments and the private sector. These include Strategic Projects, Research Networks and University-Industry projects.

Program Records

◆ Communications

Communications

Description: information related to the administration and management of NSERC's internal and external communications function including publishing, public and media relations. Topics: Communications: public relations: publications. Access: Files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: SER SER 021

◆ Research Grants and Scholarships Directorate

Collaborative Research Initiatives

Description: information related to a series of NSERC programs designed to support collaboration among Canadian scientists and engineers. Topics: Collaborative Special Projects Grants; Collaborative Project Grants. Access: files arranged by applicant, university, program, and year. Note: These programs were discontinued in 1996. Storage Medium: For certain programs, information maintained in case files is held in a computerized database. Program Record Number: SER SER 031

Equipment Grants

Description: information related to NSERC's role in enhancing the research capability of university researchers and providing a stimulating environment for research by supporting the purchase of research equipment. Topics: equipment grants; research equipment. Access: Files arranged by applicant, university and year. Storage Medium: Computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SER 036

Other General Support

Description: information related to a series of NSERC special programs and mechanisms aimed at the promotion and support of activities not supported by other programs. Topics: E. W. R. Steacie Memorial Fellowships; Attachés de recherche du CRSNG*; Conference grants*; Scientific Publication grants*; Miscellaneous grants*; Canadian Council on Animal Care. Access: information arranged by name of applicant and/or university, program, and year. Note: Programs marked * discontinued in 1995. Storage Medium: computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SER 045

Postgraduate Scholarships

Description: information related to NSERC programs which aim to assist in the provision of highly qualified scientists and engineers by providing financial support to excellent students working toward a master's or doctoral degree in the natural sciences or engineering. Topics:

postgraduate scholarships. Access: files arranged by name of applicant, program and year. Storage Medium: computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SER 055

Research Fellowships

Description: information related to NSERC programs which provide recent doctoral graduates in science and engineering disciplines with opportunities to add to their experience by engaging in research activities in universities and research institutes in Canada and abroad, and in Canadian research-oriented companies. Topics: Postdoctoral Fellowships; Industrial Research Fellowships. Access: files arranged by name of applicant, program and year. Storage Medium: computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SER 060

Research Grants

Description: information related to NSERC's largest grants program aimed at the promotion and support of a broad base of high quality research in the natural sciences and engineering in Canadian universities. Topics: Research grants (individual, team and project); Infrastructure grants. Access: files arranged by name of applicant, university and year. Storage Medium: computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SER 026

◆ Council Secretariat

Secretariat

Description: information related to the organizational structure, membership, agenda, minutes and activities of the Council and its committees; as well as records related to corporate policy; access to information and privacy, and research ethics. Topics: terms of reference; agenda and minutes; membership; committees. Access: information arranged by subject or by committee. Storage Medium: files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: SER SER 006

◆ Policy and International Relations

Evaluation and Audit

Description: information related to internal audits and to the evaluation of NSERC's programs, corporate systems and services. Topics: program evaluation; internal audit. Access: files arranged by subject. Program Record Number: SER SER 016

International Programs

Description: information related to NSERC programs aimed at fostering co-operation and collaboration between Canadian researchers and scientists and engineers in other countries through such activities as joint projects, visits and exchanges. Topics: NSERC Foreign Researcher Awards*; Register of Canadians Studying Abroad*; Bilateral Exchange Awards; CIDA/NSERC Research Associateships*. Access: files arranged by applicant name, program and year. Note: Programs marked * discontinued in 1995. Storage

Medium: computer database and paper case files.

Program Record Number: SER SER 065

Policy and Planning

Description: information related to corporate and long-range planning and policy development activity.

Topics: policy development; planning; multi-year plans.

Access: files arranged by subject. Program Record

Number: SER SER 011

♦ Research Partnerships Directorate

Research Partnerships

Description: information related to NSERC's Research Partnerships program which promotes and supports joint research initiatives and collaboration between universities and Canadian companies or universities and government labs. Topics: University-Industry Projects; Research Networks; research and development. Access: files arranged by subject or by case file number. Storage

Medium: computerized database and paper case files.

Program Record Number: SER SER 075

Strategic Projects

Description: information related to NSERC's program of support for Strategic Projects which provide support to eligible researchers or teams of researchers in Canadian academic institutions for substantial projects in selected research areas of national concern. Topics: Strategic projects; university research; funding of university research. Access: files are arranged by name of principal applicant, university, and year. Storage Medium: computer database and paper case files. Program Record Number: SER SER 070

Personal Information Banks

♦ Research Grants and Scholarships Directorate

Collaborative Research Initiatives

Description: This bank contains information related to applications for support of collaborative research initiatives submitted by individuals who hold academic appointments in eligible Canadian academic institutions. It also contains information related to the administration of these types of awards. It includes details of applicants' post-secondary education, professional experience, and proposals, as well as referee and committee assessments, decisions, reports and recommendations.

Class of Individuals: individuals who apply to NSERC for support of collaborative projects and third parties from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals.

Purpose: All personal information related to applicants is used to review applications and to administer and monitor awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. As part of peer review, applications are disclosed to selection committees composed of experts recruited from the academic, private and public sectors. In some cases, applications may also be reviewed by external referees, members of ad hoc review committees or site visit committees. Reviews and selection committee comments about a proposal are accessible to co-applicants. 2. NSERC uses personal information about applicants in its files and databases to identify prospective committee members and reviewers for specific grant scholarship or fellowship applications. 3. Because NSERC has a single corporate database, NSERC staff are generally aware of applications submitted by the same individual to different NSERC programs. Some selection committees are provided with multi-year summaries of an individual's NSERC applications and awards in all programs. In cases when, for example, there is a question of possible overlap in the support of an applicant's research activities by two or more NSERC programs, application material submitted to one program may be used during the review of an application submitted to another program. Similarly, applications may be disclosed to program staff in the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council or the Medical Research Council for the purposes of determining the most appropriate funding jurisdiction or to monitor overlap in federal support. 4. NSERC routinely publishes and disseminates certain details about successful applications. These include name of the applicant(s), award type, amount awarded, institution and department, the discipline or field of research, the project title and, beginning in 1996 for grant programs, a summary of the research proposal prepared by the applicant for public reference. 5. Files and databases containing personal information may also be used by NSERC for program planning, evaluation and review and in audits and for generating statistics for these activities. 6. Information submitted to NSERC is subject to the Tri-Council Policy on Integrity in Research and Scholarship and may be used and disclosed consistent with that policy. 7. NSERC collects data on the gender of applicants on a voluntary basis only and uses it to promote the increased participation of women in NSERC programs and on NSERC committees. 8. NSERC also uses the information in its files and databases to generate mailing lists in order to disseminate its publications and other information to the research community. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files, some of which contain documentation on successive applications and awards, are retained by NSERC until ten years from the date of the last correspondence on file. Note: These programs were discontinued in 1996. Related to PR#: SER 031 TBS Registration: 002573 Bank Number: SER PPU 055

General Support Programs

Description: This bank contains applications, forms and correspondence related to NSERC's research support and other programs which provide support for research personnel. This would include the Attachés de recherche du CRSNG*, the E.W.R. Steacie Fellowships, and some Miscellaneous Grants*. Files may contain details of applicant's post-secondary education, professional experience, referee and selection committee assessments, and Council's decisions. They may also contain administrative and financial documents related to the administration of awards. Class of Individuals: individuals who participate in NSERC's Research Support and other general support programs and third parties from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals.

Purpose: All personal information related to applicants is used to review applications and to administer and monitor awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. As part of peer review, applications are disclosed to selection committees composed of experts recruited from the academic, private and public sectors. In some cases, applications may also be reviewed by external referees, members of ad hoc review committees or site visit committees. Reviews and selection committee comments about a proposal are accessible to co-applicants. 2. NSERC uses personal information about applicants in its

NSERC also uses the information in its files and databases to generate mailing lists in order to disseminate its publications and other information to the research community. Retention and Disposal Standards: Case files, which can include documentation related to a series of successive applications, are retained by NSERC until seven years from the date of the last correspondence on file. Note: Programs marked * discontinued in 1995. Related to PR#: SER 041; SER 045 TBS Registration: 002574 Bank Number: SER PPU 060

Description: This bank contains names, affiliation and mailing addresses of individuals in Canada and abroad who are asked by the Council to review proposals for grants to individuals and groups. Only a few of the fields of natural sciences and engineering are included in this bank. Persons requesting access to their personal data should provide field of research, name and affiliation.

Class of Individuals: individuals in Canada and abroad who are asked by the Council to review proposals for grants Purpose: The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Retention and Disposal Standards: The retention period for records in this bank is under review. TBS Registration: 003514

Bank Number: SER PPU 050

Register of Canadians Studying Abroad

Description: This bank contains information on the professional qualifications of Canadians who are doing postgraduate or postdoctoral work in the natural sciences or engineering in foreign universities and institutes and who have registered with NSERC so that their availability may be made known to participating Canadian employers who require qualified research personnel. Information includes name, address, current field of study or research, and details of post-secondary education. Class of Individuals: Canadian graduate and postgraduate students studying or working in foreign countries who have registered with NSERC. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to facilitate the return to Canada of highly qualified scientists and engineers to meet the needs of Canadian employers. Consistent Uses: NSERC uses the information in the Register to evaluate its programs and to produce statistics and planning information. NSERC also searches the electronic database file associated with the Scholarships and Fellowships Personal Information Bank to identify potential registrants from among scholars receiving NSERC support. These individuals are then contacted and invited to register. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper documents are retained for three calendar years after the year of registration. Registrants are removed from the electronic database upon request or automatically if no update is received for three years. Note: Program discontinued 1995. Related to PR#: SER 065 TBS Registration: 002577 Bank Number: SER PPU 075

Research Grants

Description: This bank contains information related to individual, team and project Research Grant applications as well as applications for equipment, Major Installation and Infrastructure Grants submitted by researchers who hold academic appointments in eligible Canadian academic institutions. It also includes information related to the administration of these types of awards. It includes details of applicants' post-secondary education and professional experience, proposals, referee and selection committee assessments, and Council's decisions. Class of Individuals: applicants for NSERC Research, equipment, major installation, and infrastructure grants and third-party reviewers from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals. Purpose: All personal information related to applicants is used to review applications and to administer and monitor awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. Scholarships and Fellowships

Description: This bank contains information related to the adjudication and administration of NSERC's scholarships and fellowships programs including Undergraduate Research Awards (industry and small universities), Postgraduate Scholarships, Industrial Postgraduate Scholarships, Postgraduate Scholarships in Science Librarianship and Documentation*, 1967 Science and Engineering Scholarships*, Postdoctoral Fellowships, Industrial Research Fellowships, and NATO Science Fellowships. It contains details of applicant's post-secondary education and, in some cases, professional experience. It includes ratings, assessments, recommendations and decisions. The bank also contains the administrative and financial documentation generated in the administration of these awards. Class of Individuals: applicants for NSERC scholarships and fellowships and third parties who provide assessment of applicants' suitability for these awards. Purpose: All personal information related to applicants is used to review applications and to administer and monitor awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. Because NSERC has a single corporate database, NSERC staff are generally aware of applications submitted by the same individual to different NSERC programs. Some selection committees are provided with multi-year summaries of an individual's NSERC applications and awards in all programs. In cases when, for example, there is a question of possible overlap in the support of an applicant's research activities by two or more NSERC programs, application material submitted to one program may be used during the review of an application submitted to another program. Applications may be disclosed to program staff in the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council or the Medical Research Council for the purposes of determining the most appropriate funding jurisdiction or to monitor overlap in federal support. 3. NSERC routinely publishes and disseminates certain details about successful applications. These include name of the applicant, award type, amount awarded, institution and department, the proposed location of tenure, the discipline or field of research, the project title and, beginning in 1996 for some programs, a summary of the research proposal prepared by the applicant for public reference. 4. Files and databases containing personal information may also be used by NSERC for program planning, evaluation and review and in audits and for generating statistics for these activities. 5. Information submitted to NSERC is subject to the Tri-Council Policy on Integrity in Research and Scholarship and may be used and disclosed consistent with that policy. 6. NSERC collects data on the gender of applicants on a voluntary basis only and uses it to promote the increased participation of women in NSERC programs and on NSERC committees. 7. NSERC also uses the information in its files and databases to generate mailing lists in order to disseminate its publications and other information to the research community. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper files, which may contain documentation related to successive applications in different programs, are retained by NSERC until six years after the date of the last correspondence on file. Note: Programs marked * discontinued in 1995. Related to PR#: SER 050; SER 055; SER 060 TBS Registration: 002575 Bank Number: SER PPU 065

Visiting Fellowships in

Canadian Government Laboratories

Description: This bank contains information related to the granting of Visiting Fellowships in Canadian Government Laboratories which NSERC administers on behalf of a number of federal departments and agencies. It also contains information on NSERC International Fellowships offered in Canadian Universities*. The bank contains details of applicants' post-secondary education and professional experience. It may contain information on an applicant's marital status and the number and ages of children in cases where NSERC is involved in arranging travel and insurance. It includes assessments of applications as well as recommendations and decisions. The bank also contains the administrative and financial documentation generated in the administration of awards. Class of Individuals: Canadian citizens and researchers from other countries who participate in the program of Visiting Fellowships in Canadian Government Laboratories or the Canada International Fellowships Program*, and third parties who provide references and assessments of applicants' suitability for awards. Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications and to monitor and administer awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. As part of peer review, applications are disclosed to selection committees composed of experts recruited from the academic, private and public sectors. In some cases, applications may also be reviewed by external referees, members of ad hoc review committees or site visit committees. Reviews and selection committee comments about a proposal are accessible to co-applicants. For the Visiting Fellowships Program, which NSERC administers on behalf of other federal departments, applications will be shared with appropriate officials in other federal institutions. 2. Because NSERC has a single corporate database, NSERC staff are generally aware of applications submitted by the same individual to different NSERC programs. Access Request Data Bank

Description: This bank contains the access request forms sent to NSERC by individuals requesting access to records and to personal information, the replies to these requests, and information related to their processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have made requests to NSERC under the Access to Information Act or the Privacy Act. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to administer requests made under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are maintained for two years following the last administrative action. PAC Number: 78-001 TBS Registration: 001627 Bank Number: SER PPU 035

Committee Nominations and Membership

Description: This bank includes the names of individuals who have been recommended or nominated for participation on NSERC committees. It may include affiliations, addresses and telephone numbers, areas of expertise, the name of the person who made the nomination as well as information on the individual's past participation and future availability. For individuals who confirm their acceptance of a nomination, the bank may also include a current curriculum vitae, and fuller information on the membership selection process including staff reports and the views of discipline experts consulted about the nominations. Class of Individuals: Members of the scientific and engineering community in Canada and abroad nominated by their peers or identified by NSERC as prospective committee members. Individuals who agree to serve on NSERC committees. Persons who nominate or recommend others as prospective committee members. Individuals consulted by NSERC staff during the committee membership selection process. Purpose: This information is used to identify and select individuals with specific technical knowledge and expertise to participate on NSERC committees. Consistent Uses: Information related to nominees may be disclosed to members of current NSERC committees and/or other discipline experts for the purpose obtaining of their opinions on the committee composition. In cases where NSERC proposes to disclose information about nominees to others to obtain their views, staff first contact the nominees to advise them about this process and obtain their consent. Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years after the last administrative action. Related to PR#: SER 006 TBS Registration: 003939 Bank Number: SER PPU 022

Compliance — Integrity in Research and Scholarship

Description: This bank includes correspondence and reports collected and generated in the course of monitoring institutional and individual compliance with the Tri-Council Policy Statement on Integrity in Research and Scholarship. It may include allegations of non-compliance, requests from NSERC to research institutions to explore allegations, summaries of institutional findings and sanctions imposed by NSERC. Class of Individuals: Individuals who make allegations about breaches of the Tri-Council Policy Statement on Integrity in Research and Scholarship, individuals who are the subject of allegations, officials in research institutions or in the academic community involved in determining whether allegations are well-founded. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to monitor the compliance of research institutions and individual researchers with the Tri-Council Policy Statement on Integrity in Research and Scholarship. Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years after the last administrative action. Classes of Personal Information

Subject files

NSERC's subject files contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Typically, this includes personal addresses associated with routine requests for information or opinions expressed by individuals in correspondence with NSERC on program matters.

This kind of personal information is not used for any specific administrative purpose. It is normally retrievable only if the requester gives details about the subject, date, and circumstances under which the information was provided to NSERC. The retention period for this kind of information is governed by schedules approved by the National Archivist for various subject files in which it is stored.

Northern Pipeline Agency Canada

Chapter 75

General Information

Background

The Northern Pipeline Agency (NPA) was created with the proclamation of the Northern Pipeline Act in April 1978, to oversee planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project by the Foothills Group of Companies. Pending resumption of planning and construction of the pipeline, the only office in the Agency that is staffed is the Office of the Commissioner, which maintains a small support staff.

Responsibilities

The Agency's mandate is twofold. It is required to regulate the project and to streamline and expedite the approvals process. It is also responsible for ensuring that the pipeline system yields for Canadians the maximum economic and industrial benefit with the least amount of social and environmental disruption, particularly to native communities.

The Agency was designed to act as a single window between federal authorities and the Foothills Group of Companies, and between provincial and territorial governments, and the Government of the United States. In keeping with the Act, many regulatory powers of other federal departments and agencies related to the pipeline project have been delegated to the Agency. This is not the case for those powers reserved exclusively to the National Energy Board or shared between the Board and the Agency.

Legislation

- Northern Pipeline Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-26

Organization

♦ Office of the Commissioner

As Agency headquarters, the Office provides support to both the Minister responsible for the Agency and the Commissioner. The Office is responsible for developing and consulting on major policy issues between the United States, the provinces, and federal departments and agencies, concerning the planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project.

♦ Office of the Administrator

The Office exercises such powers and performs such duties and functions as the Minister may specify.

♦ Office of the Designated Officer

The Office carries out all the responsibilities specifically required under the Northern Pipeline Act.

♦ Policy and Programs Unit (not staffed)

This Unit is responsible for most aspects of the Agency's operational role not assigned by statute to the deputy administrator and designated officer, and for contributing to those orders, directions and approvals for the designated officer which require the Minister's concurrence. It is also responsible for socio-economic and environmental matters, industrial benefits, relationships with federal, provincial and territorial government departments, and manpower planning and logistical matters related to the project. It holds special policy responsibilities for the internal planning and administration of the Agency in matters of financial management and administration.

♦ Socio-economic and Environment Unit (not staffed)

This Unit acts as liaison with various public interest groups and territorial, provincial and federal bodies; advises on socio-economic and environmental policies and procedures; administers terms and conditions; carries out socio-economic and environmental surveillance and monitoring to minimize the negative effects and maximize the benefits of construction and operation of the pipeline. It advises the Agency, federal, provincial and territorial government departments, and community and native groups, and confers with the owners, contractors, and unions on matters related to the avoidance and resolution of labour disputes on the project.

♦ Scheduling and Regulatory Unit (not staffed)

This Unit oversees the project scheduling and cost control procedures involved in building the pipeline, including scheduling, critical path planning, and cost review and monitoring. It is also involved in the major areas of project progress information centre and surveillance proceedings, right-of-way responsibilities delegated by the National Energy Board, as well as the issue of permits and orders to ensure correct technical content.

♦ Engineering Design Unit (not staffed)

This Unit is responsible for design review and ensuring that appropriate methods are followed by the pipeline engineering section with each company of the Foothills Group. It is responsible for the approval of all engineering design of the pipeline, as well as for providing direction to personnel who will ensure that the company conforms with the engineering requirements, orders, specifications and terms and conditions related to the construction of the pipeline.

Personal Information Banks

Access Request Data Bank

Description: The bank contains access request forms received from individuals requesting access to their files, the replies to such requests and information related to processing. Class of Individuals: Employees, applicants for employment, and individuals providing services under contract. Purpose: The bank provides information on access requests. Consistent Uses: The bank records requests for access and provides information on periodic reports on requests. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for two years (under review). TBS Registration: 000740 Bank Number: NPA PPU 020

Application for Employment

Description: The bank maintains an inventory of applicants from the general public or the federal government for employment with the Northern Pipeline Agency. It includes applications for employment, curricula vitae, letters of reference and other personal information. Individuals are identified by name. The Office of the Commissioner is responsible for this bank. Class of Individuals: Applicants for employment in the Agency. Purpose: The bank is used to identify applicants, their skills and abilities, work histories, or education for possible future appointments to the Agency staff. Consistent Uses: The bank is used in the staffing of Agency positions. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained in the bank for two calendar years (under review). TBS Registration: 000737 Bank Number: NPA PPU 005

Expenditure Records

Description: The bank contains documentation in support of expenses incurred by employees in the performance of their duties including authorization for expenditure, advances and claims. Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution. Purpose: The documentation in the bank is used to support payments to employees and is retained for the purposes of audit. Consistent Uses: The bank is used in the administration and verification of expense claims of employees. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in the bank is retained covering the most recent six fiscal years of the employee, including the current fiscal year. PAC Number: 78-001 TBS Registration: 000739 Bank Number: NPA PPU 015

Service Contract Files

Description: The bank maintains information on individuals or firms engaged under contract. The files contain data referring to curricula vitae, rates charged for service, dollar values of contracts, terms of contracts and previous contracts. Class of Individuals: Individuals performing services for the Agency either directly or through their firms. Purpose: The bank was established to record information relating to individuals and firms providing services to the Agency under contract.

Consistent Uses: The bank is used to record information relating to persons and firms providing services to the Agency under contract and to control payments for such services. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files in the bank are kept for six years following completion of the services. PAC Number: 78-001 TBS Registration: 000738 Bank Number: NPA PPU 010

Northwest Territories Water Board

Chapter 76

General Information

Background

The Northwest Territories Water Board was established under section 7 of the Northern Inland Waters Act, which was proclaimed on February 28, 1972. The Northern Inland Waters Regulations were promulgated on September 14, 1972. Two amendments to the Regulations have been made since; one on January 15, 1975, and the other on July 17, 1975. The Board held its founding meeting in Yellowknife, N.W.T. on April 8, 1972.

Responsibilities

The Board provides for the conservation, development and use of the water resources of the Northwest Territories in a manner that will provide the optimum benefit for all Canadians, and for the residents of the Territories in particular. Under the Act an application must be made to the Board and a licence issued prior to the use of any waters or disposal of any waterborne waste. The requirement for application applies equally to departments and agencies of the federal government. The only exclusions are the use of water for domestic purposes, for extinguishing a fire or, in an emergency, for controlling or preventing a flood.

Legislation

- Northern Inland Waters Act
- Northern Inland Waters Regulations

Organization.

The Board consists of not fewer than three and not more than nine members appointed by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. It is made up of at least one nominee from those departments of the Government of Canada which, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, are most directly concerned with the management of the water resources in the Northwest Territories, and at least three persons named by the Commissioner in Council of the Northwest Territories.

Professional and technical staff is provided by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development to help conduct the business of the Board and its activities. A Technical Advisory Committee was established in 1973 to provide a forum for the discussion of technical matters related to applications for use of water and waste disposal.

Office of the Chief Electoral Officer

Chapter 78

General Information

NOTE: THIS INSTITUTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Background

The position of Chief Electoral Officer was created in 1920 by the Dominion Elections Act, largely to put an end to political partisanship in the administration of federal elections. The Chief Electoral Officer is appointed by a resolution of the House of Commons, so that all parties represented there may contribute to the selection process. Once appointed, the incumbent reports directly to the House of Commons and is thus completely independent of government and political parties. The Chief Electoral Officer serves until he/she attains the age of sixty-five years and can only be removed for cause, by the Governor General on address of the Senate and House of Commons.

Responsibilities

Elections Canada is the non-partisan agency responsible for the conduct of federal elections and referendums. Its prime task is to be prepared at all times to administer an electoral event.

The Chief Electoral Officer is responsible for exercising general direction and supervision over the preparation and administration of federal electoral events as well as the reporting requirements relating to expenses incurred pursuant to the provisions of the Canada Elections Act and the Referendum Act.

Compliance and enforcement of the provisions of the Canada Elections Act and of the Referendum Act is carried out by the Commissioner of Canada Elections under the general supervision of the Chief Electoral Officer by whom the Commissioner is appointed.

The Chief Electoral Officer also provides the necessary data and assistance to enable the electoral boundaries commissions to discharge their responsibilities under the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act with respect to each province's representation in the House of Commons and taxes all accounts relating to the expenditures of the Electoral Boundaries Commissions.

Legislation

- Canada Elections Act
- Dominion Controverted Elections Act
- Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act
- Referendum Act

Organization

♦ The Administration and Human Resources Directorate

The directorate is responsible for all personnel, records management, security management, telecommunications and administration matters, including purchasing all the supplies and services Elections Canada needs to conduct an electoral event.

♦ The Commissioner of Canada Elections

The Commissioner is responsible for the handling of all complaints of alleged infractions. Except for offences relating to peace and good order, offences under the Canada Elections Act, the Referendum Act and section 126 of the Criminal Code, can be prosecuted only with the consent of the Commissioner. The Commissioner, in collaboration with the Legal Services Directorate assist the Chief Electoral Officer in developing preventive measures to ensure compliance with the legislation and improve the information available to the public.

♦ The Communications Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for developing and implementing programs and activities intended to increase public awareness of the electoral system and the role of Elections Canada, to inform electors about their right to vote as defined under the Canada Elections Act and the Referendum Act and how they may exercise that right, and to report on the conduct and results of federal electoral events. Activities include advertising, public, community and media relations, the production of publications and videos and the operation of an enquiries service.

♦ The Election Financing Directorate

The directorate is responsible for ensuring that the appropriate policies, systems and procedures are in place to provide appropriate financial management and control for Elections Canada, within the context of the Financial Administration Act and other related legislations, regulations and policies. It also administers the financial provisions of the Canada Elections Act and the Referendum Act and manages audit and performance measurement activities at Elections Canada.

♦ The Information Technology Directorate

The directorate is responsible for all the hardware and software of computer systems at Elections Canada headquarters and in the offices of returning officers. The directorate plans and manages the acquisition, development and support of infrastructure and application systems used by the other directorates.

♦ The International Services Directorate

Elections Canada is playing an increasingly active role in international election-related activities. The activities involve supervising elections to advising on constitution and election law provisions, conducting pre-election evaluations, providing professional assistance and advice, election documents and materials, training election officials, developing and conducting voter education programs and working directly with other election bodies. In addition, the participation on the international scene includes briefing visiting foreign delegations and distributing information on various aspects of the Canadian electoral process. The directorate is also responsible for maintaining an inventory of potential candidates, men and women, who are able to contribute the specialized skills on the various aspects of the electoral process.

♦ The Legal Services Directorate

The directorate is responsible for monitoring compliance with the Canada Elections Act, the Referendum Act and other pertinent legislations in conjunction with the Commissioner of Canada Elections, for providing legal interpretations, for preparing contract documents, and for maintaining a book containing information pertaining to all elected Members of Parliament showing the order in which their return to the writ was received. The directorate is responsible for receiving and verifying applications for registration of political parties and referendum committees submitted in accordance with the legislations, as well as maintaining the information in the Registries up-to-date. The directorate also oversees privacy matters and acts as legal advisor to the Chief Electoral Officer and senior staff.

♦ The Operations Directorate

The directorate is responsible for preparing and conducting all electoral events, as well as developing the procedures, manuals, forms and tools that facilitate registration, voting and electoral administration. They arrange to print, assemble and ship all event materials to Canada's ridings as soon as an electoral event is called. Operations acts as the main liaison with all returning officers who administer electoral events at the riding level and also oversees their training. The directorate also administers the Special Voting Rules and accessibility programs that give all Canadians the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. In addition, Operations assists the eleven independent commissions which readjust federal riding boundaries.

♦ The Privacy Coordinator

The Privacy Coordinator deals with all the requests received pursuant to the Privacy Act, establishes policies in order to handle the various requests and supervises the general administration of the statute.

Office of the Commissioner of Official Languages

Chapter 79

General Information

NOTE: THIS INSTITUTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Background

The terms of reference of the Commissioner of Official Languages (COL) are set out in the Official Languages Act. This legislation came into effect in September 1988. The terms of reference consist in ensuring recognition of the status of each of the official languages and compliance with the spirit and intent of the Act in the administration of the affairs of federal institutions and in promoting English and French in Canadian society.

Responsibilities

The Commissioner fulfils his or her duties in three ways: he/she investigates complaints regarding matters governed by the Official Languages Act and Regulations as well as by policies issued to this end; he/she carries out studies, research, analyses and audits with respect to the equality of status and equal rights and privileges of the official languages; and, lastly, he/she encourages application of the Act and Regulations by providing information and advice, and by working with the public as well as with federal organizations. The Commissioner's mandate encompasses the entire federal apparatus: departments, agencies, Crown corporations, and so on.

Legislation

- Official Languages Act
- Regulations on Official Languages

Organization

The Office of the Commissioner of Official Languages has a single program with one activity. The Program is administered by six branches: Policy, Investigations, Corporate Secretariat and Regional Operations, Communications, Corporate Services and Legal Services. The Commissioner reports to Parliament, and the Prime Minister is the Minister responsible for all of the Office's financial activities.

Classes of Personal Information

The Inspector General does not administer a personal information collection program. However, while carrying out his official duties, he may incidentally accumulate personal information that is not contained in the information banks described in this entry. Such information exists in fragmentary form throughout the files maintained at the Office of the Inspector General. It relates to the performance of the Inspector General's statutory and executive functions. Some of this information, originally collected by CSIS, forms part of CSIS records and pertains to specific CSIS activities that are, from time to time, monitored or reviewed by the Inspector General. Other portions have been generated internally, by other government agencies or by the general public in the form of opinions and enquiries. This information is not intended to be used by the Office of the Inspector General for any administrative purpose affecting individuals. The information may include names, addresses or professions, and is normally retrievable only if specific subjects, events or dates are provided.

Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions Canada

Chapter 81

General Information

Background

The Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions (OSFI) was formally established by the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions Act, 1987. OSFI is divided into an Operations Sector, a Policy Sector and a Corporate Services Sector.

Responsibilities

OSFI is responsible for the supervision of federally registered or licensed financial institutions including chartered banks, insurance, trust, loan, fraternal benefit societies, and co-operative credit societies. It also supervises employer-sponsored pension plans that are subject to the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985.

OSFI is responsible for providing actuarial advice to other departments of the federal government and performs extensive actuarial services in the valuation of government pension and insurance programs. OSFI is also responsible for the administration of the Civil Service Insurance Act and for collecting certain premium taxes pursuant to Part I of the Excise Tax Act.

Legislation

- Bank Act
- Civil Service Insurance Act
- Co-operative Credit Associations Act
- Insurance Companies Act
- Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions Act
- Part I, Excise Tax Act
- Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985
- Trust and Loan Companies Act

Organization

CORPORATE SERVICES SECTOR

This sector comprises Finance, Information and Business Services, Human Resources Management and Professional Development and Training.

OPERATIONS SECTOR

The Operations Sector centralizes the supervisory work for all federally-regulated financial institutions and pensions plans into four groups. These are: Deposit-Taking Institutions Branch, Insurance Companies Branch, Pension Benefits Division and Actuarial Services Division. Each of these groups is sub-divided into a number of different responsibility areas.

Deposit-Taking Institutions Branch

This branch is responsible for overseeing banks and federally incorporated trust, loan and investment companies, and co-operative credit associations. This includes examining and monitoring institutions for solvency, processing applications for regulatory consent and ensuing compliance with governing legislation. The branch also undertake examinations of certain provincially chartered institutions through federal-provincial agreements or as an agent of the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation.

♦ Examinations Divisions

There are five Examinations Divisions responsible for monitoring and examining deposit-taking institutions. Two are in Toronto, and one in each of Montreal, Winnipeg, and Vancouver. These three regional offices also carry out examinations of some life insurers and property and casualty insurers.

♦ Analysis Division

The Analysis Division has, as his mandate, the task of identifying, at an early stage, potential areas of systemic or institution-specific risk related to federally regulated deposit-taking institutions, and carries out financial analysis of the industry and individual companies.

♦ Rulings and Compliance Division

This Division processes applications for regulatory consent from banks, both domestic and foreign, trust and loan companies and investment companies. The Division also monitors activities of these institutions for compliance with legislation and OSFI guidelines and provides OSFI and financial institutions with rulings on legislation and guidelines.

Insurance Companies Branch

This Branch is divided into two Divisions, Life Insurance Division and Property and Casualty Insurance Division.

Life Insurance Group

This Group is responsible for the supervision of federally registered life insurance companies, branches of foreign life insurance companies, fraternal benefit societies and branches of foreign fraternal benefit societies. It is sub-divided into a number of Divisions.

♦ Life Insurance —

Corporate Analysis Division

This Division reviews and analyses all applications for the federal incorporation and registration of entities wishing to carry on life insurance activities in Canada. It also reviews request concerning areas outside the ordinary course of business.

♦ Life Insurance —

Operations Analysis Division

This Division is responsible for carrying out analytical reviews of required fillings, the calculation of early-warning tests and on-going monitoring. It is also responsible for designing changes to the annual returns and related instructions.

♦ Life Insurance — Examinations Division

This Division, based in Toronto, carries out on-site examinations of life insurers.

♦ Life Insurance — Actuarial Analysis Section

This Section reviews the actuarial reports required under the Insurance Companies Act and discusses the findings with the company's appointed actuary. On behalf of Revenue Canada, the section also verifies the Maximum Tax Actuarial Reserves of life insurance companies and fraternal benefit societies and provides advice to other government departments on actuarial services and life contingencies.

♦ Securities Administration Unit

This Unit monitors assets vested by both life and property and casualty companies and ensures that they are adequate.

Property and Casualty Insurance Division

This Division has overall responsibility for the supervision of federally registered property and casualty companies and branches of foreign insurance companies. The Division also conducts examinations of Manitoba and Newfoundland based provincially registered companies and some insurance pools. It is sub-divided into a number of Sections.

♦ Property and Casualty —

Corporate Analysis Section

This Section evaluates applications for the incorporation and registration of insurance companies, and also handles request for approval, amalgamation, changes of ownership, transfers of business and withdrawals.

♦ Property and Casualty —

Operations Analysis Section

This Section monitors and reviews federally registered companies on an ongoing basis, and makes recommendations to on required regulatory action.

♦ Property and Casualty Insurance —

Examinations/Liquidations Section

With the help of examiners in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Montreal, the Section carries out on-site examination and oversees the winding up of companies in liquidation.

♦ Property and Casualty —

Actuarial Affairs Section

This Section reviews the actuarial reports completed by the appointed actuaries of property and casualty insurance companies and carries out such tests, analysis and discussions as may be required to be satisfied that the reserves and provisions held by the companies are appropriate.

Pension Benefits Division

This Division deals with federally regulated private pension plans.

♦ Pension Benefits Standards Section

This Section is responsible for all aspects of supervision and oversight of pension plans covered by the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985.

♦ Analysis Section

This Section reviews and analyses all applications for registration, transfers, mergers and plan terminations.

Actuarial Services Division

The chief Actuary and his staff provide a range of actuarial services and advice to the Government of Canada in respect of public insurance and pension programs and, in accordance with the Public Pensions Reporting Act and the Canada Pension Plan Act, prepare statutory actuarial reports for tabling in the House of Commons.

♦ The Public Sector Insurance and Pension Programs Section

This Section carries out, for Publics Accounts and actuarial funding purposes, periodic valuations of insurance and pension plans sponsored by the government. These include plans for the Public Service, the Canadian Forces, the RCMP, Members of Parliament and federally appointed Judges. It also conducts valuation of special self-supporting insurance programs now closed to new entrants but formerly open to civil servants, war veterans and RCMP members.

♦ The Social Insurance Programs Section

This Section is responsible for periodic statutory actuarial valuations of the Canada Pension Plan and the Old Age Security program and for actuarial advice on these plans.

POLICY SECTOR

It assumes responsibility for developing and drafting the technical aspects of financial sector legislation. The Sector develops policies, issues guidelines, works on rulings that set precedents, develops legislation and regulations, represents OSFI in various international groups, including the Basle Committee of Bank Supervisors, and leads various studies. This Sector comprises five divisions.

Legislation and Precedents Division

This Division develops legislation and regulations, and also interprets legislation, regulations and guidelines, and deals with cases, that set precedents or that raise policy issues, while also coordinating assigned policy studies for OSFI. It performs these functions with respect to both deposit taking institutions and insurance companies.

Policy Initiatives Division

This Division prepares strategies and approaches to selected policy areas and recommends policy direction. Within these assigned areas the Division is responsible for the preparation of legislation, regulations or guidelines as required.

Policy and Research Division

This Division develops supervisory and accounting policies for federally regulated financial institutions and insurance companies.

External Communications and Public Affairs Division

This Division is responsible for developing and implementing external communications strategy, media and parliamentary relations and dealing with complaints and enquiries from the public about federally regulated financial institutions.

Legal Services Unit

The Unit provides or obtains all legal advice and legal services required by OSFI, including legal advice on interpretation of statutes, regulations, and other legal instruments and the preparation of legal documents. The Unit also administers access to information and privacy legislation as it applies to OSFI.

Classes of Personal Information

Practically all records held by OSFI consist of information relating to supervised financial institutions and pension plans. Some personal information may also be accumulated by OSFI in the course of conducting its supervisory function, such as information on names and functions of various company officials, information on individuals seeking to incorporate a new financial institution that would be supervised by OSFI, or information about a policy holder or depositor with a complaint against a supervised financial institution. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the financial institution, the individual, and the particular circumstances involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Part I of the Excise Tax Act imposes a tax on certain property and casualty insurance premiums related to insurance placed by residents of Canada with unauthorized insurers or with authorized insurers through brokers outside Canada. In carrying out administration of Part I of the Act, some personal information may be accumulated which is not part of the specific personal information bank described in this entry. Most of the insureds subject to the tax are corporations, but for any given year there may also be some individuals subject to tax. The personal information accumulated with respect to such individuals would be their name and address and information related to the insurance premiums subject to tax, such as policy number, description of risk, net premiums and name of insurer. The information is normally retrievable if the name of the individual and the year involved are provided.

Pacific Pilotage Authority Canada

Chapter 82

General Information

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor in Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

Pacific Pilotage Authority was incorporated pursuant to the Pilotage Act on February, 1972 as a Crown corporation under Schedule III, Part I of the Financial Administration Act.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority is in general governed by the following: Canada Shipping Act; Pilotage Act; General Pilotage Regulations; Pacific Pilotage Regulations; Authority by-laws.

Responsibilities

The role of the Authority is to establish, operate, maintain and administer in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within all coastal waters of British Columbia and the Fraser River. As a further goal, the Authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority consists of a chairman, and six members appointed by the Governor in Council.

The Authority's head office is located in Vancouver, British Columbia. All management services — administrative, personnel, financial, contracts, purchasing, etc. — are provided by the Vancouver office.

Legislation

- Authority By-Laws
- Canada Shipping Act, RSC, 1985, c. S-9
- General Pilotage Regulations
- Pacific Pilotage Regulations
- Pilotage Act, RSC, 1985, c. P-14

Organization

♦ Administration Branch

This Branch provides administrative and financial services as required to operate within accepted corporate business procedures.

♦ Operations Branch

This Branch provides pilotage service by assignment, and to dispatch qualified pilots to ships navigating within the boundaries of the Pacific Pilotage Authority.

Patented Medicine Prices Review Board

Chapter 83

General Information

Background

The Patented Medicine Prices Review Board was created under amendments to the Patent Act which came into force on December 7, 1987.

Responsibilities

The Patented Medicine Prices Review Board was given a mandate to carry out two functions:

Regulatory: To act as a safeguard against excessive prices for patented medicines which might result from the greater market power afforded to patentees under the 1987 amendments.

Reporting: To monitor and report on the Board's activities with respect to its regulatory activities, on price trends in the pharmaceutical industry generally and on the research and development performance of pharmaceutical patentees.

Legislation

- Patent Act

Organization

The Patent Act provides that the Board is to consist of no more than five members, appointed by the Governor in Council (Cabinet), including a Chairman and Vice-Chairman. The Board's Chairman is designated under the legislation as the Chief Executive Officer of the Board and is granted authority and responsibility to supervise and direct the work of the Board, including the management of its internal affairs and the work of its staff.

The Executive Director, as the senior staff member, manages the work of the staff. The senior staff of the Board consists of the Secretary to the Board (Registrar), the Director of Compliance, the Director of Policy, Planning and Evaluation and the Director of Management Services.

The staff provides a communications and education program, data collection, collation, storage and dissemination, quantitative analysis, case preparation and related services for the registry and administrative assistance to the Board. It also provides for hearings preliminary to the making of remedial orders by the Board.

◆ Compliance Branch

Its patented medicine price review activities are central to the fulfilment of the Board's Program objective which is to ensure that prices charged for patented medicines are, in the opinion of the Board, not excessive. The price and

R&D information gathered by the Branch forms the basis of the Board's Annual Report to Parliament. The Branch is responsible for the implementation of the Board's Voluntary Compliance Policy. That policy includes ongoing review and analysis of prices of all patented medicines sold in Canada through periodic patentee data submissions required by the Patented Medicines Regulations, specific Board directions, and other sources of price information; and analysis of complaints respecting patented medicine prices. The Branch manages the application of the staged compliance process in cases where prices are outside the Guidelines. It also oversees the analysis of R&D expenditures by pharmaceutical patentees.

◆ Policy, Planning and Evaluation

It is responsible for developing the broad policy direction of the Program and to see to the development of policies relating to pricing of drugs and economic analyses of related issues. The Branch maintains the effective working relationships with other departments, provinces and territories and international agencies involved in regulating medicine prices. It is charged with the development and implementation of program evaluation activities.

◆ Corporate Management and Services

This group consists of two branches — Secretariat and Management Services. It is responsible for providing management, legal registry, communications and support services to the Board as well as the delivery and application of government-wide programs and policies in the area of finance, administration, personnel, library, security, official languages and internal audit. The Secretariat is also responsible for Access to Information.

It conducts research studies to support the Board's mandate to report on patentees' price and R&D performance. It produces the Annual Report to Parliament on Board activities, pricing trends in the pharmaceutical industry and R&D expenditures by pharmaceutical patentees.

Pension Appeals Board

Chapter 84

General Information

Background

The Pension Appeals Board is a tribunal which was constituted by the Parliament of Canada, pursuant to an agreement with the government of Quebec.

Responsibilities

The Tribunal is responsible for the hearing of appeals which arise from decisions of the Minister of National Revenue (Tax Court of Canada has acquired jurisdiction with respect to appeals instituted on or after January 1, 1991) and the Minister of Human Resources Development (formerly the Minister of Employment and Immigration) under the Canada Pension Plan, and from decisions of the Minister of Revenue of Quebec (The Court of Quebec has acquired jurisdiction with respect to appeals under the Quebec Pension Plan as of October 25, 1991) and, in some circumstances, from decisions of La Commission des affaires sociales under the Quebec Pension Plan.

Most of the decisions of the Board, with respect to the Canada Pension Plan or the Quebec Pension Plan, are available to the public from the Commerce Clearing House (CCH) Canadian Employment Benefits and Pension Guide Reports, from 1993 (pages 5951 and following); in Transfer Binder, 1968 to 1985 (pp. 5953-6714); and in Transfer Binder, 1986 to 1992 (pp. 5953-6237).

Legislation

- Canada Pension Plan, R.S.C., c. C-8
- Quebec Pension Plan, R.S.Q., c. R-9

Organization

The Pension Appeals Board is made up of judges and former judges from across the country who are appointed by Order-in-Council on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Human Resources Development (formerly the Minister of Employment and Immigration). They assume these duties in addition to their judicial responsibilities, and are not considered employees of the Pension Appeals Board. An administrative office is located in Ottawa.

Report of Decisions

Most decisions of this Board with respect to the Canada or Quebec Pension Plan are available to the public as published in full by the Commerce Clearing House (CCH) in Canadian Employment Benefits and Pension Guide Reports, from 1993 (pages 5951 and following); in Transfer Binder, 1968 to 1985 (pp. 5953-6714); and in Transfer Binder, 1986 to 1992 (pp. 5953-6237). Both these documents and the decisions of the Board are held by the particular department involved to which any enquiries should be directed.

Privy Council Office

Chapter 85

General Information

Background

The Privy Council Office came into being under the Constitution Act of 1867. From 1940 on, it has also provided the secretarial functions for the Cabinet.

The Federal-Provincial Relations Office (FPRO), formerly established as a federal department on January 1, 1975, has been re-integrated with the Privy Council Office effective June 25, 1993.

Responsibilities

The Privy Council Office provides secretariat support for Cabinet and the committees of Cabinet to facilitate the collective decision-making of Cabinet, and assists the exercise of the prerogatives of the Prime Minister, including the organization and processes of government and the appointment of senior officials to government positions. The overall responsibilities of the Office include: the coordination and provision of material related to the meetings of Cabinet and Committees of Cabinet for the use of the Prime Minister and the chairpersons of committees; liaison with departments and agencies of government on Cabinet matters; undertaking special studies on matters of current public policy concern as required (this includes participation in interdepartmental committees of officials through the provision of chairpersons, members or secretaries and the preparation of papers for, and on behalf of, such committees). In addition, the Office provides support and advice to the Prime Minister on prime ministerial prerogatives, assumes responsibilities for the organization of the Government of Canada, provides advice to the Prime Minister on national security and intelligence matters, undertakes the examination of submissions to the Governor in Council to ensure conformity with policy and legal requirements, prepares draft orders, and assumes duties related to regulations made under the Statutory Instruments Act including the examination, revision, registration and preparation for publication of federal statutory regulations in Part II of the Canada Gazette.

Also, in addition to the other responsibilities outlined above, the Privy Council Office now provides advice, assistance and information to the Prime Minister and to the Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs concerning federal-provincial relations. The Office also coordinates the policy framework for federal-provincial-aboriginal relations and supports the Interlocutor for Métis and Non-Status Indians.

Legislation

- Act Respecting the Office of the Secretary to the Cabinet for Federal-Provincial Relations and Respecting the Clerk of the Privy Council, S.C. 1974-75-76, c. 16
- Order-in-Council (P.C. 1940-1121, March 25, 1940)

Organization

For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Privy Council Office is regarded as a department of government under the direction of the Prime Minister. The Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet, under whose direction the Privy Council Office's functions are carried out, is considered a deputy head taking precedence among the chief officers of the public service. The Privy Council Office is separated into the following main areas: Plans and Consultation; Machinery of Government and Senior Personnel; Operations; Security and Intelligence and Counsel; and, Corporate Services.

Public Service Commission of Canada

Chapter 86

General Information

Background

The Public Service Commission (PSC), a politically independent agency accountable to Parliament for the administration of the Public Service Employment Act, has been in existence since 1908 under various titles and legislations.

Responsibilities

Under the Public Service Employment Act, the Commission must ensure that the merit principle, as determined by the Commission, is upheld in all public service staffing operations. The objective of the Commission is to assist in the maintenance of a competent Public Service by ensuring the best qualified persons are recruited to or promoted within the Public Service, that qualified employees are deployed to meet operational requirements and that certain training services are provided on behalf of the Treasury Board.

Legislation

- Public Service Employment Act (PSEA)
- Public Service Employment Regulations (PSER)

Organization

♦ Appeals and Investigations Branch

The Appeals and Investigations Branch establishes independent boards to hear appeals by public servants against alleged breaches of the Public Service Employment Act and Regulations in such matters as appointment, promotion, demotion and release. Decisions of appeal boards are final and binding on the parties and on the Commission, and can be set aside only by the Federal Court of Appeal. The Branch is responsible for investigating and issuing opinions on behalf of the Commission as to whether an employee's opportunity for advancement has been prejudicially affected by an appointment without competition. A positive opinion gives the employee the right to appeal such appointments. The Branch is also responsible for the investigation of complaints of irregularities in the staffing process that are not subject to appeal; for the investigation of complaints of harassment in the workplace and for conciliating settlements where complaints are upheld. Training, advice and assistance are provided to departments, unions and other interested individuals.

♦ Audit and Review Branch

The Audit and Review Branch is responsible for auditing the management of staffing that has been delegated to departments and federal agencies governed by the Public Service Employment Act. It also evaluates the exercise of the staffing authority that has not been delegated to the departments and informs the Commission of the relevance and effectiveness of its staffing policies. The Branch audits on behalf of Treasury Board the implementation of Treasury Board's human resources policies. It also conducts internal audits and evaluations of Commission programs.

♦ Communications Branch

This Branch manages the Commission's communication function according to Government Communications Policy by providing research and analysis, planning, advice and project management services to the President, Commissioners and Commission managers. It is the focal point for the Commission's external communications, particularly with regard to recruitment advertising, issues management, media and public relations and the production of tools such as publications, audio-visuals and exhibits.

♦ Corporate Management Branch

This Branch provides services in support of the Commission and its programs. This includes financial, administrative and information systems and services; corporate management and strategic planning; coordination of Commission official language responsibilities; administering several provisions of the Public Service Employment Act; and, assisting with parliamentary, union, international and other external relations.

As of 1 April 1993, the Branch is also responsible for investigating complaints against deployments.

♦ Executive Programs Branch

The Executive Programs Branch handles the recruitment, selection, assessment and career counselling of the Executive Group. It also administers Treasury Board's career development programs for executives and employees at feeder levels. These programs include the Career Assignment Program, the Interchange Canada Program, the International Exchange Program, the Business/Government Executive Exchange Program, and the Employment Equity Initiatives Program. This branch also implements initiatives designed to increase the representation of employment equity target groups within the Executive Group.

♦ Human Resources Management Branch

The Human Resources Management Branch is responsible for developing policies and guidelines and for ensuring that the corporate management team possesses the strategies, structures and mechanisms required to manage its human resources. The Branch provides consultation and support services to Commission managers and employees in such areas as classification of positions, staffing, career and professional development, staff relations, and language training and development. The Branch provides compensation and benefits services to all employees of the Commission, as well as confidential employee assistance and counselling. It also provides advice and assistance to managers in the application of various policies and provisions governing the management of human resources, and is responsible for planning, managing and monitoring such departmental activities as employment equity and official languages.

◆ Regional Offices

The Commission's seven regional offices are collectively responsible for delivering programs and services to federal departments and employees as well as to members of the public across Canada. The Regional Directors are responsible for adapting the Commission's programs and services to the particular needs of its publics in each region.

◆ Staffing Programs Branch

The Staffing Programs Branch is responsible for the development and management of legislation, regulations, policies, standards of selection and assessment, instruments of delegation and programs pertaining to appointments to and within the Public Service. The Branch recruits and refers candidates from outside the Public Service, and coordinates and manages post-secondary recruitment programs. It conducts staffing actions not delegated by the Commission to departments, monitors public service staffing activities and issues, and manages appointment-related information. In addition, the Branch develops assessment instruments and operates assessment centres to evaluate a variety of skills and abilities. The Branch is also responsible for certain programs and services delegated to the Commission by the Treasury Board. These include workforce adjustment, employment equity programs and labour market and human resource analysis.

◆ The Commissioners

The jurisdictional powers of the Public Service Commission rest with the three commissioners, one of whom is the President and Chief Executive Officer. Appointed by the Governor in Council for a ten-year term, the commissioners have the status of deputy head. Together, they set overall policy in accordance with the Public Service Employment Act.

◆ Training Programs Branch

The Training Programs Branch provides training and related support and consulting services to federal departments and agencies to help them meet the job-related training and development needs of their employees. Training is given in the National Capital Region and other regions across Canada. In addition to language training courses, Language Training Canada provides orientation services to determine candidates' aptitudes and eligibility for language training, and develops and produces language training courses and programs to meet general and specific operational needs. Training and Development Canada designs, develops and delivers middle management, supervisory and professional and technical skills training.

Persons completing a Personal Information Request Form are required to give the pertinent competition numbers. Class of Individuals: Non-public servants who are being considered for appointment through a process of personnel selection administered by the Staffing Programs Branch. Purpose: This bank exists in accordance with section 10 of the Public Service Employment Act to record and provide information related to any process of personnel selection by competition or without competition administered by the Staffing Programs Branch of the Public Service Commission. Consistent Uses: This bank is used to staff positions and to provide the necessary information to participants in selection actions on request and in accordance with the PSC policy on "Disclosure of Information Following a Selection Action", to explain the reasons for the selection decision and to provide related documentation for PSC Investigations as a result of the selection processes. The information on under-represented groups is used for statistical purposes by the Public Service Commission, Treasury Board and the employing department. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two (2) years after the eligibility list expires or two (2) years after it has been used for administrative purposes and then destroyed. PAC Number: 85-016 Related to PR#: PSC SPB 030 TBS Registration: 001427 Bank Number: PSC PPU 040

PSC Occupational Test Results

Description: This bank may contain test answer sheets and results for persons who, for selection or other purposes, have undergone PSC tests. Class of Individuals: Non-public servants who have undergone tests developed by the PSC. Purpose: This bank exists in accordance with section 16(1) of the Public Service Employment Act and section 14(1) of the Public Service Employment Regulations to record information on tests conducted for purposes of selection, such as competitions. Consistent Uses: The bank is used to record and provide information to departments on the results of tests administered by PSC and/or departments to determine the suitability of candidates in the selection process and for human resources planning and analysis. Relationship with other systems: For research purposes the information may also be linked to other PSC information banks. Retention and Disposal Standards: Hard copy files are kept for five (5) years and destroyed. Candidate test results are kept on computerized files for two (2) years after they are superseded or become obsolete. A candidate's most recent result for a given test is retained indefinitely on computerized files. PAC Number: 85-016 Related to PR#: PSC SPB 030 TBS Registration: 001424 Bank Number: PSC PPU 025

Second Language Assessment

Description: This bank may contain the appropriate second language assessment request and record of results form, basic personal data, oral interviews recorded on cassette, assessments, reports and results. Class of Individuals: Non-public servants who were assessed by the Language Assessment Services Division of the Public Service Commission for second language proficiency. Purpose: This bank exists in accordance with sections 16 and 20 of the Public Service Employment Act to assess the second language proficiency of candidates. Consistent Uses: This bank is used to maintain a record on candidates tested for the purpose of appointment to bilingual positions in the public service. Relationship with other systems: Test results are input in the SLE Test Results System (PSC PPU 030). Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for three (3) years, interviews on cassette are retained for two (2) years unless the candidate agrees to their earlier disposal and then destroyed. PAC Number: 85-016 Related to PR#: PSC SPB 030 TBS Registration: 001426 Bank Number: PSC PPU 035

Second Language Evaluation (SLE) Test Results

Description: This bank may contain SLE test answer booklets and results for persons who have taken the Second Language Evaluation Oral Interaction Test, Reading Test, Writing Test, or Writing for Exemption Test. For candidates tested in Oral Interaction, the test cassettes are retained by the administering PSC or departmental test centre. Individuals completing a Personal Information Request Form are required to quote their social insurance number. The social insurance number will be used until such time as it is phased out and replaced by a unique identifier. Class of Individuals: Non-public servants who have taken the Second Language Evaluation Oral Interaction Test, Reading Test, Writing Test or Writing for Exemption Test. Purpose: This bank exists in accordance with sections 16 and 20 of the Public Service Employment Act to record Second Language Evaluation (SLE) and Language Knowledge Examination (LKE) scores and language assessment results for the purpose of appointment. Consistent Uses: The bank is used to provide information on second language evaluation assessment for staffing of bilingual positions and information for general personnel management, research and statistical purposes. Relationship with other systems: The bank provides the individual's test results to the SLE database at the Personnel Applications Centre (PAC) at Supply and Services Canada (SSC). Through PAC, that information is then available on-line to authorized personnel in all government departments having appropriate terminals, and by telephone enquiry. The Treasury Board's Official Languages Information System (OLIS) interfaces with PAC to obtain SLE test results which it links with job position requirements. For research purposes the information may also be linked to other PSC information banks. Retention and Disposal Standards: Computerized records are retained for two (2) years after they are superseded or have become obsolete. Hard copy files are retained for five (5) years. Oral Interaction Tests on cassettes administered by a PPC assessor/monitor are retained for two (2) years unless the candidate agrees to their earlier disposal. Records are then destroyed. PAC Number: 85-016 Related to PR#: PSC SPB 030 TBS Registration: 001425 Bank Number: PSC PPU 030

General Administrative Documentation

In the course of conducting the activities and programs of the Public Service Commission, categories of personal information are accumulated which are not contained in the specific information banks described in this entry. Examples of such personal information include routine correspondence of an administrative nature, complaints and inquiries files as well as contracts for personal and professional services and unsolicited applications for employment. This information is normally filed by general subjects and is retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the data and subject matter. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Surveys and Studies

The Public Service Commission occasionally surveys individuals and private firms who have participated in PSC programs or made use of its services. In the majority of cases, the identities of persons responding to the surveys are not recorded. These surveys usually form part of studies and are done to obtain individual's views and opinions on PSC activities such as training, staffing, appeals, audits and other departmental responsibilities. The information is used for program planning and to evaluate the effectiveness of training methods and of PSC operations. It is also used to respond to training needs; to obtain a basis for the establishment of policies and procedures; and to ascertain the quality of services, identify problems in those services and make the necessary improvements. The retention periods for this class of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject file in which they are stored.

Public Service Staff Relations Board

Chapter 87

General Information

Background

The Public Service Staff Relations Board was established in 1967 by the Public Service Staff Relations Act.

Responsibilities

The Board administers the Public Service Staff Relations Act. Its responsibilities include such matters as determination of bargaining units, certification and decertification of bargaining agents, arbitration of interest disputes, adjudication of rights disputes and generally providing an administrative structure within which the rights and responsibilities of the employers and employees in the federal public service may be exercised and/or enforced. The Board also administers the provisions of the Parliamentary Employment and Staff Relations Act, as well as certain provisions of Part II of the Canada Labour Code.

Legislation

- P.E.S.R.A. Regulations and Rules of Procedures
- Parliamentary Employment and Staff Relations Act
- Part II — Canada Labour Code (certain provisions only)
- Public Service Staff Relations Act
- Public Service Staff Relations Board Regulations and Rules of Procedures

Organization

Pursuant to the Public Service Staff Relations Act (R.S.C. 1985, chapter P-35), the Board is composed of "...a Chairperson, a Vice-Chairperson, not less than three Deputy Chairpersons and such other full-time and part-time members as the Governor in Council considers necessary to discharge the responsibilities of the Board." All appointments are for periods not exceeding seven years, with the exception of the chairperson, vice-chairperson and deputy chairpersons, whose appointments are for periods not exceeding ten years. Part-time members are appointed primarily for the purpose of adjudicating grievances.

♦ Office of Mediation Services

The office provides a mediation and conciliation service to employers and bargaining agents when impasses occur in the negotiation of collective agreements. Assistance, including the conduct of examination hearings on behalf of the Board, is provided to the same parties to determine managerial or confidential positions which are to be excluded from the bargaining unit. Similar assistance is given in the matter of the determination of positions designated as necessary in the interest of the safety or security of the public. Mediation is provided to parties and individuals in complaints and grievances before the Board. Periodic workshops on the mediation process are conducted for the parties. Finally, assistance is provided in relationship building and consultation systems.

♦ Office of the Secretary/General Counsel

This branch is composed of three divisions, Legal Services, Operations and Corporate Services.

Legal Services provides the Chairperson, members and officers with legal advice and counsel on matters relating to the operations of the Board. It also represents the interests of the Board in judicial review proceedings before the Federal Court of Appeal.

Operations consists of case management services which are responsible for the management and control of all proceedings before the Board.

Corporate Services is responsible for the major corporate functions of Finance, Information Systems and Human Resource Management as well as the provision of administrative support including library services, communications and corporate planning.

Public Works and Government Services Canada

Chapter 88

General Information

Background

Public Works and Government Services Canada was created through the amalgamation of the former Government Telecommunications Agency (Communications Canada), Public Works Canada (PWC), Supply and Services Canada (SSC), and the Translation Bureau (Secretary of State of Canada).

Responsibilities

The Department of Public Works and Government Services Canada is the major provider of central and common services to the Government of Canada. Its services and programs are delivered through offices across Canada, and in the United States and Europe.

Common services include the acquisition, management, operation, maintenance, design, construction, repair and disposal of federal real property, on a fee-for-service basis; the acquisition of goods and services for federal departments and agencies; Crown assets distribution; advertisement management; information management/information technology infrastructure and common services; and the development and application of standards for federal government procurement. Special Operating Agencies within PWGSC also offer common services such as translation, interpretation, consulting and auditing, printing and publishing, on an optional fee-for-service basis.

The department also carries out certain administrative and management functions on behalf of the federal government. These include the Receiver General for Canada function; central accounting and reporting; administration of the public service payroll and superannuation systems; and the provision of productive working environments for public servants in 2,500 locations across Canada. The department manages a diverse portfolio of office space and other general purpose property, as well as certain bridges, highways, locks, dams, and the Parliamentary Precinct. Use of these functions is normally mandatory for federal departments and agencies.

Comprises the Audit function which is responsible for the development and implementation of a management oriented integrated and comprehensive audit program linked to the strategic directions, operational programs, plans and priorities of the department; the Evaluation function which provides senior management with timely and credible information about the continued relevance, success and cost effectiveness of departmental activities; the Internal Affairs function which provides investigative services to the Department when there is evidence, allegation or suspicion of employee involvement in the defalcations, violations of laws, regulations or departmental codes of conduct; and the Contract Quality Assurance function responsible for reviewing contract submissions requiring Deputy Ministerial, Ministerial and Treasury Board approval.

◆ Contract Claims Resolution Board

Responsible for terminations for convenience of supply contracts, as well as the resolution and settlement of disputes arising from contracts and the coordination of information between the department and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal. Also provided are periodic quantitative reports concerning the department's dispute resolution program. In concert with Architectural and Engineering Services, Realty Services and Legal Services, the Board reviews claims to identify those that seem impossible to resolve through the normal departmental process. Claims that cannot be resolved internally can be referred to a contract disputes advisory board or go to commercial arbitration or litigation. The Board provides guidance, necessary research, and administrative resource capabilities should one of these alternatives be pursued. In addition to providing guidance to senior management and project managers in the handling of disputes, the Board formulates policies and procedures through monitoring, post-audit and evaluation of various disputes, including those involving litigation.

Canada Communication Group

The Canada Communication Group (CCG) is a Special Operating Agency within Public Works and Government Services Canada that provides core printing and publishing services, supplemented by electronically-based document management services, such as the Senior Executive Network (SEN), media monitoring coordination, electronic forms and legacy document conversion.

Canadian Commercial Corporation

Canadian Commercial Corporation is a trade facilitator providing contract-related services to Canadian exporters. It does so as prime contractor in an export sale. CCC's involvement provides Canadian suppliers with the tangible backing of their own government and enhances their credibility with the foreign customer, CCC can help at all stages of a transaction from identifying opportunities and assisting in bidding to contract administration and auditing.

Communications Branch

The Communications Branch provides a full range of communications services and products; provides advice on the communications implications of programs, policies and decisions; supports the Minister and the Deputy Minister in carrying out their parliamentary responsibilities; and supports individual branches and agencies in communicating their services to client publics. The Communications Branch also works with managers to facilitate ongoing, two-way communications with employees by developing internal communications strategies so that PWGSC employees are informed about, and can participate in, key developments in the department.

Consulting and Audit Canada

Consulting and Audit Canada (CAC) a special operating agency, established as of April 1, 1990. The mandate of CAC is to provide management consulting, audit and related services on an optional and fee-for-service basis to the Government of Canada and, upon request, to other governments, international organizations and other public sector agencies. Through these services, Consulting and Audit Canada seeks to make a leading contribution to the improvement of public sector management and operations in Canada and abroad.

Government Operational Service

The mission of Government Operational Service is: the fulfillment of Receiver General responsibilities, the administration of compensation services, and the provision of services and optional products in the area of finance and personnel. It also provides services in the areas of comptrollership and finance, corporate policy and planning, corporate management and executive services, and advertising and public opinion research. In fulfilling these roles, Government Operational Service is organized into the following areas of responsibility each of which are detailed below:

◆ Advertising and Public Opinion Research Sector

Advertising and Public Opinion Research Sector is responsible for the management of government advertising and for reviewing advertising campaigns and public opinion research proposals in Departmental Annual Plans with respect to subject and theme, and is also responsible for ensuring the advertising programs and research projects are within overall government expenditure guidelines.

◆ Banking and Cash Management Sector

Responsible for carrying out the public money and banking program activities mandated to the Receiver General by the FAA. Banking and Cash Management functions include the administration and recording of inflows to and outflows from the Consolidated Revenue Fund, and the negotiation and tendering for banking services and facilities required by the government. Its activities include the management of the deposit of all monies collected by the government, and placement of excess funds in interest earning accounts at Canadian financial institutions, and the settlement for redeemed government payment instruments, (cheques, direct deposit payments, electronic payments, and Unemployment Insurance warrants).

◆ Central Accounting and Reporting Sector

Carries out its Receiver General central accounting and reporting responsibilities through the maintenance of the Accounts of Canada; the preparation of interim financial reports including the monthly statements of financial operations; the preparation of the Annual Public Accounts. To carry out these responsibilities, the Sector maintains the Central Accounting Systems (CAS).

◆ Compensation Sector

Authority and responsibility for the pay and benefits function for federal public servants are shared by all Government departments and agencies. The Treasury Board manages the compensation function for employees who staff the Government's departments and many of its agencies; individual departments and agencies administer day-to-day pay and benefits operations; and, some Crown Corporations manage and administer compensation for their respective employees.

This sector is responsible for the administration of compensation systems such as the provision of pay, pensions and insurance services on a government-wide basis through such products as Public Service Pay and Superannuation, RCMP Compensation, Canadian Forces Superannuation and Members of Parliament Retirement Allowances and Judges Pensions. Delivery of these services is accomplished through a national network of 11 services offices (consolidating to 6 by April 1997) which respond to approximately 150 departments and other federal organizations.

◆ Corporate Policy and Planning Sector

The Sector is responsible for strategic and corporate planning, corporate policy, cabinet and corporate services, and security policy and planning. It is also responsible for analysis of corporate issues, departmental coordination of government-wide initiatives, and provides research and executive committee support to the Minister, Deputy Minister, Business Board, and the interdepartmental Procurement Strategy Committee and Procurement Review Committee.

◆ Departmental Products Sector

Responsible for the overall management of payment issue on behalf of all government departments and agencies using the Consolidated Revenue Fund. This includes the accounts payable activity as well as payments to the public. Optional personnel and financial systems and accounting services are also offered. These systems and services, in support of common administrative functions within the departments and agencies, include the Common Departmental Financial System (CDFS), FINCON, Departmental Reporting System (DRS), Ad Hoc Reporting and Downloading (AHRD), FINCAP, Central Agency Personnel Information Systems (CAPIS) and Departmental Employee Benefit Statements (DEBS). Operating costs for most of the optional services are recovered from customer departments.

◆ Finance Sector

Plans, develops, administers and monitors financial framework policies, systems, processes, practices and procedures for the Department. Provides financial planning, analysis and reporting services, including the production of departmental management reports and public accounts year-end submissions; Prepares operational plans, including the Operational Plan and Budget, the Annual Reference Level Update, Quarterly Reviews, and the Estimates; Develops and coordinates the implementation of quantitative measures to assess the operational performance of PWGSC Branches; Provides authoritative advice to HQ and regional management on central agency and departmental financial policies systems and practices; Develops and monitors the implementation of a framework for regional delivery of financial services; Develops and implements a framework to provide sound business advice regarding the operations of Special Operating Agencies and provides cost-effective delivery of financial management services, including the department's financial transactions, travel and relocation programs and cash management. The sector is also responsible for the maintenance, development and operation of internal PWGSC corporate financial processes and systems.

◆ Financial Information Strategy (FIS) Project

The Financial Information Strategy (FIS) is a joint Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC)/Treasury Board (TB) strategy for satisfying government-wide financial needs using modern delivery mechanisms, as well as clarifying the roles and responsibilities of all players. Under FIS, PWGSC is responsible for developing, implementing and operating central and optional financial systems in accordance with the policies and standards framework provided by the Treasury Board. The TB framework includes a study of user requirements, government-wide impact analysis, fast track initiatives, and implementation of common information management.

Within PWGSC the FIS Project is composed of the following system development sub-projects: Common Departmental Financial Systems (CDFS), Central Financial Management and Reporting System (CFMRS), Interdepartmental Settlements System (ISS) and related Utility Services (US).

◆ Office of the Corporate Secretary

Provides a secretariat service to the department and the Minister. This responsibility includes coordinating all Access to Information and Privacy requests, providing executive services in support of the departmental decision-making process and preparing ministerial and deputy ministerial correspondence.

Government Telecommunications and Informatics Services Branch

Government Telecommunications and Informatics Services (GTIS) is a Common Service Organization within Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC). GTIS' vision is to be recognized by the Federal Government community as the principal agent for IM/IT infrastructure and common services. GTIS' mission is to provide common IM/IT services to facilitate universal access to information by the Federal Government and its client community, and to provide departmental IM/IT services to PWGSC.

Products and services are grouped as core business lines (i.e., those that are fully developed and currently available) and evolving business lines (i.e., those that have strategic potential but require further development). The core business lines include telecommunications services, network and computer services, and application management services. The evolving business lines include network management, electronic commerce, workstation (end-user) services, IM/IT education services for IT professionals and business managers, and information delivery services.

As a Common Service Organization GTIS must deliver its business services within an optional, market-driven environment. Within this model, GTIS will strive to be the principal agent for infrastructure and common services where value can be demonstrably added through the role of a central, internal agent.

In conjunction with the Chief Informatics Officer (CIO), Treasury Board Secretariat, GTIS will participate in the realization of the vision presented in the "Blueprint for Renewing Government Services Using Information Technology", implementing the necessary infrastructure components, and developing and implementing shared and common applications. In this context, GTIS is viewed as a complementary "operating arm" of the CIO, providing the means to execute those components of the Blueprint which fall within its mandate and capabilities.

On behalf of PWGSC, GTIS performs the role of designated manager of Government Information Holdings and IM/IT authority. This comprises policy, standards, and planning (including the annual Information Management Plan). GTIS chairs the PWGSC Information Management Committee (IMC) that provides executive coordination and oversight for the Department's IM/IT initiatives.

◆ Application Management Services Sector

Application Management Services (AMS) was created to respond to the needs of the Federal Government for development and maintenance of software applications. AMS has the mandate to provide value-added design, development, implementation and support of IM/IT applications to PWGSC and other government departments. The AMS Vision is to be the supplier of choice to government departments for developing, supporting and integrating common administrative applications and infrastructure, and to be acknowledged by its partners and clients as an employer of competent professionals who deliver measurable efficiencies through the management of information and technology. AMS has demonstrable experience in the development and support of both large-scale government-wide applications, and smaller, leading-edge technology applications. AMS has pioneered the development and implementation of client-server applications in government. A broad spectrum of functional areas are represented in the work conducted by AMS: compensation, personnel, property and assets management, financial management, and acquisition and supply systems. AMS offers a comprehensive range of services which are grouped into five areas: Application Development, Application Support, Integrated Business Solutions, Application Development Environment, and IT Educational Services.

◆ Business Processes and Systems Sector

The Sector has particular responsibility for the re-engineering of generic departmental administrative business processes and electronic commerce applications. Through the provision of a suite of electronic tools, the Sector supports Locally Shared Support Services initiatives. The Sector is also responsible for the maintenance, development and operation of internal PWGSC corporate processes and systems.

◆ Business Support Services Directorate

The mission of the Directorate is to provide internal common services to support GTIS business functions which include executive support, committee support, policy development, internal communications, acquisitions, planning, training, billing, performance measurement, business renewal and administration.

◆ Customer Services and Business Development Sector

The mission of this Sector is to market and promote GTIS' services and to provide IM/IT solutions to customer business needs so that government programs may be effectively delivered to Canadians. Customer Service and Business Development (CSBD) functions as the crucible within which GTIS renews itself. Through the continuous identification of opportunities for product introduction and evolution, CSBD creates an environment for change driven by customer needs. CSBD defines and maintains GTIS' services architecture principles. Through the coordination of the GTIS business plan and through preparation of new service business cases, CSBD provides GTIS with a sound business focus and support to the management team. The Sector manages the sale of all GTIS' products and services and develops strategic account plans, revenue targets and strategies as well as promotional programs. The Sector's Information Delivery Services' (IDS) strategic business unit helps government organizations to access common information and package and deliver their own information using a variety of information technologies. Enquiries Canada offers to the federal community customized information services to support its communication strategies.

◆ Departmental Chief Information Officer

The role of this Sector is to focus on departmental IM/IT services and to serve as a window to GTIS services for PWGSC. It is responsible for the Departmental Chief Information Officer (DCIO) function and related services. The PWGSC-CIO function helps ensure a corporate IM/IT perspective by providing strategic support to the PWGSC-wide committee infrastructure, strategic planning and departmental architecture, ensuring that the PWGSC IM/IT vision is implemented and that its progress is monitored against this vision. The Sector develops and implements the corporate IM/IT strategy, including the Information Management Plan, Strategic Information Technology Plan, and Technology Architecture and supporting standards. It develops an integrated view of business, administrative and management requirements to delineate common departmental applications, common service applications, and business specific applications, and delivers solutions for the Department in partnership with GTIS business sectors. It provides IM/IT Management Services to establish and support a business-driven IM/IT Governance Framework within PWGSC, PWGSC IM/IT Policy Framework, Departmental IM/IT plans, Departmental Work Architecture, Internet/Intranet Services and Locally Shared Support Services (LSSS) initiatives. The sector is responsible for the establishment of the PWGSC Information Technology Program, for managing the delivery of services to departmental clients through GTIS operating units, maintaining thorough familiarity with client business and strategic functions, ensuring services integrate appropriately with PWGSC architecture, and promoting IM/IT requirements within GTIS. The Sector establishes working groups across the Department involving business-line staff in committees to focus on applications, information, and technology integration. It is responsible for the development of the PWGSC technology architecture, the Migration Strategy to move the Department to the future technology infrastructure which will be based on the new architecture, and for the integration of the current suite of technology products and services towards a standard, department-wide, single products infrastructure environment to ensure that all planned technology projects are compliant with the Department's target architecture. The sector leads the IM/IT quality management efforts in the Department, manages its information holdings, directs the provision of departmental information services including forms management and design, records and library services, manuals and directives management, mail and distribution services. It also provides IT Security Services to PWGSC.

◆ Industrial and Corporate Security Directorate

Meets the Canadian government's national and international industrial security commitments; provides a broad range of internal security services including physical and personnel security and designated and classified information protection; conducts a personnel security clearance and reliability check program for the department and industry; conducts internal investigations; and manages the departmental and industrial Information Technology Security (ITS), COMSEC Material Control and Foreign Ownership Control or Influence (FOCI) programs.

◆ Network and Computer Services Sector

The mission of this Sector is to maintain, support and improve GTIS' network and computing systems and services with a customer-oriented and value-added focus. The Sector provides computer and network operation services for all applications on all information-processing platforms managed by GTIS. It provides day-to-day technical support of GTIS' national information processing infrastructure and distributed computing and end-user support services to clients in their use of local area networks. It also prepares, tests and implements foundation and business systems, or components thereof, to operate in both GTIS mainframe and client/server environments, participates in the development of the technology support infrastructure for some major system projects, and provides data centre management services to some government departments.

◆ Telecommunications Sector

The mission of this Sector is to deliver government-wide common telecommunications products and services to promote effective service delivery to Canadians, and to prepare a seamless integrated telecommunications and informatics enterprise network infrastructure to foster business renewal and public access to government services. The Sector delivers telecommunications services to federal departments and agencies in such areas as computer networks, satellite networks to remote areas (e.g. teleconferencing), electronic text and voice messaging, and electronic data interchange. It plans, develops and implements the communications network infrastructure and manages engineering projects in planning, designing and developing new telecommunications networks and services. It also plans, develops and implements switched and integrated (voice/data) network services, including internetworking services (i.e. wide area network connecting departmental local area networks nation-wide) and broadband (multi-media) switched services using technologies such as fibre optic and mobile satellite networks. This Sector also manages the Government Telecommunications Architect Program for government-wide coordination, planning and implementation of an enterprise network infrastructure.

Human Resources Branch

Responsible for the provision of strategic and operational leadership in the management of all the Department's human resources (including Special Operating Agencies).

◆ Classification Directorate

Responsible for the provision of organization design and classification services, for the administration of the UJEP Conversion, and for the development of classification policies and programs to ensure adherence to governmental classification guidelines and practices.

◆ Corporate Staffing and Human Resources Programs

This includes: recruitment; deployment; human resources planning; career planning; work force adjustment; national trainee programs; COOP, COSEP and NON-COSEP programs; employment equity; Departmental Assignment Programs; Career Management Services; Career Transition Centres; and the Bilan Social Project.

◆ Human Relations

Responsible for the provision of labour relations advice to senior management and for assisting personnel advisors in ongoing labour relations functions. The Directorate is also responsible for the development of compensation policies, programs and procedures to ensure standardized administration of pay and benefits across the Department. As well, the Directorate coordinates the planning, development and operations of personnel information processing systems, and develops policies and programs to ensure the systems' continued effective in meeting requirements. Finally, the Directorate manages provision of Employee Assistance Program services to departmental managers and staff.

◆ Operations Directorate (Special Operating Agencies)

Responsible for the provision of the full range of human resources services to managers and employees of the department's Special Operating Agencies.

◆ Organization, Classification and Official Languages

The Directorate is the centre of expertise for the Department in the fields of organization design and classification and is responsible for the provision of associated consulting/advisory services at all levels of the organization, from the senior executive cadre, down. The Directorate is responsible for administering the classification grievance process. It also administers the departmental Official Languages Program in accordance with the Official Languages Act, provides related services and responds to all formal complaints. The Directorate develops policies and programs related to each of the above areas to ensure adherence to governmental legislation and directives.

The Directorate provides the full range of human resources services to external organizations on a fee for services basis.

◆ Personnel Operations, Training and Development

Provides a full range of services to management and employees of the Department. This includes the provision of personnel services and advice in the areas of classification, staffing, human resource planning, staff relations, official languages, compensation and employee assistance.

Responsible for management of a comprehensive departmental training and educational program which allows the Department to plan for future human resource needs and skill requirements. The Directorate is also responsible for organizational renewal projects.

Real Property Services Branch

The new Real Property Services Branch (RPS) was created on May 18, 1995. It's a fundamental redesign of three former branches — Real Property, Realty and Architectural and Engineering Services. The new RPS approach is to position itself close to its clients in order to make it easy for them to do business with the Branch. It is made up of Client Service Teams that act as focal points for client relations on all day to day operational requirements and Centres of Expertise in the four major business lines responsible for supporting service delivery with required skills and resources. Depending on client needs, the client service teams will be dedicated to a client on a geographical basis, for a specific complex or to provide a specific product for which the client has a predominant need.

Real Property Services is led in PWGSC's five regions by Regional Directors General and in the national capital area by a Director General, Operations. They are responsible for the delivery of integrated real property services.

National leadership for the four business lines is provided through Directors General at Headquarters: Office Accommodation Services, Architectural and Engineering Services, Property Management Services and Real Estate Services.

The Office Accommodation Services Sector sets the framework for the custodial responsibilities of the department with respect to office space and general purpose space, and offers cost effective services to client departments and agencies in the planning, acquisition and fit-up of office accommodation.

The Architectural and Engineering Services Sector develops a national program of professional services for the design and construction of federal buildings and facilities owned by the department on an optional, revenue generating basis.

The Real Estate Services is responsible for the custodial role of the department with respect to non-office real property assets such as national treasures and engineering, surplus and other special facilities. It provides leadership for the disposal of the government's real property assets, administers municipal grants and provides a full range of real estate services.

The Property Management Services Sector develops a property management program both for clients who occupy PWGSC's owned space and clients who are their own custodian on an optional, revenue generating basis.

According to the 1995/96 Main Estimates, Real Property Services is operating under the old Operational Planning Framework (OPF). This is being cross-walked to a new OPF reflecting the new organization and will be included in the 1996/97 Main Estimates.

◆ Logistics, Electrical, Fuel and Transportation Directorate

Is responsible for procurement and commodity management of a wide variety of products and services which include special and standard vehicles, industrial vehicles, logistics support equipment, petroleum products, industrial chemicals, compressed gases, goods and services in support of vehicle fleets, electrical and electronic goods and a vast range of products grouped under security, firefighting and test equipment.

◆ Regions

The Regional Offices are responsible for the provision of all services offered by the Public Works and Government Services Administration at the regional level in Canada. To deliver its services, the operational component has been divided into six regions within the country. They are: Atlantic Region, Québec Region, Ontario Region, Western Region, and Pacific Region. The National Office located in Ottawa, provides services for the National Capital area. These regions are responsible for the provision of services at the local level. They carry out the departments program delivery responsibilities and services in the areas of planning, property administration, real estate services, contract policy and administration, design and construction, finance and administration, purchasing offices, provide acquisition, stock item supply, self-service stores, warehousing, assets management and Crown assets distribution.

As well, they provide payroll and related functions to client department, and produce socio-economic payments such as the Child Tax Credit, Old Age Security, Guaranteed Income Supplements, Canada Pension Plan, Canadian Jobs Strategy, National Revenue Income Tax refunds, Goods and Services Credit Payments and Census payments. In addition, a specialized branch in Shédiac, New Brunswick, is responsible for superannuation services.

Royal Canadian Mint

Was originally established in 1908 by royal proclamation as a branch of the Royal Mint, London, under the provision of the United Kingdom Coinage Act. In 1931, the Mint was established under statute as a branch of the Department of Finance and in 1969, as a Crown corporation under Part X of the Government Organization Act, 1969 (now the Royal Canadian Mint Act R.S.C. 1970, c. R-8).

Supply Operations Service Branch

The Supply Operations Service Branch is responsible for providing supply-related common services to other government departments and agencies. These services include: requirements definition; acquisitions of goods and services; development of standards; and traffic management services. It is the responsibility of the acquisitions service to procure complex technical engineering and science products and services, as well as those that are of a commercial nature. The branch is also responsible for contracting-out research and development requirements and public awareness programs. The branch is composed of six sectors and one project, i.e., Supply Program Management, Aerospace, Marine and Electronics Systems; Industrial and Commercial Products and Standardization Services; Science, Informatics and Professional Services, Public Relations and Print Contracting Services; Real Property Contracting Services; and, the Fixed Link Project.

◆ Aerospace and Electronics Procurement Directorates

The Canadian General Standards Board (CGSB) develops standards and offers programs that list suppliers meeting those standards. CGSB offers a wide range of services to meet government needs, including development of standardization products, conformity assessment, and quality system registration. These services cover a variety of areas such as office furniture, paints, petroleum, textiles, non-destructive testing, transport of dangerous goods, and janitorial supplies, including environmentally-sensitive standardization products which support green procurement, comprenant des produits de normalisation plus sensibles à l'environnement qui répondent mieux à l'approvisionnement écologique.

◆ Commercial and Consumer Products Directorate

The directorate is responsible for the acquisition and product management of a wide variety of products such as food, drugs, scientific items, clothing and textiles, as well as furniture and office supplies. In addition, the Directorate buys agriculture and fishery products, forage and feed, medical supplies, laboratory and scientific/ photographic equipment, and provides design advice for clothing, textiles, accessories and related equipment. It also contracts for a wide range of standard and custom-manufactured products and service requirements (with the exception of professional and printing services), including but not limited, to warehousing and storage, catering, linen rental and laundering.

◆ Crown Assets Distribution Directorate

The Crown Assets Distribution Directorate (CADD) provides functional management and support to the eight (8) regional Crown Assets Distribution Centres (CADC) in the disposal of all crown-owned assets declared surplus by federal departments, agencies and Crown Corporations located in Canada and abroad so as to achieve best value for the Crown. Each CADC acts as agent for the United States, British and other governments in the sale of their surplus assets located in Canada, CADD has arrangements with certain European governments for the disposal of Canadian military surplus located in their countries.

◆ European Directorate

The European Directorate is responsible for serving the needs of customer departments located in Canada, as well as federal agencies overseas. The London Office is responsible for procurement, mainly of specialized, unique items from all countries of Europe, including the Netherlands, Italy and Scandinavian countries, other than those handled the Koblenz Office. This office also provides a field contract administration service for major contracts placed directly from Canada, and a security clearance facility for Canadian government and industrial personnel visiting United Kingdom secure facilities. The PWGSC office located in Koblenz, Germany, supports Canadian Forces in Europe and Canada through purchases from continental Europe. Koblenz provides Receiver General services to the Department of National Defence in Europe as well as Crown Assets disposal services.

◆ Industrial and Commercial Products and Standardization Services Sector

The Industrial and Commercial Products and Standardization Services (ICPSS) Sector of Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC) buys custom-manufactured products as well as commercial, off-the-shelf products and services that are essential to the daily operations of client departments. ICPSS buys goods ranging from clothing to food to prefabricated buildings, and services such as travel and overseas shipping. Purchasing is done by three product directorates. The Canadian General Standards Board (CGSB) develops standards and offers a wide range of related services to meet government needs. The Business Development and Operations Directorate provides program and administrative support to the Sector's line directorates.

◆ Informatics Services Procurement Directorate

Provides procurement services and contract management services for the informatics services required by federal government departments and agencies to efficiently administer their programs. The business is focused on the following services: Treasury Board shared systems initiatives, facilities management, informatics professional services, software applications development, software licensing; technology assisted learning, software and hardware maintenance, data entry, information retrieval and information archival services. In addition, the Directorate provides an Informatics Professional Services (IPS) procurement tool, in the National Capital Region called the Online IPS Marketplace which provides departments with direct access to self-registered suppliers via the Transac Bulletin Board Service. The Directorate also procures photocopying machines, printing and duplicating equipment.

◆ Informatics Systems Procurement Directorate

Provides procurement services and contract management services for the informatics systems required by federal government departments and agencies to efficiently administer their programs. The business is focused on the following areas: Supercomputer Systems; Mainframe Computer Systems; Minicomputer Systems; Microcomputer Systems (including benchmark testing); Telecommunications Systems; Systems Integration Services; Local and Wide Area Networks; and, Microcomputer Operating System and Applications Software.

◆ Logistics, Electrical, Fuel and Transportation Directorate

Is responsible for procurement and commodity management of a wide variety of products and services which include special and standard vehicles, industrial vehicles, logistics support equipment, petroleum products, industrial chemicals, compressed gases, goods and services in support of vehicle fleets, electrical and electronic goods and a vast range of products grouped under security, firefighting and test equipment.

♦ Major Crown Projects

The Director General of AMES Sector is the Service Line Manager for the majority of Major Crown Projects (MCPs) managed by Public Works and Government Services Canada, and is responsible for the procurement management portion of the functions relating to the projects. Major Crown Projects are high risk, complex, and politically-sensitive projects valued in excess of $100 million. The supplier base involved in MCPs covers nearly every industrial sector within Canada, and involves companies from the largest size (as prime contractors), down to small suppliers and consultants (as subcontractors).

♦ Marine and Armament Procurement Directorates

Acquires military and civilian ships and boats, and manages ship refit, conversion and drydocking contracts. It is also responsible for acquiring a broad range of mechanical and electrical equipment including spare parts for use aboard vessels along with related services such as engineering, repair and overhaul and in-service ship maintenance.

The organization is responsible for conducting inspections on all civilian ships, boats, and associated equipment. It provides client departments with a wide variety of technical services, such as, condition surveys on ships, specification preparation and technical advice. It also acquires a wide range of technically-complex armament systems such as armoured vehicles and large and small calibre weapons and ammunition, engineering repair and overhaul and maintenance services, and spare parts support to meet federal government and foreign government requirements.

♦ Northumberland Strait Crossing Project

The objective of this project is to construct (by May 1997) and operate (for 35 years by a private sector consortium) a 13 kilometre bridge between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. SOSB is responsible for representing the federal government's interests as reflected in the agreements related to the design, construction, operation and eventual transfer of the bridge; to monitor the effectiveness of the contractual framework and to monitor and conduct audits in respect of the developer's engineering and construction plans and procedures, environmental management plan, fisheries and ferry workers' commitments and regional benefits obligations.

♦ Programs Directorate

Provides services designed to help customer departments effectively deliver and administer their contracting programs. The Unsolicited Proposals Brokerage Service (UPBS) offers a single point of entry for submission of innovative science and technology proposals from the private sector and provides the liaison between the public and potential government sponsors. In addition, the Directorate offers the UPBS Information Technology which encourages proposals for the application of information technology in government operations; Science Culture Canada, administered on behalf of Industry Canada which sponsors projects and activities that raise public awareness of scientific and technological issues; and, Radarsat User Development Program (RUDP), administered on behalf of the Canadian Space Agency and designed to develop value-added services and products for RADARSAT.

The Directorate also provides support services to the Sector for legacy as well as new Corporate systems such as the Automated Buyer Environment (ABE) and the Vendor Information Management (VIM) system, including such functionality as allocations, system administration and related activities. The Programs Directorate produces the R&D Bulletin and delivers it via the Internet and the Transac Bulletin Board. This publication contains information on government science contracts awarded on behalf of federal government departments and agencies. The Directorate also manages the Homebased Disabled Program for the Sector.

♦ Public Relations and Print Contract Services Sector

Provides procurement and project coordination services to federal government clients for a range of communications requirements including printing, public relations, multi-media, photography, film and video productions, expositions, communications planning, creative services and conference management. Services are provided on a fee for service basis and are optional for departments.

This sector is also responsible for the official publishing operations for the Government of Canada (formally with the Canada Communications Group). This includes the publishing, distribution and marketing of priced publications, administration of Crown Copyright for priced publications and the management of the Depository Services Program.

♦ Real Property Contracting Sector

This sector provides all real property contracting (construction, maintenance and services) and is the centre of expertise within the Department for real property management.

♦ Science Directorate

Is responsible for the procurement of government science and technology requirements, including research and development, data collection, feasibility studies and prototype development for subjects ranging from satellites and solar energy to sample analysis, food research and transportation technology. This Directorate is composed of the Space, Science and Communications and, Defence Sciences Division, Earth Resources Division, Human, Life and Environmental Sciences Division, as well as the Space Station Project office which is a Major Crown Project managed on behalf of the Canadian Space Agency (CSA)

◆ Seized Property Management Directorate

Pursuant to the Seized Property Management Act, it provides management services in relation to property seized or restrained in connection with federal prosecutions. SPMD's functions include: pre-seizure advice; control and maintenance of seized property; management of restrained property; appraisals; advancement of monies to preserve property; inspections; disposal of property and allocation of proceeds; satisfaction of claims; and record keeping.

◆ Supply Management Directorate

The Directorate provides general management support to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Service Line Managers, Director General, Supply Program Management, SOSB Sectors, and the Regions in the areas of planning, performance measurement, supplier and client relations, and procurement-related training. Operational functions, i.e., materiel management for the department, and activities which support the procurement process, i.e., receiving and allocating requisitions; providing bid receiving and Open Bidding services; and standing offer coordination services are also provided along with administrative support for the Supply Program Management Sector.

◆ Supply Policy Directorate

The Supply Policy Directorate is responsible for the economic analysis of procurement-related government programs and initiatives, and the identification of procurement issues and implications; long-term procurement policy development; implementation of the government procurement elements of the various trade agreements; and contract reporting responsibilities on behalf of Treasury Board. This Directorate also provides up-to-date policies, procedures and advice for application by departmental procurement staff, including the development, promulgation and maintenance of the various related manuals, as well as support to the Acquisition Policy Council. Finally, the Supply Policy Directorate provides expert procurement advice to other departments responsible for specific government initiatives with procurement dimensions (such as the Comprehensive Land Claims Agreements, and the Aboriginal Procurement Program)

◆ Supply Program Management Sector

Classes of Personal Information

Project Records

In carrying out its mandate, the Department generates and receives a large volume of information and correspondence related to work projects. These projects include property acquisition, disposal, expropriation and management; building, highway and marine construction, repair and demolition; dredging services and fleet management; and the provision of associated research, development and consulting services.

Included in this material are often found the personal views and opinions of individuals; evaluations of contractors' and consultants' performance; financial information relating to the management of projects; and any other correspondence associated with specific projects. The retention periods associated with this class of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Project records are organized by location. Consequently, access to personal information in project records requires the individual to provide the location of a specific project as well as the nature of the project.

Revenue Canada

Chapter 89

General Information

Background

In 1927, the Department of National Revenue Act (now RSC 1985, C. N-16) established the Department of National Revenue by renaming the Department of Customs and Excise. The Department was responsible for assessing and collecting duties and taxes, monitoring the movement of people and goods across the Canadian border and protecting Canadian industries from foreign competition.

The same Act created a second department to collect income taxes, a responsibility that a commissioner from the Department of Finance had been carrying out. Each Department had the same minister, but had its own departmental organization headed by its own deputy minister.

In May 1994, Bill C-2, An Act to Amend the Department of National Revenue Act received Royal Assent and provided the legal basis for the creation of a consolidated department to carry out the activities previously performed by Revenue Canada, Customs and Excise and Revenue Canada, Taxation. A new regional structure was implemented in July 1994 combining the 23 parallel regions of Customs, Excise and Taxation into six consolidated regions. The Headquarters organization was also consolidated into six restructured program branches and six corporate branches.

Over the past several decades, Revenue Canada has come to play an ever greater role in Canadian society. In addition to its traditional role of administering Canada's tax system, trade policies and borders, the Department now plays a role in revenue generation and income redistribution. It also administers the Free Trade Agreement and the North American Free Trade Agreement.

In fulfilling these responsibilities, the Department administers 66 Acts of Parliament, works on behalf of the federal, provincial, and territorial governments, and deals with virtually every business and individual in Canada.

Responsibilities

Revenue Canada responsibilities include revenue generation, trade facilitation, customs borders services, and income redistribution.

Revenue Canada works on behalf of the federal, provincial and territorial governments as well as individuals and businesses to support Canada's social and economic progress.

The Department oversees various tax credit programs and collects federal and some provincial income taxes, the goods and services tax (GST), Canada Pension plan contributions, Employment Insurance premiums, and customs and excise duties. As well, we collect excise taxes and, for provinces with agreements with the federal government, Revenue Canada collects provincial sales tax, tobacco taxes, and liquor markups and levies on non-commercial imports.

The Department also administers the border and trade aspects of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), and the World Trade Organization (WTO), as well as administering Canada's international tax agreements with other countries.

Finally, Revenue Canada works in partnership with law enforcement agencies and other federal departments to protect Canadians and society as a whole by preventing illegal and dangerous goods and inadmissible people from entering Canada, and monitoring the movement of controlled and regulated goods.

Revenue Canada continually strives to deliver our programs and services effectively, fairly and at the lowest possible cost. The Department's goals are to:

- provide services that are accessible and responsive at an affordable cost;
- increase the effectiveness of our enforcement programs in a fair and responsible manner;
- streamline and simplify our legislation, programs, and operations to improve service and reduce the cost and burden of compliance;
- ensure that our employees have the knowledge skills, information, and support to work effectively and professionally in an environment that promotes and recognizes exemplary performance; and
- ensure that our corporate policies, systems, and processes provide effective support to our program initiatives and service delivery, and enable the Department to respond promptly to changing government priorities.

Organization

◆ Appeals Branch

This branch is responsible for the resolution of disputes relative to the Income Tax Act, Canada Pension Plan (CPP), Employment Insurance (EI) and excise duties and taxes imposed by the Excise Tax Act. The branch is not responsible for appeals and redress activities related to the Customs Act or the Special Import Measures Act.

◆ Assessment and Collections Branch

This branch is accountable for developing and maintaining specific client-focused Revenue Canada programs including providing assistance and information to clients, registering clients, processing, validating and correcting returns and payments, creating and maintaining accounts, collecting accounts receivable, and administering specialized tax credit and benefit programs.

◆ Communications Branch

The Communications Branch provides structured communications research, planning, advice, and services to support the Minister, the Deputy Minister, and the delivery of departmental programs. It also provides functional guidance and direction to ensure that regional communication activities support for national programs and services at the local level. The objective of the Branch is to help ensure that the Department's clients receive the information they need to comply with the relevant legislation and that the information is in a form which clients can understand and use.

◆ Corporate Affairs Branch

The Corporate Affairs Branch provides a leadership, brokerage and catalyst role across a wide range of initiatives that affect the Department. The Branch administers the Department's strategic planning process; plays a strategic role in client consultation and service quality initiatives; manages departmental relations with the Privy Council Office (PCO) and briefs the Minister for Cabinet; manages all departmental relations with the Office of the Auditor General; administers the Department's internal audit and program evaluation process, including the provision of functional guidance to internal auditors in the field; and provides services to the public with regard to access to information and privacy.

◆ Customs Border Services Branch

The Customs Border Services Branch provides policies, programs, procedures and functional guidance and direction respecting front-line services at the border, including the full range of facilitation, inspection, detention, collection and enforcement activities at all ports of entry. The Branch is leading the fundamental changes under way to establish new strategic relationships with clients, stakeholders and other federal government departments, as well as provincial governments for the provisions of services at the border.

◆ Deputy Minister's Office

◆ Finance and Administration Branch

This branch plans, develops, and maintain policies, programs and procedures for the Department in the areas of finance, administration, security, resource management, real property management, publishing of departmental documents including forms and guides, corporate management information requirements and laboratory and scientific services. It ensures that departmental management can discharge its responsibilities for financial and general administrative matters with probity in a prudent and effective manner, consistent with government policy and provides functional guidance and direction to finance and administration specialists in the field.

◆ Headquarters

Head Office is the administrative decision centre of Revenue Canada, and develops the Department's plans and policies. Nine Assistant Deputy Ministers and two Directors General, responsible for the eleven branches, report directly to the Deputy Minister. The Senior General Counsel of Legal Services serves in an advisory capacity to the Deputy Minister.

◆ Human Resources Branch

This branch develops national policies, programs and standards for staffing, executive services, organization, classification, official languages, employment equity, staff relations, employee assistance, training and development, pay and benefits, and human resources planning functions. It designs, co-ordinates and delivers training and development in the field and at headquarters, provides functional guidance and direction to field human resource specialists, and provides human resource services and training and development at headquarters.

◆ Information Technology Branch

This branch is responsible for the Department's information technology strategy, for the management and operation of the network and computing infrastructure, and for the development of systems to support program delivery. It exploits systems common to all lines of business, and promotes sharing of data to minimize the cost of the development of technological systems across the Department. The Branch provides guidance and direction for all information technology specialists in the Department via a single point of service. It aligns all initiatives with the Department's information technology strategy to maximize return on investment.

◆ Legal Services

Legal Services supports the senior general counsel who provides chief counsel to the Department with responsibility for the legal aspects of departmental operations including legal advisory services to the Deputy Minister and the Department on matters arising from its role in the administration of various acts and related statutes. Legal Services serves as the national co-ordinator for the delivery of the larger Justice service to the Department and continues to be a key member and participant in corporate policy development and decision-making.

◆ Policy and Legislation Branch

This branch is responsible for the overall departmental policy and intergovernmental affairs and is a centre for technical interpretation and related activity. It is also responsible for the registration of charities and deferred income plans. It is accountable for the development of program policy and legislative policy at Revenue, interpretation and remission administration for the Excise Act, Excise Tax Act (including the goods and services tax), the Income Tax Act, and part of the Canada Pension Plan and Employment Insurance Act. It is also responsible for the registration and monitoring of charities and deferred income plans, provision of functional direction to the regions of all excise duties matters, federal-provincial relations and the co-ordination of international relations.

◆ Regional Operations

The six Assistant Deputy Ministers, Regional Operations are responsible for the effective, efficient and coordinated administration and delivery of departmental programs and policies in the field offices in the Atlantic, Quebec, Northern Ontario, Southern Ontario, Prairies and Pacific Regions respectively. Within each region, there are currently three operational streams: Customs Border Services, Trade Administration Services and Tax Services.

◆ Trade Administration Branch

This branch provides policies, programs, procedures and functional guidance and direction for the administration of trade policy legislation, including multilateral and bilateral trade policy agreements, other trade policy instruments and programs for duties relief. The Branch has the primary responsibility for the fundamental changes involved in the modernization of trade administration and new strategic partnerships with clients, and stakeholders as well as other federal departments and trade.

◆ Verification, Enforcement and Compliance Research Branch

The Branch provides policies, programs, procedures and functional guidance and direction related to verification and enforcement of GST and income tax, including the provision of client assistance related to these functions. It is responsible for international verification and enforcement activities (excluding those related to Customs) and for strategies to penetrate the underground economy.

Royal Canadian Mint

Chapter 90

General Information

Background

The Ottawa Mint was originally established in 1908 as a branch of the Royal Mint of London, England. On December 1, 1931, an Act of Parliament established the Royal Canadian Mint as a branch of the Department of Finance. On April 1, 1969, the Mint became a Crown Corporation and now reports to Parliament through the Minister of Public Works and Government Services. The Mint is classified as a Schedule III-II Crown Corporation. Its Head Office is in Ottawa, Ontario. Its two plants are located in Ottawa, Ontario and Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Responsibilities

The Mint's primary purpose is to produce and arrange for the production and supply of circulating coins of the currency of Canada. It also competes on the world market for contracts to produce circulating and numismatic coins and other devices such as trade dollars for foreign governments and private firms. The Mint also operates a refinery to melt, assay and refine gold and other metals.

Legislation

- Royal Canadian Mint Act

Organization

OFFICE OF THE MASTER OF THE MINT

The principal officer of the Mint is the Master (president and chief executive officer), who is also a member of the Board of Directors. The Master is supported by four vice presidents: Administration and Finance; Corporate Affairs; Manufacturing; and, Sales and Services and by three Executive Directors: Marketing and Communications; Human Resources; and Legal Services.

Administration and Finance

This division is responsible for financial analysis and reporting, treasury management and financing, risk management, information technology and systems, procurement of materials and services, and records management.

Corporate Affairs

This division is responsible for corporate planning, corporate policies, managing special projects in support of the Royal Canadian Mint's mission and goals, and establishing and maintaining liaison with central agencies of government.

Manufacturing

This division has the responsibility for the production of coinage, medals, tokens, trade dollars and other devices. Two plants operate under this division. The Winnipeg Plant produces Canadian and foreign circulation coinage. The Ottawa Plant produces Canadian and foreign numismatic and bullion coins as well as medals, tokens, trade dollars and other devices. In addition, the Ottawa Plant operates the Mint's refinery, which refines precious metals for mines, jewellers, banks and other institutions, both Canadian and foreign.

Sales and Services

This section is responsible for planning, organizing and directing sales of Mint products and services in both domestic and foreign markets. It develops sales strategies, and is responsible for obtaining and negotiating contracts for refinery services, medals, tokens and trade dollars, as well as contracts with foreign countries for the supply of their circulation and numismatic coinage. This section develops and manages all aspects of a customer-driven automated order fulfillment and customer service operation.

Marketing and Communications

This section plans, organizes and directs all Canadian numismatic and bullion coin programs by developing short and long range objectives; develops and recommends marketing strategies for Mint products, assists in the national and international promotion of Canadian numismatic and bullion coin programs; coordinates the coin design program for each new Canadian numismatic coin. The section is also responsible for the advertisement campaigns for the Canadian numismatic and bullion coin programs including the development of integrated direct marketing strategies that will maximize sales volumes and achieve revenue objectives, as well as new customer acquisitions. It is also responsible for planning, developing and coordinating direct marketing campaigns for numismatic coins to the Royal Canadian Mint house file as well as consumers from other sources. Another aspect of the Marketing Section is the research and development function, which surveys and reports on present and future markets for Mint products.

The Communications side develops and directs the Mint's corporate communications program. It informs the public on policies and programs of the Mint and is responsible for all media relations nationally and internationally.

♦ Human Resources

This section is a strategic function, dealing primarily with business human resources issues and daily operational activities. Its main responsibilities in terms of strategic partnerships is to provide guidance and advice to its clients in terms of human resources planning, which encompasses training and professional development, recruitment and staffing, succession planning, rewards and recognition programs, performance appraisal program and negotiations of collective bargaining. With respect to daily operational activities, it is responsible for pay, benefits and other compensation practices, employee counselling, the employee assistance program, the Health and Safety program, and translation services.

◆ Legal Services

This section is responsible for providing legal counsel and advice in all legal matters affecting the Corporation, and provides secretariat services to the Board of Directors of the Corporation. The section is also responsible for matters with respect to the Access to Information Act and Privacy Acts.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Chapter 91

General Information

Background

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police was formed in 1873, under an Act of Parliament.

Responsibilities

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police enforces laws throughout Canada made by or under the authority of Parliament. Administration of justice within the provinces, including enforcement of the Criminal Code, is the responsibility of provincial governments. The RCMP has contract agreements with the two territories and all provinces, except Ontario and Quebec, to enforce criminal, territorial and provincial laws, pursuant to section 20 of the RCMP Act.

Legislation

- Criminal Code
- Most federal statutes
- Municipal bylaws under contract
- Provincial laws under contract
- Territorial laws under contract

Organization

In accordance with the Canadian Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, the Commissioner, under the direction of the Solicitor General of Canada, is responsible for the control and management of the RCMP. Four Deputy Commissioners manage the following activities at Headquarters: Operations, National Support Services, Corporate Management and Human Resources. Each Deputy Commissioner is assisted by Directors who manage their respective sub-activities.

The headquarters of the RCMP is located in Ottawa. The RCMP is divided into divisions, each division being roughly responsible for a province or territory. These divisions are alphabetically designated and each is further divided into subdivisions and detachments.

Specialized support is offered to the operational divisions by Air, Marine, Forensic Laboratory, and Identification Services. The RCMP Academy located in Regina, Saskatchewan, is responsible for recruit training. The RCMP Musical Ride is located in Ottawa and is administered by headquarters. Additionally, the RCMP is responsible for the administration of the Canadian Police College, located in Ottawa. The Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC), a computer-based police information system, is also based at and administered by RCMP Headquarters in Ottawa. The CPIC system is an advanced computerized information storage and retrieval facility, designed for the use of participating Canadian law enforcement agencies. The CPIC acts as a central repository of operational data that is contributed to and maintained by participating Canadian law enforcement agencies. RCMP records entered into the system are identified in their respective Bank of Personal Information. The participating Canadian law enforcement agencies are entirely responsible for the accuracy and immediacy of the data which they supply and maintain within the CPIC system. Records entered into the CPIC system by participating Canadian law enforcement agencies must be supported by documented reports held by the originator. The originating agency is the only one entitled or enabled to alter their records in the system.

CORPORATE MANAGEMENT ACTIVITY

The Activity of Corporate Management includes the functions of strategic and corporate planning, corporate policy design, financial planning, materiel, audit and program evaluation. Responsiveness and accountability to the government are ensured by the coordination of communications, public affairs, information access, ministerial liaison and external review and appeals. In addition, the Corporate Management Activity is responsible for the management of property, material, transport and food related services.

♦ Audit, Evaluation and Corporate Services

This program is designed to plan, develop and implement a comprehensive audit, evaluation, and review process to examine and review all RCMP law enforcement and administrative activities. This program also develops and coordinates strategic and corporate planning, formulates corporate policy, manages corporate information and management studies on behalf of the senior executive.

♦ External Review & Appeals

This program assists the Commissioner by providing advice, research and background material for all findings and recommendations generated by the External Review Committee (ERC) and the Public Complaints Commission (PCC). The Sub-Activity also reviews and advises the Commissioner on cases which are not referable to the ERC but must be decided by the Commissioner.

♦ Finance and Supply

This program manages the financial affairs of the department to satisfy requirements for financial control and accountability of the RCMP, contracting partners, legislation and government. This program also provides internal support in accommodation, transport, food, materiel and miscellaneous services for the RCMP in accordance with relevant policies, regulations and statutes.

◆ Public Affairs & Information

This program aims at promoting good public relations and conveying an accurate and constructive image of the RCMP in Canada and abroad. This includes the provision of information and responses to requests from the general public and the media regarding RCMP activities, the maintaining of contemporary and historical materials, the production of RCMP publications and the provision of performances by the RCMP Musical Ride. This program also provides a centralized response to requests under the Access to Information and Privacy Acts for access to records under the control of the RCMP. The Sub-Activity develops policies and procedures to ensure conformity with the legislation while maintaining the protection of sensitive information and privacy of individual records.

HUMAN RESOURCES ACTIVITY

The Human Resources Activity encompasses the organization and management of the Department's human resources. It maintains an internal administrative policy function and service in relation to training, staffing and personnel, health, language and organizational issues. These issues pertain to members of the RCMP as well as Public Service Employees employed by the organization.

◆ Canadian Police College

This program provides advanced police training in matters of organization, administration, personnel management and specialized investigative techniques to the Canadian law enforcement community and some foreign agencies. The Canadian Police Institute is an integral part of the Canadian Police College. The Institute is tasked with conducting research on topical issues and providing seminars and workshops to the police community.

◆ Health Services

This program administers all health related assessment and treatment services to regular members of the RCMP and establishes health programs and standards for employment. It also manages research projects for the development of psychological services, fitness/lifestyle programs as well as programs directed at promoting health and environmental safety. The Sub-Activity also maintains the medical records of members to ensure confidentiality.

◆ Officers' Staffing and Personnel

This program provides a centralized staff support service to the Commissioner for the appointment, promotion, training, succession/ career planning of the Regular Member officers (Inspectors to Deputy Commissioners) and Civilian Members of officer equivalency.

◆ Personnel

This program provides RCMP management with a number of diverse services to assist in management of the department's human resources. The Sub-Activity includes the following initiatives: Staffing, Official Languages and Diversity Management, Research, Internal Affairs, Human Resource Management Strategies, PS Staff Relations, Classification and Compensation.

◆ Training

This program provides RCMP employees with the opportunity to acquire the knowledge, skills and attitude necessary to perform their duties in the most efficient and professional manner. It controls all training by the RCMP for its employees including basic recruit training, centralized and divisional technical and management training.

NATIONAL POLICE SERVICES ACTIVITY

The National Support Services Activity provides technical expertise and operational support to all accredited Canadian law enforcement agencies and specialized institutions within the criminal justice system.

◆ Criminal Intelligence Service Canada

This program is a national law enforcement community intelligence organization administered by the RCMP with a Central Bureau in Ottawa and nine provincial bureaux across Canada. The program, focusing on organized crime, gathers criminal intelligence and ensures that tactical intelligence is submitted through the provincial bureaux, where facilities for the collection, analysis and dissemination of criminal intelligence are provided, and are accessible to its members. The program oversees a computer system known as the Automated Criminal Intelligence Information Services (ACIIS), which is a repository for criminal intelligence information available to the intelligence community.

◆ Forensic Laboratory Services

This program provides scientific and technical assistance to the Canadian Criminal justice system. Physical evidence acquired during the course of investigations is examined by scientists, to provide information of evidentiary significance. Expert opinions based on scientific examinations are provided to aid investigations and as court evidence. This sub-activity also manages the Canadian Police Research Centre which co-ordinates the development of scientific and technical research projects of a law enforcement nature. The program also provides a consultative service to other government departments, and an assistance role to other countries in relation to the transfer of expertise through training, analysis of exhibit materials and testimony within their judicial systems.

◆ Informatics

This program administers comprehensive and integrated information management systems and services required to support RCMP programs. The major components of the Sub/Activity are: Information Management which provides the administration of the archival and records imaging programs, the co-ordination of the publication of directives and guides, the development of national forms, and data base administration for the RCMP; Management Services which provides control, co-ordination and evaluation of information systems, policy and procedures regarding recorded information, and library services, and the administration and planning of the RCMP Informatics program; Applications development which provides the analysis, design, development, implementation maintenance and enhancement of EDP applications to meet client requirements; Informatics Security provides for the administration of security in the electronic data processing, computer and communications electronics areas; Communications Engineering which provides for the evaluation, selection, implementation, support and performance tuning of vendor-supplied communications software and hardware, network based operating systems, network based wiring components, utilities and other proprietary software and hardware used; Operations which provides control and coordination of all central host mainframe and network computer systems and provides disaster recovery plans and procedures in support of all data processing facilities; and Technical Support which provides the evaluation, implementation, maintenance and support of host and LAN/PC based proprietary and customized systems software and electrical and mechanical services for the centrally controlled environmental facilities.

◆ Information and Identification Services

This program, through its Fingerprint Operations Section, provides the police community and other authorized agencies with a national computerized repository for fingerprint records on a data base known as the Automatic Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS). The Criminal History Information Section maintains a central repository of criminal history information on behalf of the law enforcement community. They disseminate information to accredited law enforcement agencies and other approved investigative and security organizations. Additionally, the Sub-Activity through its Special Registry Branch administers a number of specific services including Firearms Registration, and the Missing Children's Registry.

OPERATIONS ACTIVITY

The Operations Activity manages all planning and policy aspects of law enforcement programs in support of federal, provincial and municipal government requirements. Assistance and cooperation is provided to accredited police agencies as well as to the general public. It is also the focal point, on a nation-wide basis, for the coordination and evaluation of criminal operations and criminal intelligence gathering. It encompasses the protective policing functions of the RCMP which includes providing security for designated government dignitaries; government property; internationally protected persons and their residences; and major events. It is responsible for coordinating security or VIP visits, conducting security inspections and surveys of physical installations and providing consultations for officials regarding security requirements.

◆ Community, Contract and Aboriginal Policing Services

This program initiates, develops and evaluates a practical and culturally sensitive policing service for aboriginal Canadians. It also includes cost shared policing services to all provinces and territories, except Ontario and Quebec, under agreements signed between the Solicitor General of Canada and the provinces and territories. The RCMP provides municipal police services under separate agreements.

◆ Criminal Intelligence

This program is designed to enhance management of the RCMP's criminal intelligence functions to provide a more comprehensive criminal operations capability. It includes the coordinating, monitoring and assessing of all major organized crime and criminal operations investigations, as well as all criminal investigations having a national security dimension; overseeing, coordinating and monitoring the collection, handling, review and dissemination of criminal intelligence; maintaining a threat assessment program specific to the RCMP's protective policing responsibilities. The Sub-Activity also manages the liaison program between the RCMP and Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS).

◆ Federal Services

This program is designed to assist federal government departments in the enforcement of the Immigration Act, the Citizenship Act and the investigation of violations of Canadian Passport regulations under the Criminal Code. It includes federal policing services as well as various specific initiatives in support of federal, provincial and municipal governments such as Customs and Excise, General Enforcement, Immigration and Passport, Drug Enforcement. This program manages the investigation of offenses related to the importation, exportation, manufacturing, cultivation, trafficking and possession of narcotics and other dangerous drugs in Canada. It also administers and operates the RCMP's Undercover, Source and Witness Protection programs; the Coordinated Coastal Enforcement Program; the Anti-Drug Profiteering program; and the RCMP's Drug Awareness program. It also provides specialized investigators to combat criminal activity in the business sector through the investigation of fraudulent corporate and personal bankruptcies; provides a criminal investigative service within the Canadian securities industry and a national repository of securities fraud information; with Revenue Canada, the investigation, prosecution and recovery of monies owing to the Government of Canada through the provisions of the Income Tax Act; a criminal investigative service to departments and agencies of the Government of Canada with respect to program abuse of a number of statutes such as the Unemployment Insurance Act; and the investigation and prosecution of individuals and corporations involved in major business oriented crime of an interprovincial, national or international nature.

♦ International Liaison and Protective Operations

This program is responsible for the development, implementation and coordination of the National Protective Policy, including all policy relating to the personal protection of the Prime Minister, Governor General, visiting Heads of State, other Internationally Protected Persons and Justices of the Supreme Court of Canada. It also provides policy and consultation services relating to the physical security of foreign missions, the Supreme Court, the residence of the Prime Minister and Governor General and all other government departments. This program also provides police and security services at designated international airports. It includes a liaison function which provides a Canadian link with foreign enforcement agencies for the exchange of information relative to the interdiction of international criminal activity and the maintenance of law and order in Canada. It provides support and assistance to all Canadian law enforcement agencies which require criminal information or assistance from foreign governments to further Canadian investigations or legal proceedings. Another component of the Sub-Activity is Interpol Branch which manages the activities of the RCMP and the Canadian law enforcement community within the International Criminal Police Organization (ICPO), more commonly known as Interpol. This program is also responsible for developing, monitoring and coordinating the implementation of internal security policies relative to the security clearance of RCMP employees, properties and information systems. Through the National Operations Centre, this program offers a fully integrated and computerized multi-media environment that provides a centralized command and reporting facility in support of RCMP senior management and criminal operations. Its primary function is to collect information and report on operational events identified from divisions and media and to brief the senior executive. The national Operations Centre doubles as a crisis management facility designed to monitor and support executive level decisions.

♦ Technical Operations Directorate

This program provides engineering and technical support service to technical investigative and protective field sections within the RCMP and other government departments; mechanical, technical, support for investigations and vehicular armour systems for the protection of designated persons. This program provides advice and guidance to federal government departments, agencies and private sector companies processing government information; investigative assistance for crimes involving computers; reviewing and advising on counter-technical intrusion security. This program represents the RCMP's "lead agency" function in physical security to all Government departments; is responsible for developing, implementing, maintaining, coordinating and monitoring a departmental security program consistent with the Government Security Policy. This program provides specialized analysis of certain violent crimes as well as manage the Violent Crime Linkage Analysis. This program also provides safe, effective and cost efficient operation of police aircraft in support of the RCMP Law Enforcement and public security activities across Canada.

Program Records

LINKING STATEMENT

All records retained by the RCMP are subject to one classification methodology. Records are retained in accordance with the subject content of the record, based on a central file classification system, rather than function or activity. Each Detachment, Sub-Division, Division and Headquarters, Ottawa classifies records under three main groups, Administrative, Operational Policy, and Sequential (Operational Investigative Records). The Administrative records are divided into seven sub-classifications. These are further categorized, as are the Operational Policy records, into sub-topics, which are standard throughout the RCMP. The Sequential (Operational Investigative Records) pertain to the general investigative records generated and retained at each site, and as the name suggests, each is sequentially numbered. The volume of records will vary from location to location, however the retention system is uniform. This system is centrally regulated by the Director Informatics, and this enables the RCMP to describe its record holdings in the three distinct categories. Requesters need only describe the record they wish to access. If the request pertains to a specific incident, the location of that incident is also required.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police External Review Committee

Chapter 92

General Information

Background

The RCMP External Review Committee was created on December 18, 1986 as a result of the 1976 Report of the Commission of Inquiry Relating to Public Complaints, Internal Discipline and Grievance Procedure within the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Responsibilities

The RCMP External Review Committee is a neutral third party that provides an independent and impartial review of certain types of grievances, and of formal disciplinary, discharge and demotion appeals referred to it from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The Committee reports annually to Parliament through the Committee Chairperson. The Committee may institute hearings, summon witnesses, administer oaths and receive and accept such evidence or other information as the Committee sees fit. The findings and recommendations of the Chairperson or the Committee are sent to the parties and the Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Legislation

- RCMP External Review Committee Rules of Practice and Procedure
- Regulations pursuant to the RCMP Act
- Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act

Organization

The RCMP External Review Committee is designated as a department within the meaning and for the purposes of the Financial Administration Act. Treasury Board is its employer.

The Committee is made up of a chairperson, a vice-chairperson and three other members, all appointed by the Governor in Council. The Chairperson is a full-time member, and is the chief executive officer of the Committee. The Executive Director is responsible to the Chairperson for the administration of the case review function.

◆ Grievances and Appeals

The Committee is responsible for the operational review of certain types of grievances, and of formal disciplinary, discharge and demotion appeals referred to the Committee by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The review program provides an analysis and reporting service and associated procedural and logistical services required to support an orderly and effective review process.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Public Complaints Commission

Chapter 93

General Information

Background

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police Public Complaints Commission was established by Parliament in March 1986, as a result of recommendations arising from the 1976 Marin Commission of Inquiry Relating to Public Complaints, Internal Discipline and Grievance Procedure within the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and the 1981 McDonald Commission of Inquiry Concerning Certain Activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Part VII of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, which made the Commission operational, came into force on September 30, 1988.

Responsibilities

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police Public Complaints Commission is an independent administrative tribunal empowered to conduct external and independent reviews of public complaints concerning the conduct of members of the RCMP in the course of their duties. The Chairman of the Commission reviews the disposition of the complaint by the RCMP and may conduct investigations and institute public hearings of the Commission. The Chairman may, as well, initiate a complaint personally if there are reasonable grounds for investigation. If the Chairman considers it advisable in the public interest, the Chairman may conduct an investigation of any complaint or institute a hearing regardless of whether the complaint has been investigated or otherwise dealt with by the RCMP. The findings and recommendations of the Chairman are sent to the Commissioner of the RCMP and the Solicitor General of Canada. The Chairman reports annually to Parliament through the Solicitor General of Canada.

Legislation

- Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, Parts VI and VII

Organization

The Commission consists of a Chairman, a Vice-Chairman, a member for each contracting province and not more than three other members, to be appointed by order of the Governor in Council. The Chairman is the Chief Executive Officer of the Commission and has supervision over and direction of the work of the Commission staff. The senior staff of the Commission consists of an Executive Director, a General Counsel, a Director of Operations, Senior Reviewer/Analysts, Reviewer/Analysts, Investigators, a Senior Advisor Policy, Planning and Research, Regional Directors and an Office Manager.

Security Intelligence Review Committee

Chapter 94

General Information

Background

The Security Intelligence Review Committee was established under the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act on July 14, 1984.

Responsibilities

The Security Intelligence Review Committee, an independent external review body, is mandated to review the performance by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service of its duties and functions. The Committee is required to investigate complaints from individuals who have had their employment prospects affected by the denial of a security clearance. It also investigates reports made to it by the Secretary of State for Citizenship, the Minister of Immigration, the Human Rights Commission, and the Solicitor General of Canada, which relate to national security or to an individual's involvement in organized crime. The Committee is required to report annually to Parliament, through the Solicitor General, on these matters.

Legislation

- Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act

Organization

Research Section:

Carries out studies and other activities to provide the external review of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service.

Complaints Section:

Investigates complaints by individuals, or reports by Ministers, related to security clearances and the national security of Canada.

Section 41 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Complaints Against the Canadian Security Intelligence Service

Description: The Security Intelligence Review Committee may receive complaints from any person with respect to any act or thing done by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Committee shall investigate the complaint if (a) the complainant has made a complaint to the Director with respect to that act or thing and the complainant has not received a response within such period of time as the Committee considers reasonable, or is dissatisfied with the response given; and (b) the Committee is satisfied that the complaint is not trivial, frivolous, vexatious or made in bad faith. Upon completion of its investigation of a section 41 complaint, the Review Committee shall provide the Solicitor General and the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service with a report and will then advise the complainant of the Committee's conclusions and recommendations. The information was obtained to complete investigations resulting from the submission of a complaint against the CSIS under section 41 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations resulting from the investigation of a complaint. Bank Number: SIR PPU 005

Section 42 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Complaints from Federal Employees — Including DND and Contractors

Description: When complaints are received from individuals where, by reason only of the denial of a security clearance required by the Government of Canada, a decision is made by a deputy head to deny employment to an individual or to deny a promotion or transfer to an individual, or to deny an individual or any other person a contract to provide goods or services to the Government of Canada, the deputy head shall send, within ten days after the decision is made, a notice informing the individual of the denial of the security clearance. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after receiving a complaint made under section 42, send to the complainant a statement summarizing such information available to the Committee as will enable the complainant to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the denial of the security clearance and shall send a copy of the statement to the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. Upon completion of an investigation in relation to a complaint under section 42, the Review Committee shall provide the Solicitor General, the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the deputy head concerned with a report containing any recommendations that the Committee considers appropriate and those findings of the investigation that the Committee considers it fit to report to the complainant. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 42 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations made following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 010

Section 73 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Reports Submitted to the Canadian Human Rights Commission

Description: When, at any stage after the filing of a complaint with the Human Rights Commission and before the commencement of a hearing before a Human Rights Tribunal in respect thereof, the Commission receives written notice from a Minister of the Crown in right of Canada that the practice to which the complaint relates was based on considerations relating to the security of Canada, the Commission may (a) dismiss the complaint; or (b) refer the matter to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. The Security Intelligence Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a matter in relation to a complaint under subsection 36.1 of the Canadian Human Rights Act is referred to it, send to the complainant a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the complainant to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the referral. Upon completion of its investigation, the Review Committee shall provide the Commission, the Minister concerned, the Solicitor General, the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the complainant with a report containing the findings of the Committee. This information relates to any individual who has filed a complaint with the Canadian Human Rights Commission, or the person against whom the complaint was made. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 73 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 015

Section 75 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Citizenship Reports

Description: The Secretary of State for Citizenship under subsection 17 of the Citizenship Act may make a report to the Review Committee when he is of the opinion that a person should not be granted citizenship under section 5 or subsection 10(1) or administered the oath of citizenship or be issued a certificate of renunciation under section 8 because there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will engage in activity that constitutes a threat to the security of Canada, or that is part of a pattern of criminal activity planned and organized by a number of persons acting in concert in furtherance of the commission of any offence that may be punishable under any Act of Parliament by way of indictment. The Secretary of State shall, within ten days after the report is made, cause a notice to be sent informing the person of the report and stating that following an investigation in relation thereto, a declaration with respect to that person may be made by the Governor in Council under section 18. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a report is made to it pursuant to paragraph 1 above, send to the person with respect to whom the report is made a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the person to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the report. The Review Committee shall, upon completion of an investigation in relation to a report made to it, make a report to the Governor in Council on all matters relating thereto; and at the same time as or after a report is made to the Governor in Council provide the complainant with a report containing the conclusions of the report. The complete report is also sent to the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the Solicitor General. This information relates to any individual who is the subject of a report made to the Review Committee by the Secretary of State for Citizenship under section 17 of the Citizenship Act. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 75 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 020

Section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Act — Immigration Reports

Description: Under section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Act, the Minister of Employment and Immigration and the Solicitor General may make a report to the Review Committee when they are of the opinion, based on security or criminal intelligence reports received and considered by them, that a person, other than a Canadian citizen, is (a) in the case of a permanent resident, a person described in subparagraph 19(1)(d)(ii) or paragraph 19(1)(e) or (g) or 27(1)(c) of the Immigration Act, or (b) in any other case, a person described in any of paragraphs 19(1)(d) to (g) or 27(2)(c) of the Immigration Act. They shall, within ten days after the report is made, cause a notice to be sent informing the person that following an investigation in relation thereto, a deportation order may be made against that person. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a report is made to it, send to the person with respect to whom the report is made a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the person to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the report. The Review Committee shall, upon completion of an investigation in relation to a report made to it pursuant to subsection 2, make a report to the Governor in Council containing its conclusion as to whether or not a certificate should be issued under subsection 40(1) and the grounds on which that conclusion is based. At the same time as or after a report is made to the Governor in Council, the Committee shall provide the person with respect to whom the report is made with another report containing the Committee's conclusions. This information relates to any individual who is the subject of a report made to the Review Committee by the Secretary of State for Immigration under sections 19 and 27 of the Immigration Act. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation. Bank Number: SIR PPU 025

Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada

Chapter 95

General Information

Background

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council is a grant-giving body whose funds are voted by Parliament. Its mandate, as stated in the Act, is to promote and assist research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities and to advise the Minister in respect of such matters relating to such research as the Minister may refer to the Council for its consideration. The Council administers programs of support for research and training in the social sciences and humanities, including fellowships, research grants, strategic grants, and funding for research dissemination and other research-related activities.

Responsibilities

The Council's objectives are to enhance the advancement of knowledge by supporting basic research in the social sciences and humanities; to support strategic research in fields of national importance; to help ensure Canada's national capacity for research and expertise in the social sciences and humanities by supporting advanced training in these disciplines; to facilitate communication among scholars in Canada and abroad and to promote awareness and use of Council-funded results within the academic community, the public and private sectors and the general public. In addition, the Council performs a leadership role in research policy in Canada through consultations and liaison with government and the scholarly community.

Legislation

- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council Act. 1976-77, c. 24, s.2
- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council By-Law

Organization

President

The President is the chief executive officer of Council and is responsible for the overall management and direction of the work of Council staff in the development and delivery of programs.

Common Administrative Services Directorate

The Common Administrative Services Directorate provides administrative support to the Council in the areas of personnel, information management, finance, administration and records management.

Program Branch

The Branch is responsible for fostering, promoting and assisting research through the delivery of the Council's grants and fellowships programs and for maintaining the Assessors Database. The Office of the Director General, Program Branch, supervises three directors respectively responsible for 1) the Research and Communications Grants programs, 2) Strategic Grants and Joint Initiatives programs and 3) the Fellowships programs.

Program officers in the branch are grouped into six work teams organized around six broad research areas: literature and fine arts, humanities, civilization and the environment, cognitive sciences, policy studies and collaborative research and interdisciplinary studies. Under this matrix organization, each team administers all applications for research and communication grants, strategic grants, and fellowships whose subject matter falls within the area for which it is responsible. Each team is composed of a team leader, two to four program officers, and one or two administrative assistants.

The program directors provide functional guidance and leadership for their programs to the various work teams.

The Office of the Secretary General supervises the administration of the Secretariat, the Policy, Planning and International Relations Division, the Evaluation and Statistics Division and the Communications Division. It is also responsible for administering the Presidential Fund for Innovation and Development.

♦ Communications Division

This Division is responsible for Council's internal and external communications, public and media relations, and for the implementation of the communication policy and strategy. It also provides information about Council programs and activities to the scholarly community, government, the media and the general public. It publishes Council's annual report, applicant guides and forms, adjudication manuals, reports of consultative groups, as well as other informational material for SSHRC programs. Lastly it also prepares news releases, newsletters, official correspondence, briefs, statements, speeches, and communication plans.

◆ Evaluation and Statistics Division

This Division plans and conducts evaluations of Council programs, develops and implements new approaches for evaluating the results of research support, and is responsible for preparing and distributing summary statistics on the participants and results of Council programs in response to internal and external requests.

◆ Policy, Planning and International Relations Division

This Division conducts research and analyses related to the work of the Council and is responsible for program budget projections and allocations, for coordinating policy and program development and for national and international liaison and representation.

◆ Secretariat

This Division performs secretariat functions for the Council and its standing committees, the Senior Management Committee, and any other ad hoc groups created to study particular issues. The Secretariat also administers the Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP) legislation, and is responsible for the Selection Committees Nominations Database, for legal and ethical issues and for the Molson Prize for the Social Sciences and Humanities.

Personal Information Banks

Access Request Data Bank

Description: This bank contains the access request forms sent by individuals requesting access to SSHRC records and to personal information, the replies to such requests and information related to their processing.

Class of Individuals: Canadian citizens, landed immigrants, or other individuals authorized by Order-in-Council who have made requests under the Access to Information Act or the Privacy Act. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to administer requests made under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, and to report on the number of requests received annually. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are maintained for two years following the last administrative action. TBS Registration: 003222 Bank Number: SHR PPU 005

Assessors Database

Description: This system contains all data relevant for the selection of assessors for applications submitted to the Council. The primary users are program officers of the Program Branch. The information includes the assessor's name, address, biographical details, area of specialization, as well as a record of the projects that each individual has evaluated. The data may also be transferred to the Corporate Database for historical purposes. Some 8,000 to 9,000 individual assessors may be consulted each year. Class of Individuals: Scholars in the academic community and individuals of the private sector. Purpose: This data bank is kept to allow staff to choose prospective assessors for applications submitted for support to the Council. It also provides senior management and staff with an additional pool of potential committee members. Retention and Disposal Standards: Twenty-five years. Related to PR#: all PR's TBS Registration: 002433 Bank Number: SHR PPU 070

Central Mailing List

Description: This bank contains names and mailing addresses either provided directly by individuals or obtained through reference material commonly available in libraries, separated into different groupings, e.g. university presidents, university research administrators, learned societies officials, etc., to accommodate the distribution of different kinds of information. Class of Individuals: Officials in government, universities, the media, scholars in the academic community, and individuals in the private sector. Purpose: This data bank is used for the distribution and dissemination of Council's application forms and guidelines and its public relations information. Retention and Disposal Standards: The bank is updated annually. Related to PR#: SHR INF 015 TBS Registration: 002777 Bank Number: SHR PPU 075

Eco-Research Applications and Committee Records

Description: This bank contains records of applications by individuals and institutions for grants and fellowships under one of the three program components, as follows: Research Grants, University Research Chairs and Doctoral Fellowships. This program, jointly sponsored by Environment Canada and the three granting councils (Natural Sciences and Engineering Council, Medical Research Council and Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council) to support advanced Canadian research and training in the environmental sciences, is being currently phased-out. In the case of individual applicants the bank contains the year of their birth, address, academic qualifications, occupation, citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident), language of application (French or English), the decision on the application and the amount of money requested and granted. It also includes project descriptions, third-party and committee assessments and travel and administrative details for grant holders. Class of Individuals: University scholars, graduate students, individuals from the private sector and academic and non-academic organizations. Purpose: Information in this bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: Personal information is made available to selection committee members and observers from Environment Canada and the two other granting councils and to staff of same for purposes of adjudicating, monitoring and evaluating the program. The results of competitions are forwarded to university research administration officers who are responsible for processing applications from their institutions before sending them to Council, for administering the grants, and for informing the candidates of the outcome of their applications. In the case of student applicants who have applied through their universities, the results of competitions are forwarded to the faculty of graduate studies offices which are responsible for processing applications from their institutions before sending them to Council. The information may also be used for developing a bank of potential external assessors and adjudication committee members. Retention and Disposal Standards: none to date Related to PR#: SHR STR 086 TBS Registration: 003205 Bank Number: SHR PPU 032

Eco-Research Trainee Directory

Description: This bank contains data on students supported under the Eco-Research fellowships, research grants and research chairs programs administered by the Tri-Council Secretariat for the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council, the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council and the Medical Research Council. The information contained in each entry includes the individual's name, gender, address, telephone and fax numbers, email address, language skills, main discipline, related disciplines, type of position sought, title of thesis or dissertation, name of thesis supervisor, degrees and the universities which awarded the degrees, work experience, academic awards and distinctions, publications and date of availability. The Tri-Council Secretariat seeks this information directly from the students who are made aware of the uses to be made of the information and consent to its release to potential employers by signing the questionnaire. Class of Individuals: Canadian citizens and permanent residents. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to put employers in touch with potential employees by circulating the latter's professional interests and research achievements. Consistent Uses: The information collected would also be used to respond to requests for statistical information on trainees funded or involved in Eco-Research projects. Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years. Related to PR#: SHR STR 086 TBS Registration: 003742 Bank Number: SHR PPU 080

Fellowships Applications and Committee Records

Description: This bank contains records of individual applications as well as information related to the adjudication and administration of the Council's fellowship programs including the Queen's Fellowships, Doctoral Fellowships, Postdoctoral Fellowships, Bora Laskin National Fellowship in Human Rights Research, Master's Scholarships in Science Policy, the Jules and Gabrielle Léger Fellowship, the Thérèse F.- Casgrain Fellowship, and the William E. Taylor Fellowship. Each applicant is identified by name and the file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applicant's year of birth, address, academic qualifications, occupation, citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident), language of application (English or French), the Council's decision on the application and the amount of the basic award. It also includes third-party assessments, committee rankings and appraisals, and travel and administrative details for fellowship holders. Class of Individuals: Graduate students, university scholars and independent scholars.

Purpose: Information in the bank is used to review applications, select candidates, monitor awards and administer programs. Consistent Uses: Information is also used in consultation with other granting agencies to determine the most appropriate review mechanism or sources of funding. In the jointly-funded programs, such as the Casgrain Fellowship, personal information will be disclosed to the named public- and private-sector joint funding partners for purposes of monitoring and evaluating the program. In the case of applicants who have applied through their universities, the results of competitions are forwarded to the faculty of graduate studies offices which are responsible for processing applications from their institutions before sending them to Council. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for ten years (successful applications) and five years (unsuccessful applications), with the exception of the following programs: Doctoral and Queen's Fellowships, ten years (successful applications) and seven years (unsuccessful applications). Related to PR#: SHR FEL 215, 216, 220, 230, 240, 241, 242, 245, 246 TBS Registration: 002419 Bank Number: SHR PPU 010

Classes of Personal Information

Administration Files

The general administrative and correspondence files of the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Such personal information includes suggestions and opinions from the general public which form part of a specific subject file. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject are provided. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Reports and Surveys

For purposes of program planning and evaluation, the Council requires a variety of reports concerning aspects of social sciences and humanities research in Canada. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, do not contain personal information about individuals. In the process of preparing such reports, personal information is necessarily obtained. This information may include current academic position, professional qualifications of individuals, nature of research being undertaken by individuals and present and past funding of an individual's research. This is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the study or report involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

General Information

Background

The Department of the Solicitor General was established in 1966 when Parliament enacted the Department of the Solicitor General Act, which assigned to the Solicitor General responsibility and accountability for the management and direction of reformatories, prisons, penitentiaries, parole, remissions, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Evolutionary additions and changes to this mandate resulted in the Department's reorganization into a ministry, incorporating the Secretariat, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board, the Office of the Correctional Investigator, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Office of the Inspector General.

Responsibilities

Under the Departmental Act, the Solicitor General is responsible for federal matters relating to policing, corrections and parole, and domestic aspects of national security. The Solicitor General is also the lead minister for counter-terrorism.

These responsibilities are fulfilled through the activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS), Correctional Service Canada (CSC), the National Parole Board (NPB), and the review agencies: the Inspector General of CSIS, the Correctional Investigator, the RCMP Public Complaints Commission, the RCMP External Review Committee, and the Secretariat. Please note that each of the above-mentioned agencies has its own Information Holdings and its own Personal Information Banks and is autonomous in terms of the administration of the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act. In order to access information from any of the Agencies, please forward your request directly to them. Please consult the Table of Contents and Introduction portions of Info Source for more information concerning the Information Holdings and addresses of the respective Agencies.

The Department provides advice and support to the Solicitor General in discharging his responsibilities for: providing effective direction to the agencies; exercising a national leadership role in policing, security and corrections; implementing First Nations Policing arrangements; and, answering in Cabinet and Parliament for the Ministry. The Department promotes and helps to maintain a Canadian society in which all persons can feel protected from threats to personal and national security and from infringements upon their rights and freedoms. The level, complexity and cross-jurisdictional nature of the issues addressed by the Department require that it work closely with others, including the Ministry agencies, federal departments such as Justice Canada, the provinces and other partners in the criminal justice system. Given the advisory nature of its work, the Department is also commonly referred to as the Secretariat.

Organization

Aboriginal Policing Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for the implementation of the First Nations Policing Policy and related program administration and provides strategic advice to the Minister regarding the Solicitor General's responsibilities related to this initiative. The Operations and Liaison Division is mandated to negotiate tripartite policing agreements with First Nations and provincial/territorial governments and to implement the program at the regional level. The Policy and Research Division is responsible for policy and program development (on- and off-reserve), and research activities geared towards improving the quality of First Nations policing services.

Communications Group

The Communications Group provides information to general and specialised publics about government policies and programs in the areas of corrections, parole, policing and security, as well as First Nations policing. Its role is to provide communications advice and support to the Solicitor General, the Deputy Solicitor General and the Department's managers.

Corporate Services Directorate

The Corporate Services Directorate provides advice and support to the Department in the areas of: finance and administration; security; informatics and telecommunications; human resource management; library services; and management review. It also provides advice and support to the three small review agencies, primarily in the areas of finance and administration, security, and human resource management.

♦ Human Resources Division

Human Resources provides advice and support to the Department in all areas of human resources to attain a qualified, productive and sustainable workforce and an enabling working environment.

♦ Management Review Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the Department's review program, which includes internal audit, program evaluation, other reviews and the coordination of reviews undertaken by program managers. The Directorate provides the Deputy Solicitor General and senior management with timely and objective advice and assurances on the performance of the Secretariat's management framework, key policies, programs and operations.

♦ Systems Division

Systems provides centralized computer and telecommunications services for the Department of the Solicitor General.

Executive Services Division

The Executive Services Division ensures that the required collaboration of the Agencies is undertaken to allow the Minister to fulfill his many parliamentary and Cabinet responsibilities. The division also supports the Minister by integrating major briefings and documentation from all parts of the Department and Agencies in order to prepare the Minister for official meetings and visits. In addition, Executive Services manages the timely processing of ministerial correspondence, as well as the Ministry's Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP) requests. Secretarial and office support services to the Minister's office are also provided by this division.

Finance and Administration

Responsible for the provision of complete financial and administrative support to the Department and the Review Agencies of the Ministry through the preparation, implementation and delivery of complete financial, administrative and security policies, procedures, programs, systems and services.

Ministry Library and Reference Centre

Provides basic library services to the staff of the Secretariat, the Correctional Service of Canada and the National Parole Board.

Policy Branch

The Policy Branch provides strategic advice and support to the Solicitor General with respect to his direction of the RCMP, CSIS and CSC, and his national leadership role in the areas of policing, security, corrections and parole. The Branch also advises and supports the Solicitor General in: his accountability to Parliament for the activities of the Agencies, the Office of the Correctional Investigator, the RCMP Public Complaints Commission, the RCMP External Review Committee and the Office of the Inspector General of CSIS; the administration of the Minister's statutory responsibilities respecting law enforcement, corrections and security; and his general responsibility as a Cabinet Minister to contribute to the public policy decisions of the Government.

♦ Corrections Directorate

The Directorate provides advice and support to the Solicitor General in his direction of the CSC and in his accountability to Parliament for the NPB. The Directorate is therefore responsible for providing advice on the strategic priorities of the CSC and NPB, and on a broad range of correctional program issues and activities. To support the Minister in his public policy leadership role in the corrections area, the Directorate works with the CSC and NPB to develop research-based policy initiatives aimed at addressing the requirement for a more effective, efficient and accountable federal corrections system.

♦ Policing and Law Enforcement Directorate

The Directorate provides advice and support to the Solicitor General in his direction of the RCMP and in respect of the priorities and proposals for initiatives advanced by the RCMP. To this end, the Directorate is responsible for: developing and reviewing policy proposals governing the overall effectiveness and accountability of the RCMP; developing and implementing federal policy on the management of RCMP policing agreements with provinces, territories and municipalities; and reviewing RCMP policy initiatives. The Directorate is also responsible for advising and supporting the Solicitor General in his public policy leadership role in the area of policing and law enforcement. To this end, the Directorate is responsible for developing research-based policy initiatives with federal, national, and international policing and law enforcement implications.

♦ Policy, Planning and Coordination Directorate

Working with other Directorates within the Department and with the Agencies of the Ministry, the Directorate is responsible for providing expert advice to the Minister on the policy planning framework and direction for all matters for which the Solicitor General is responsible. To this end, the Directorate provides coordination in ongoing development of policy planning initiatives, establishes linkages and maintains liaison with other provincial and federal departments and internationally, as well as with the non-government sector, and supports the Ministry in conducting environmental scanning, research coordination and providing statistics policy advice.

♦ Security Directorate

The Directorate provides advice and support to the Solicitor General in his direction, control and accountability for CSIS and the security functions of the RCMP. To this end, the Directorate supports the Minister with policy advice respecting his responsibilities for the accountability and review instruments and framework set out in the CSIS Act. The Directorate also coordinates national counter-terrorism and crisis management exercises, as well as the federal response to threats against national security.

St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, The

Chapter 97

General Information

Background

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority (SLSA) was established in 1954 by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act, and is designated a proprietary corporation (Schedule III, Part I) within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Responsibilities

The Authority was incorporated to ensure the acquisition of lands for, and the construction, maintenance and operation of all such works as may be necessary to provide and maintain, alone or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, a deep waterway between the Port of Montreal and Lake Erie; and the construction, maintenance and operation of all such works as the Governor in Council may deem necessary to fulfil any obligation undertaken pursuant to any present or future agreement. It also ensures the acquisition of lands for, and construction, maintenance and operation, alone or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, of bridges connecting Canada with the United States as authorized by the Act; and acquisition, with the approval of the Governor in Council, of shares in or property of any bridge company, as well as operation and management of these bridges; and the acquisition of lands for, and construction or acquisition, maintenance and operation of such works or other property as the Governor in Council may deem necessary for works undertaken pursuant to the Act. The Authority reports to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd.: Its head office, located in Cornwall, Ontario, operates and manages an international toll bridge system between Cornwall, Ontario and Roosevelt, New York, on behalf of the owners — The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada and the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated: was established to provide the public with a safe and efficient transit over the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute, and to provide this service while attempting to make the bridges self-financing. Specific objectives of the corporation are: (1) to continue the implementation of a program to maintain the bridges and autoroute at an acceptable standard; (2) to ensure operational safety and efficient flow of traffic; (3) to assess the need for improvements to the system and plan for their implementation; (4) to develop a long-term financial plan;

(5) to examine its personnel requirements on a continuing basis to assure the optimum utilization of human resources.

Marine Services:

Facilitates the process of establishing and maintaining Seaway Regulations required on a company-wide basis and assists in ensuring vessel compliance to regulations.

Operations and Maintenance Services:

Carries out studies relating to Maintenance and Operations practices, and periodically monitors the application of Maintenance and Operations procedures and overall system performance, and reports findings to Management.

Tolls and Statistics:

Manages the tolls invoicing, collections and vessel pre-clearance process. Maintains statistical information on transits and commodities, for use by Seaway customers, Government agencies and the Business Development Unit.

♦ Engineering Services Branch

Primary function of the Branch is to ensure the integrity and reliability of all lock and canal installations and to permit efficient and continuous operation of the Seaway using a highly trained, multi-disciplined staff to deal with civil, mechanical and electrical engineering design requirements, maintenance and repair; to prepare construction contract specifications for structures and facilities of the Maisonneuve and Niagara regions and all branches of the Authority; and to offer engineering services to The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated, the Thousand Islands Bridge Authority, federal and provincial government departments, standards associations and outside consultants.

♦ Maisonneuve Region

The Maisonneuve Region administration, with headquarters in St. Lambert, Quebec, is comprised of three divisions under the responsibility of a vice-president.

Administrative Services Division:

Supplies the human resources necessary to support the rest of the organization.

Engineering and Maintenance Division:

Responsible for making the regional structures available so as to permit the most efficient and continuous movement of vessel traffic. It provides systems for regular preventive maintenance in the civil, electrical and mechanical trades.

Operations Division:

Administers the movements of vessels from Montreal to Lake Ontario through the operation of a vessel traffic control centre, also located in Saint-Lambert, and several structures such as locks and bridges. It ensures safe, efficient and expedient vessel transits in accordance with Seaway regulations, policies and programs, regional operating procedures and federal statutes.

♦ Niagara Region

The Niagara Region administration, with headquarters in St. Catharines, comprises three divisions under the direction of a vice-president and is responsible for the operations and maintenance of the Welland Canal.

Administrative Services Division:

Provides administrative support to the other two divisions within the region in the areas of Human Resources Management, Accounting, Purchasing and Stores, Real Property Management and Vehicle and Building Maintenance Management.

Engineering and Maintenance Division:

Responsible for the continuous availability and reliable operation of all structures and Seaway facilities of the Niagara Region St. Lawrence Seaway Authority to ensure safe and expedient movement of vessel traffic in accordance with Authority policy, programs and service objectives. This is achieved by establishing both basic short- and long-term objectives for the Division encompassing the essential maintenance, rehabilitation and improvement projects to be carried out.

Operations Division:

Responsible for the efficient manning of the vessel traffic control centre and other operating structures to ensure a safe, efficient and expedient movement of vessel traffic through the Welland Canal and in adjacent waters of Lakes Erie and Ontario in accordance with Authority policy, programs, procedures, approved budgets and applicable federal statutes. The Division is also involved in liaison with the shipping trade and United States and Canadian government agencies involved in the operation of the Seaway.

♦ Planning and Business Development Branch

The responsibilities of the group include:

Business Development/Promotion:

to support and coordinate industry efforts in marketing the St. Lawrence Seaway Great Lakes system through promotional endeavours and research and coordination of marketing information. Business development/promotional activities are pursued by continuing efforts through trade missions, fairs, conferences, receptions, special business contact meetings, special maritime industry committees and the development of promotional material.

Corporate/Strategic Planning:

to coordinate preparation of the Corporate Plan for the purposes of the Financial Administration Act; to coordinate preparation of the Strategic Plan; to apply a comprehensive and systematic approach to clarifying corporate objectives, making strategic decisions and checking progress towards objectives.

Forecasting/Market Research:

to conduct economic market analysis to determine commodity flows along the system; to prepare and update short and long range forecasts for commodity movements; to conduct tolls and sensitivity analysis; to evaluate the impact on Seaway traffic of government policies or economic factors; to evaluate external economic studies.

Public Relations:

to coordinate preparation/distribution of the Annual report; to answer external requests for information at the Corporate level; to coordinate printing/distribution of Seaway Handbook, Seaway notices, Seaway news releases; to participate in development of Seaway advertisement.

♦ Subsidiaries

The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd. Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, Ltd. The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated Thousand Islands Bridge Authority

♦ Welland Canal Twinning Project Contractors' Association

This now defunct association was formed to ensure a stable labour environment in the trades working on the Welland Canal By-pass Project between 1964 and 1974. Although the office was abolished in 1974, the records created are still available.

Description: See Canals (Engineering Services Branch), SLS ESB 080 above. Program Record Number: SLS OMB 081

Champlain Bridge

Description: Information about the administration of the Champlain Bridge (includes a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute). Topics: Champlain Bridge — general; bridge construction; bridge construction contracts; buildings and properties; buildings — construction, construction contracts, maintenance and repairs, maintenance and repairs contracts; fill; inspection and testing of materials; land concessions; land disposal; deeds — acquisition, case files; easements (case files); leases and licences (case files); letters patent (case files); transfers (case files); lighting system; load limits; maintenance and repairs; maintenance and repair contracts; permits; professional service contracts; power supply; roads — north approaches, northwest approaches; Bonaventure Autoroute; service contracts; ambulance; cleaning; snow removal; grass cutting; towing; salt; uniforms; janitorial; toll collection; toll collection equipment; tolls (tariff); traffic control; traffic counts, statistics, revenue; traffic signs and supports; water supply; Bonaventure Autoroute; Bonaventure Autoroute, construction of; dealings; fences; reversible lane; road signs; Champlain Bridge sections — section 1A, section 2, sections 2 and 3, sections 2, 4 and 8, section 3, sections 3, 4, 5 and 6, section 4, section 5, sections 5 to 7, section 6, sections 6, 7 and 8, section 7B, section 8. Program Record Number: SLS JCB 130

Concrete Control

Description: Information on all aspects of the engineering analysis, testing and study of concrete and its properties. Topics: Concrete sampling and testing; material sampling and testing; equipment; concrete specifications; inspection. Program Record Number: SLS EMW 105

Electric Plants (Maisonneuve Region)

Description: Information on electric plants and equipment, and the distribution of electrical energy.

Topics: Motors and generators; sub-stations; control boards; transmission lines; cables and wires; powerhouses; lighting; power supply; heaters; component parts.

Program Record Number: SLS EME 055

Electric Plants (Niagara Region)

Description: See Electric Plants (Maisonneuve Region), SLS EME 055 above. Program Record Number: SLS EMW 056

Hydraulic Models

Description: Information on models which are built to study the effect of projects and to determine ideal design for construction purposes. Topics: Hydraulic river models; lock models. Program Record Number: SLS ESB 085

Hydraulics

Description: Information on the gauging of water levels at points along the Seaway; measurement of water flow; water and air temperatures. Topics: General hydraulics; water levels (gauging); discharges; diversions; metering; regulation of levels and discharges; backwater data; water and air temperatures; studies and testing. Program Record Number: SLS OMB 015

Jacques Cartier Bridge

Description: Information about the administration of the Jacques Cartier Bridge. Topics: Jacques Cartier Bridge — general; bridge construction; bridge construction contracts; buildings and properties; buildings — construction, construction contracts, maintenance and repairs, maintenance and repair contracts; land concessions; land disposal; deeds — acquisition, case files; easements (case files); leases and licences (case files); letters patent (case files); transfers (case files); lighting system — load limits; maintenance and repairs; maintenance and repair contracts; permits; professional service contracts; power supply; road approaches; roads — north approaches, south shore approaches; service contracts; ambulance; cleaning; snow removal; grass cutting; towing; salt; janitorial; St-Helen's Island; The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority; telephone cables; toll collection; toll collection equipment; tolls; traffic control; traffic statistics; widening of the roadway. Program Record Number: SLS JCB 125

Locks (Engineering Services Branch)

Description: Information on the design, construction, alteration, improvement, repair and maintenance of locks, lock regulating works, and approach and tie-up walls; also maintenance and repair of equipment associated with these structures, and studies and tests on the filling and emptying of locks, or the effect of flows from regulating on shipping or lock components. Topics: Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation locks; St. Lambert Lock; Côte St. Catherine Lock; Lower Beauharnois Lock; Upper Beauharnois Lock; Iroquois Lock; Welland Canal locks. Each file on an Authority-owned lock is divided into the following standard subjects: construction and alterations; maintenance and repairs; gates; gate machinery; gate ropes; gate painting; gate anchorages; unwatering gates; ship arrestors; machinery; capstans and linehaulers; sills (metre and sector); valves and valve machinery regulating works and equipment; lock ladders; stop logs and stop log handling equipment; approach and tie-up walls; electrical equipment; controls and control systems; lock and wall fendering; filling culverts and ports; de-icing and ice prevention. Program Record Number: SLS ESB 070

Locks (Operations and Maintenance Branch)

Description: See Locks (Engineering Services Branch), SLS ESB 070 above. Program Record Number: SLS OMB 071

Navigation

Description: Information on all aspects of navigation within the Seaway, including navigation rules and regulations, studies on shipping season extension, acceptable ship equipment for Seaway transit, traffic control, the enforcement of ship speed restrictions, the study of ice and its formation within the Seaway, performance analysis of the structures forming the Seaway, and ship files. Topics: Navigation rules and regulations; navigation channel; aids to navigation; shipping associations; vessel dimensions; traffic control signal lights and warning signs; traffic control; equipment for vessels; vessel speed; operation procedures; water pollution; channel maintenance; navigation season; pilotage; Canadian and American navigation season extension studies; meteorological data; ice studies; marine shunter program; navigation research and development; operational data analysis; Welland Traffic Control Improvement Program; individual ship files containing information on the physical characteristics of the ship — dimensions, plans and drawings; inspection, incident, occurrence and accident reports. Access: Ship files — one group arranged by pre-clearance number, another by ship name, new hulls by shipyard name. Program Record Number: SLS OMB 010

Operations Source Documents (Maisonneuve Region)

Description: Information on vessel movements and structure operation details. Topics: Lock log; bridge record; dock tabs; daily call-in sheets. Access: Files arranged by form title, then by region and structure (call-in sheets arranged by form title, then region and traffic sector). Program Record Number: SLS ODE 045

Operations Source Documents (Niagara Region)

Description: See Operations Source Documents (Maisonneuve Region), SLS ODE 045 above. Program Record Number: SLS ODW 046

Plan Records

Description: Information on construction and as-built details of buildings, lock and canal installations, and facilities. Storage Medium: Microfilm. Program Record Number: SLS ESB 110

Planning and Development by Other Agencies

Description: Information on engineering advice, assistance or contract administration services provided by the Authority to federal and provincial government departments. Topics: Zoning; ports and anchorages; recreation areas; historic sites. Program Record Number: SLS ESB 075

Power Development

Description: Information on the development and construction of facilities to generate electrical energy, and related correspondence. Topics: International rapids section; channel improvements; Iroquois Dam; Long Sault Dam; Barnhart Powerhouse; rehabilitation; Lachine; Hydro-Quebec's Projet Archipel; Beauharnois; Carillon;

Ontario Hydro Eastern Ontario study. Program Record Number: SLS ESB 095

Public Relations and Publicity Programme

Description: Information on the Authority's Public Relations Programme. Topics: Promoting and Marketing the Seaway; trade mission. Program Record Number: SLS CPB 006

Remedial Works and Public Services

Description: Information on alteration, removal or relocation of services or utilities resulting from major construction projects undertaken by the Authority. Topics: Highways and roads; railways; communication lines; power lines; modification and relocation of transmission lines; sewage and drainage; water supply and intake; pumping stations; gas mains; cemeteries. Program Record Number: SLS ESB 060

Security

Description: Information on the physical security of Authority buildings, installations or facilities; also correspondence related to the special policy concerning passes (visitors and servicing); liaison with Emergency Planning Canada to provide assistance in emergency conditions and civil defence planning actions. Topics: Passes; Seaway structures and premises; Emergency Planning Canada. Program Record Number: SLS CPB 005

Soil Mechanics and Foundation Engineering

Description: Information on all aspects of the engineering analysis, testing and study of soil and its properties. Topics: Technical information; equipment enquiries, maintenance and specifications; site exploration, sampling and field measurements; foundation and embankment instrumentation and field measurements; engineering properties of soils and laboratory testing; construction control; excavations and embankments; water and climatic information; foundation and earth pressure problems; engineering geology; soil-cement and soil stabilization. Program Record Number: SLS EMW 100

Telecommunications (Maisonneuve Region)

Description: Information on the operation, maintenance and study of communications equipment in use within the Seaway. Topics: Radiotelephone; teletype and telex; telephone services; public address; alarm systems; television; radar; outages and trouble reports; tape recordings; facsimile; conferences; Government Telecommunications Agency; Department of Transport reports and bulletins. Program Record Number: SLS ODE 040

Telecommunications (Niagara Region)

Description: See Telecommunications (Maisonneuve Region), SIS ODE 040 above. Program Record Number: SLS ODW 041

The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd.

Description: Information on The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd., the Roosevelt Bridge, the South Channel Bridge and the North Channel Bridge and tolls.

Topics: Roosevelt Bridge (relocation); New York Central Railroad Co. (purchase); Cornwall International Bridge Co. Ltd. (purchase of shares); operation and maintenance; agreement with the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation; South Channel and North Channel Bridges — construction, operation and maintenance, annual inspection, damages, complaints, lighting; tolls, bridge passes, toll collections equipment, toll revisions; reports on traffic statistics; shareholders', directors', and management committee meetings.

Program Record Number: SLS SIB 120

Traffic

Description: Information on the establishment or revision of tolls; assessment and collection of tolls; fees for side and top wharfage and heavy lifts; classification or reclassification of cargoes for tolls; pre-clearance arrangements; analysis of traffic and cargoes; compilation of reports and statistics on tolls; studies of potential traffic within the Great Lakes system. Topics: Tolls; vessel movements; commodity, cargo and shipping statistics; toll revision; shipping company files; economic studies; charges and tariffs. Program Record Number: SLS FAB 020

Traffic Accounts Receivable Invoices

Description: Receipted invoices showing the amounts owed and paid to the Authority. Access: One copy arranged alphabetically by shipping representative name, another by invoice number. Program Record Number: SLS FAR 030

Traffic Control Centre Tape

Recordings (Maisonneuve Region)

Description: Tape recordings of radiotelephone or landline telephone transmissions for the Maisonneuve and Niagara region traffic control centres. Note: Tapes are erased and reused after a 30-day period unless a situation requires retention of a specific tape or tapes for a longer period. Access: Tapes arranged chronologically. Storage Medium: Magnetic tape. Program Record Number: SLS ODE 050

Recordings (Niagara Region)

Description: See Traffic Control Centre Tape Recordings (Maisonneuve Region), SLS ODE 050 above. Program Record Number: SLS ODW 051

Traffic Pre-clearance Forms

Description: These forms are applications for vessel pre-clearance. They are completed by vessel representatives and give particulars of the ownership, liability insurance and physical characteristics of the vessel. The forms also guarantee payment of the tolls and charges that may be incurred by the vessel. As part of the pre-clearance process, cash, bank letters of guarantee, Government of Canada Bonds or United States Treasury Bonds may be submitted as security. Note: Pre-clearance forms and bank letters of guarantee are held by the Accounts Receivable Section; bonds are held in Ottawa by the Securities Division of Supply and Services Canada.

Access: Pre-clearance forms are filed by ship number; bank letters of guarantee are filed alphabetically by agent name. Program Record Number: SLS FAR 035

Transit Declaration Forms (Cargo and Passengers)

Description: This form is used in assessing toll charges and bears such details as date of entry, vessel name, port of origin, port of destination, Seaway number, containers, grains carried, number of passengers, type of cargo (bulk or general), locks transited, tolls assessed. Where cargo is carried to or from an overseas port, a copy of the cargo manifest accompanies the transit declaration form.

Access: Records arranged by vessel number. Storage

Medium: EDP format for toll assessment and traffic statistics. Program Record Number: SLS FAB 025

Welland Canal Twinning Project Contractors' Association

Description: Information on the review and negotiation of labour agreements and the application of labour standards. Topics: Industrial relations; labour relations; collective agreement; Welland Canal Construction Council; meetings; public relations; legislation; central employment bureau; associations; labour conditions; construction associations; contractors; contracts.

Classes of Personal Information

Corporate Services and Regional Operations Sections
In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Corporate Services and Regional Operations

Sections, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes reports completed by ships' captains or pilots as required, and reports by Authority employees making reference to ships' captains or pilots. Such reports are included on ship history files containing accident, incident, violation, inspection and delay reports on specific ships, stored as part of the general files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. The files are used for reference purposes and the personal information contained therein could be used to assess liability. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the name of the ship and date of occurrence of the event. The retention period for these classes of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Purchasing Section

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Purchasing Section, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes surplus assets files containing information on the disposal of surplus materiel and equipment, including the declaring of surplus assets, the location of assets, the names and addresses of purchasers and pertinent sales documentation, stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This class is maintained on a regional basis. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the surplus declaration number and a description of the surplus assets. The retention period for surplus assets files is two years after disposal.

Standards Council of Canada

Chapter 98

General Information

Background

The Standards Council of Canada (SCC) was established in 1970 by an Act of Parliament to foster and promote voluntary standardization in Canada as a means of advancing the national economy, benefiting the health, safety and welfare of the public, assisting and protecting consumers, facilitating domestic and international trade, and furthering international co-operation in the field of standards.

Responsibilities

The Council carries out its task through the National Standards System (NSS), a federation of accredited independent organizations concerned with standards development, certification, testing, quality systems registration and environmental systems registration coordinated by the SCC. The system was created to provide a medium through which Canadian organizations involved in such activities may operate and co-operate to recognize, establish and improve standardization in Canada. It provides a comprehensive Canadian standardization capability to meet both national and international requirements and responsibilities.

The Council ensures effective Canadian participation in the work of the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) and the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC). Both of these international agencies have as their objective the development of standards, with a view to facilitating international exchange of goods and services. ISO work is concerned with standardization in many disciplines, except for the electrotechnology field which is IEC's responsibility.

Legislation

- Standards Council of Canada Act

Organization

♦ Executive and Administration Branch

The Branch ensures the coordination of Council programs within budgetary limitations and verifies that all activities are in keeping with its objectives and procedures as set out in the Standards Council of Canada Act and by-laws. It provides administrative services for all Council staff. It also performs the planning, accounting and reporting functions for all of the Council. It is accountable for revenues and appropriations and is responsible for discharging Council's liabilities.

♦ External Relations Branch

Communications Division:

The Communications Division is responsible for Council's corporate communications program. The division places advertising and public service announcements with various media, including print, television and radio to publicize the activities and services of Council. The division is also responsible for writing speeches, the production of audio-visual materials and for trade show exhibits. The division publishes the annual report and CONSENSUS, a news magazine with eight issues a year. The division also produces general information brochures about the Council and its services.

Customer Services Division:

The Customer Services Division is comprised of Information Services which includes the Technical Documentation Centre and Sales Services.

Information services is responsible for planning, developing and implementing activities and programs to ensure that the private and public sectors have ready access to national and international networks of information services on standards and standards-related activities. Information provided by Information Services may concern Canadian and/or foreign standards, specifications, technical regulations, codes, certification systems, standardization activities and other standards-related information. Information services acts as the Canadian WTO/NAFTA Enquiry Point, required by the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade (TBT) and Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures (SPS) under the World Trade Organization (WTO) Agreement as well as the Canada-United States-Mexico North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). The WTO/NAFTA Enquiry Point provides access to a wealth of strategic information essential to the design, manufacture, marketing, export and import of products and services. It also functions as the Canadian member of the International Organization for Standardization Information Network (ISONET). Information Services coordinates Canadian participation on the ISO Committee on Information (INFOCO) and functions as the central information and referral agency for the Standards Information System of Canada (CANSIS). Information Services also operates as the national centre for information on standardization activities of the Single European Market initiative.

The Technical Documentation Centre of this institution has been designated as a public reading room under the Access to Information Act. Its holding include a collection of over 400,000 standards and standards-related documents, standards catalogues of over 800 standards developing organizations, as well as various handbooks, directories and indices. In addition, the Documentation Centre subscribes to a number of Canadian, International and foreign periodicals. The Documentation Centre is equipped with various electronic search tools including on-line bibliographic databases of Canadian Standards, ISO standards and draft standards, WTO/NAFTA notifications, SCC accredited laboratories, together with CD-Rom information databases.

For hours, refer to Reading Room Section.

The Sales Service is responsible for the sale, in Canada, of standards published by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC), and foreign national standards published by approximately 90 member bodies of the ISO as well as a wide variety of standards and standards-related publications. Stocks of publications in demand are maintained to enable shortened delivery of international and foreign standards to Canadian clients. The Sales Service also provides National standards-development organizations (SDO's) with an additional outlet for Canadian standards. Through this centralized enquiry and supplier point, Canadians are kept informed of the various publications which could ultimately affect the manufacture and the positioning of their goods and services.

◆ Standardization Branch

The Branch coordinates voluntary standardization activities among standards writing organizations, calibration and testing laboratories, product certification organizations, quality and environmental system registration organizations, quality and environmental auditor certifiers, and maintains liaison with federal and provincial government authorities, industry and consumers. It assesses and recommends for accreditation organizations engaged in standards writing, product certification, calibration testing and registration, auditor certification and training of quality and environmental auditors. It also reviews standards for acceptance as National Standards of Canada. The Branch is responsible for ensuring effective Canadian participation in the work of international standardization organizations and for programs of training and technical assistance to developing countries in the field of standardization.

Statistics Canada

Chapter 99

General Information

Background

Statistics Canada collects and provides statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes. This is done under the authority of the Statistics Act which prohibits the disclosure of identifiable information to anyone but the individual person, business or organization concerned.

The statistical information banks maintained by Statistics Canada contain some personal information that has been obtained from a variety of sources. Information is collected directly from the individual through the censuses of population and agriculture, from sample surveys such as surveys on income and expenditure, labour force surveys and special surveys. It is also collected through certain formal agreements the agency has entered into with large social institutions and various levels of Canadian governments. These arrangements give Statistics Canada access to administrative records for the purpose of extracting data on the client populations of the institutions of Health, Education and Justice and on the activities of the population as it comes in contact with the state (e.g., the registration of births, deaths and marriages).

One of the most important of these agreements is one Statistics Canada has with Revenue Canada (Taxation) to access taxation returns for statistical purposes, thus allowing the use of an administrative file of the federal government containing a wealth of information on the socio-economic fabric of the Canadian population. The accessing of taxation records has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from the filing of regular questionnaires.

Information banks maintained by Statistics Canada are largely automated. Since records in these banks are meant to be used for statistical purposes and not for administrative purposes, they are rarely classified by name. In fact, few data banks contain names. Some banks are organized by a unique identifier, be it a number assigned by Statistics Canada, a number assigned by the administrative source, such as a registration number, or the social insurance number. Records in other banks are classified geographically, or by the name of the company. It should be noted that many of the statistical data banks contain only a sample of the population. To locate a statistical record, Statistics Canada will require, in most cases, not only an identifier, but additional information such as the time period in which an individual has responded to a survey, or his/her street address, or his/her industry sector.

Responsibilities

The mandate and program objectives of Statistics Canada are: to collect and publish in impersonal formats statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes; to collaborate with other participants in the broader national statistical system in extending the system's scope, usefulness and use; and to provide leadership, professional expertise and coordination in such efforts.

Legislation

- Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA), 1962, c. 26
- Statistics Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. S19

Organization

Office of the Chief Statistician of Canada

This area is the focal point for the administration of all matters pertaining to Statistics Canada.

♦ Chief Statistician of Canada

The Chief Statistician is a deputy of the Minister Responsible for Statistics Canada. The Chief Statistician advises on matters pertaining to statistical programs of the departments and agencies of the Government of Canada, and confers with such departments and agencies to that end. The Chief Statistician supervises generally the administration of the Statistics Act and controls the operations and staff of Statistics Canada.

♦ Departmental Secretariat

The Departmental Secretariat serves as the principal focal point for liaison with the Minister Responsible for Statistics Canada, other ministers, and members of Parliament generally. In support of the Minister, the Departmental Secretariat processes correspondence, deals with parliamentary returns, responds to oral and written questions and prepares briefing material on issues relating to Statistics Canada's programs and policies.

Its other functions include providing staff support to the Chief Statistician and the Policy Committee, as well as liaising with various management committees. The Departmental Secretariat is also responsible for review and control of official government documentation.

Business and Trade Statistics Field

This field produces a wide range of monthly, quarterly and annual statistics on manufacturing, primary industries, transportation, communications, computing, construction, agriculture, merchandising services, external trade, prices, business finance, science and technology, small business, public finance, Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA), regional industrial structure and related areas. It is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Industry, Trade and Prices Statistics and the Resources, Technology and Services Statistics branches and Large Enterprise Statistics.

◆ Industry, Trade and Prices Statistics Branch

This Branch is responsible for planning, directing, coordinating and controlling the activities of subject-matter divisions to ensure the provision of statistical information and advice to governments, private organizations and institutions. It includes the following divisions: Industry, Transportation, International Trade and Prices.

Industry Division:

Conducts monthly surveys on manufacturing, forestry, retail, wholesale and energy to produce a range of current indicators such as shipments or sales, inventories, and orders. Also, conducts the annual surveys covering manufacturing, forestry, retail, wholesale, mineral fuels, pipelines and utility industries to produce a range of cost structure, material input, commodity output and employment data.

International Trade Division:

Responsible for the compilation, analysis and dissemination of Canada's merchandise export and import statistics and related price and volume indices.

Prices Division:

Provides information on retail (consumer) prices, living costs, and industrial products, raw materials, farm input prices and construction price indexes, as well as a number of indexes relating to capital expenditures and services.

Transportation Division:

Collects, publishes and makes available statistics on air, rail, road and water transportation industries and on related traffic and infrastructures.

◆ Large Enterprise Statistics

The objective of this project is to improve the quality of our industrial and financial statistics through a better and more integrated method of reporting by large businesses. This objective will initially be confined to surveys of annual production, capital formation and financial statistics and their quarterly derivatives.

◆ Resources, Technology and Services Statistics Branch

This Branch is responsible for planning, directing, coordinating and controlling the activities of the subject matter divisions to ensure the provision of statistical information and advice to governments, private organizations and institutions. This Branch includes the following divisions: Services, Science and Technology, Industrial Organization and Finance, Agriculture, Investment and Capital Stock, and Small Business and Special Surveys.

Agriculture Division:

Produces information on the supply of agricultural commodities (production and inventory levels); the resources employed to produce these commodities (land and capital); the returns to farmers arising out of production; revenues and expenses, off-farm income of operators and farm families by type of farm; socio-economic characteristics of farmers; and apparent per capita food consumption.

Industrial Organization and Finance Division:

Produces financial statistics for enterprises and corporation taxation statistics. It also administers the Corporation and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA).

Investment and Capital Stock Division:

Provides a focus for the collection, analysis and publication of statistics relating to investment activities.

Science and Technology Division:

Responsible for the development of an integrated and comprehensive program of statistics on science and technology, and communications.

Services Division:

Responsible for the development of an integrated and comprehensive program of statistics on services.

Small Business and Special Surveys Division:

Provides statistical information on and for small business in Canada and responds to information needs of clients concerning business statistics in Canada which cannot be met through the Agency's on-going statistical programs.

Communications and Operations Field

This Field provides a full range of external communication functions, including respondent, user, and media relations. It also administers the central and regional operational functions essential to the conduct of the agency's statistical programs, including regional data collection and processing activities, marketing, publishing and electronic data dissemination. This Field is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Marketing and Information Services, Surveys and Regional Operations Branches.

◆ Marketing and Information Services Branch

This Branch is responsible for the activities which design and organize the information products of the agency to service the needs of its various clients at the federal, provincial and municipal government levels, and in the public and private sectors. It includes the following Divisions: Communications, Marketing, Dissemination and StatCan Online Project.

Communications Division:

Promotes effective communications between Statistics Canada and its publics. The Division coordinates the release of the Agency's information to the public, notably through the "Daily/Le Quotidien" (the Agency's official release publication) and provides communications planning, environmental monitoring, media relations, client relations and respondent relations support to Agency programs. In addition, the Division provides assistance with public consultations and coordinates federal-provincial consultative system. Publishing of information products, such as the "Canada Year Book", "Canada: A Portrait", and "Infomat", is another major responsibility. Through the employee newsletter, "SCAN", and its Internal Communication Network, the Division contributes to internal communications in the Agency. Finally, Communications Division maintains and improves the overall quality of communications at Statistics Canada by providing editorial services and communications training.

Dissemination Division:

Responsible for the production of the Department's catalogued publications and the development and operation of techniques and mechanisms to foster the public access to Statistics Canada's information through electronic means.

Marketing Division:

Provides overall leadership and coordination for the marketing activities of Statistics Canada. These activities include the development of strategic marketing plans, market research to identify client needs, coordination of promotional and sales campaigns, pricing and licensing of the agency's products and the management of a marketing information system.

StatsCan Online Project:

Responsible for designing, developing and implementing an online service to deliver the publishable data of Statistics Canada.

◆ Regional Operations Branch

This organization is responsible through a headquarters staff and a network of regional offices for survey data collection, primary processing and editing, for the provision of statistical information and advice at the regional level, and for related user respondents and community relations. Regional offices are located in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Sturgeon Falls, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Vancouver and Calgary. The Branch includes the Survey Operations Division and the Advisory Services Division.

Advisory Services Division:

Provides an information dissemination network across the country through nine regional Reference Centres. A team of information consultants carries out a range of marketing and sales functions, dealing directly with Statistics Canada's clients in order to customize the information to meet their needs.

Survey Operations Division:

Responsible for researching, costing, developing, delivering and evaluating data collection and data capture procedures and training in cooperation with client divisions and several external departments. The Division provides services in the areas of project management, operations research and analysis, organization and methods of data collection, financial control, logistical support, data capture and operations audit and evaluation.

◆ Surveys Branch

This Branch is responsible for analysing, evaluating and reviewing all statistical operations; and for managing the integrated headquarters operations. It also develops and implements approaches and strategies for integrating operations and services throughout the agency, including the regionalization of operational activities, and manages and coordinates related production support services. It includes Administrative Support Services Division, the Operations and Integration Division and the Operations Research and Development Division.

Administrative Support Services Division:

Involved in the following areas: records management, distribution of data collection material, publications and general correspondence, materiel management and facilities management, and contract administration.

Operations and Integration Division:

Responsible for the planning and management of the operations for more than 200 surveys conducted centrally, for the data capture of many more documents, and for geocartographic services to Census and other divisions. The division also provides support to the Marketing Division by processing orders, telemarketing, and providing client support regarding published data.

Operations Research and Development Division:

Its primary mission is to initiate and manage a program of research and development designed to improve efficiency, effectiveness, and job satisfaction with potential application to the Operations and Integration Division and other operational entities in Statistics Canada.

Informatics and Methodology Field

This field ensures that the statistical methodology used by all surveys is sound and statistically efficient, and provides leadership for and management of information processing in Statistics Canada. It is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for Informatics, Classification Systems and Methodology, Geography and International and Professional Relations.

◆ Classification Systems Branch

This Branch develops and promulgates classification systems; standardizes economic, social and geographic concepts; develops, enhances and maintains the business register as a major integration instrument of survey-taking; and is responsible for the exploitation of taxation and other administrative data. It includes the Business Register Division and the Standards Division.

Business Register Division:

Responsible for the development and maintenance of a central register of firms and their constituent establishments for purposes of statistical collections. It is also responsible for accessing and transcribing statistical data from Revenue Canada records to supplement or replace data collected by survey, and for maintaining a tax database.

Standards Division:

Develops standard classifications, monitors their implementation, and establishes official concordances between international and Canadian classifications. It standardizes economic and social concepts, and provides a system of comprehensive documentation for all surveys conducted in Statistics Canada.

◆ Geography Division

Maintains Statistics Canada's geographic classification infrastructure, develops geographic concepts and products and services for clients, including the Census, and is the centre of expertise in the application of computerized geographic and cartographic techniques.

◆ Informatics Branch

This Branch provides electronic data processing (EDP) services to Statistics Canada. The headquarters staff, in conjunction with other members of the Branch, is responsible for the formulation of policies relating to EDP and managing overall branch activities. It also coordinates relations with the users of various systems and data processing services. The Branch provides the chairman and secretariat services for the executive sub-committee on EDP. It includes the System Development Division, the Informatics User Services Division and the Main Computer Centre.

Informatics User Services Division:

Provides end-users of informatics a comprehensive range of informatics and communications services. Services include the maintenance and support of informatics equipment, and communications hardware, and related software, training and consultation and liaison with clients. In addition, the division is involved in planning and development of EDP policy and standards, information modelling and is responsible for EDP security.

Main Computer Centre:

Responsible for the provision of large-scale computer and mid-range computer services to Statistics Canada, including data storage facilities for the agency's EDP data.

System Development Division:

Responsible for designing, developing and maintaining software for the support of surveys, censuses and other computer-based operations conducted by the agency. It also provides strategic advice on the use of Information Technology in automating the Agency programs.

◆ International and Professional Relations Division

Coordinates Statistics Canada's contacts with the statistical offices of other countries and international organizations, such as the United Nations, its specialized agencies and regional commissions; the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development; the European Union; the International Statistical Institute; and so on. It provides policy advice on international matters to senior departmental management; co-ordinates the work required for fulfilling international obligations, such as representation at intergovernmental meetings and data reporting; manages the department's International Technical Assistance Program; and maintains contact on behalf of the department with the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade and the Canadian International Development Agency. The division's responsibilities also include co-ordination of the department's relations with professional societies; the management of the department's Research Fellowship and Internship Program; and the administration of the department's approval system for foreign and non-operational domestic travel.

◆ Methodology Branch

This Branch plans, organizes and directs the work of the divisions and staff engaged in the development, implementation, analysis and evaluation of the statistical methodology underlying all of the programs of the agency. The Branch includes the following divisions: Social Survey Methods, Business Survey Methods, Household Survey Methods and Small Area and Administrative Data.

Business Survey Methods Division:

Responsible for providing methodological services to business, trade and agriculture statistics programs as well as for services on seasonal adjustment of time series, data analysis, re-engineering and quality assurance to all statistics programs. It is also responsible for the development and maintenance of methodology standards, for the development and support of generalized methods for survey functions and for research and development on problems related to survey design and evaluation, time series and survey data analysis. The division includes the Time Series Research and Analysis Centre, the Re-engineering Support Centre, the Data Analysis Resource Centre, and Quarterly Assurance Methods Section.

Household Survey Methods Division:

Responsible for providing methodological services to the household and institutional statistics programs, including surveys on the labour force, consumer income and expenditure, health, education, culture, tourism, justice and public institutions; the General Social Surveys; and social and economic studies. It is also responsible for research and development on problems related to survey design, evaluation and data analysis. The division includes the Record Linkage Resource Centre.

Small Area and Administrative Data Division:

Develops and disseminates small area social, economic and demographic statistics and indicators. The sources of these data are administrative files from other federal departments.

Social Survey Methods Division:

Responsible for providing methodological services to social, institutions and labour statistics programs including the Census, the National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth, the Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics, other cross-sectional and longitudinal surveys and special surveys carried out on a cost recovery basis. It is also responsible for research and development on problems related to survey design, evaluation, data analysis and development of small area and administrative data. The division includes the Questionnaire Design Resource Centre and the Statistical Consultation Group.

Management Services Field

This Field organizes and coordinates internal management services, including the development and implementation of all management policies and systems within the Agency and the assessment of the efficiency and effectiveness of these programs. It is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Finance, Planning, Audit and Evaluation Branch, Human Resources Branch, Corporate Assignments Division and Data Access and Control Services Division.

♦ Corporate Assignments Division

Manages a human resources development program which provides indeterminate employees the opportunity to experience temporary assignments both internally and in other government departments. The length of assignments can range from six months to two years. The employee's tenure in his/her home position is protected. Assignments arranged through this program also serve to: (a) assist employees to broaden their career choices and acquire new skills and abilities; (b) improve the department's operational flexibility by providing an inventory of qualified candidates able to fill human resources requirements on a temporary basis; (c) support the ES, CS and Technical Support Recruitment and Development Programs; (d) support employment equity policies and goals.

♦ Data Access and Control Services Division

Serves as a departmental focal point for matters relating to the confidentiality of the information collected by Statistics Canada, statistical agreements, record linkages for statistical purposes, and Statistics Canada's Policy on Informing Survey Respondents. It coordinates the implementation of Treasury Board's Management of Government Information Holdings Policy (MGIH), administers services pursuant to the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, and manages the departmental security services.

♦ Finance, Planning, Audit and Evaluation Branch

This Branch is responsible for determining the financial resources required by Statistics Canada and supervising the Agency's expenses. The Branch is also responsible for operations related to program and financial planning, financial services, management information systems, for developing good management systems to support the agency's managers in achieving departmental objectives and for ensuring that management practices identified by the Office of the Comptroller General are carried out. It includes the following divisions: Audit and Evaluation, Corporate Planning and Programming, Financial Policies and Systems Division and the Financial Operations Division.

Audit and Evaluation Division:

Provides a systematic and independent review of all operations for purposes of advising Statistics Canada's management on the efficiency, effectiveness and economy of management, and is responsible for evaluating Statistics Canada's programs to assess the continued relevance of their objectives, and for investigating alternatives that might achieve the objectives in a more cost-effective manner.

Corporate Planning and Programming Division:

Responsible for the effective management of the corporate planning, multi-year operational planning and budget development processes; for the development, implementation and evaluation of cost accounting systems and costing methodologies; for the conduct of expenditure and revenue forecasting activities; and for the development and implementation of a variety of management processes aimed at improving overall program effectiveness and efficiency.

Financial Operations Division:

Responsible for the accounts office, which retains records on all expenditure and revenue transactions, recoverable projects accounting, and general accounting services.

Financial Policies and Systems Division:

Responsible for the development, design, implementation and review of departmental financial policies, systems and procedures in Statistics Canada.

◆ Human Resources Branch

This Branch is responsible for assisting management in obtaining, deploying, developing and retaining the staff necessary to execute Statistics Canada's responsibilities. It is also responsible for ensuring fair and equitable treatment of individual employees. It includes the following Divisions: Human Resources Operations, Human Resources Development, Official Languages and Translation, and the Employee Assistance Program.

Employee Assistance Program:

Responsible for providing confidential health assistance and advice to employees, and disseminating information on the various social agencies available to provide service to employees.

Human Resources Development Division:

Responsible for the analysis, development, implementation and coordination of human resources policies and programs related to diversity management and employment equity, human resources planning and career management, training and development programs, work design and classification, human resources information systems and employee assistance and counseling.

Human Resources Operations Division:

Responsible for operations in the areas of classification, recruitment, promotions, redeployment, language identification of positions, staff relations and compensation administration, and for the development, implementation and ongoing operations of personnel policies and programs related to staffing.

Official Languages and Translation Division:

Responsible for developing departmental guidelines on official languages and translation, and providing information and advice to managers on the requirements of the Official Languages Act and on the implementation of related policies and programs in their respective areas. The Division also develops and manages the departmental language training program as a whole, plans and oversees the language training of individual employees and provides them with information on their rights and obligations regarding official languages. In addition, as of April 1, 1995, the Division is responsible for managing translation services for all of Statistics Canada.

National Accounts and Analytical Studies Field

This Field is responsible for providing a set of macroeconomic series within the five complex frameworks of the Canadian System of National Accounts. It provides a broad band of research and analysis intended to animate society's perception of social and economic behaviour, and undertakes research and development of statistical techniques. The Field is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the system of national accounts and analytical studies.

◆ Analytical Studies Branch

This Branch is responsible for the integration, analysis and interpretation of data collected both within the agency and elsewhere, to describe, draw inferences and make deductions about the nature of Canadian society. As well, it is responsible for the development of new and improved techniques for the statistical analysis and interpretation of socio-economic data sets. It includes the following Divisions: Family and Community Support Systems, Social and Economic Studies, Business and Labour Market Analysis, Micro Economic Studies and Analysis and Current Economic Analysis.

Business and Labour Market Analysis Division:

Business and Labour Market substantive research and data development takes place in this area. These activities build on the unique data holdings available to Statistics Canada researchers, allowing work that can only be conducted within Statistics Canada to be carried out. This includes the use and linkage of worker and workplace data to create unique data sources for analytical purposes. The analytical topics include unemployment and the UI system; displaced workers and labour adjustment; wages, earnings, hours worked and earnings inequality; intergenerational income mobility; the school to work transition of post-secondary graduates; job creation in small and large firms; other related topics in firm dynamics and labour markets. The data development projects include the development of an establishment and workers survey to address issues such as human resource practices in firms and their impact on the use of UI, wage inequality, and firm performance, and technology and it's association with skill mix and training; and the changing demand for various types of labour.

Current Economic Analysis Division:

Provides Statistics Canada's assessment of current economic conditions. This is done through articles in the "Canadian Economic Observer" and the production of the composite leading indicator. The group also supports research and analysis in other areas of the organization.

Family and Community Support Systems Division:

Provides social-scientific analysis of data relating to trends and patterns of important variables pertaining to support programs and informal support networks for key population groups in Canadian communities as well as assistance to users of such data.

Micro Economic Studies and Analysis Division:

Focuses on the a broad range of topics in industrial economics making use of specially constructed longitudinal data bases that link data from several areas from within Statistics Canada. It has examined such issues as the importance of small firms in the job creation process, the changing nature of multinationals, and the success of new firms. The group is conducting several surveys that focus on the contribution of innovative and technological capabilities to growth, job creation, the use of advanced manufacturing technologies in Canada, the characteristics of the innovation process and the importance of financing to the growth of new firms.

Social and Economic Studies Division:

Its role is to conduct analysis as well as to stimulate, support and integrate analytic work throughout Statistics Canada. It is also responsible for facilitating the utilization of social and economic data files.

◆ System of National Accounts Branch

The System of National Accounts provides a conceptually integrated framework of statistics and analysis for studying the state and behaviour of the Canadian economy. The accounts are centred on the measurement of activities associated with production of goods and services, and the sales of goods and services in final markets. The Branch includes the following divisions: National Accounts and Environment, Industry Measures and Analysis, Balance of Payments, Input-Output and Public Institutions.

Balance of Payments Division:

Produces statistics on transactions and positions between Canada and other countries.

Industry Measures and Analysis Division:

Produces monthly, quarterly and annual measures of the Gross Domestic Product by industry for Canada, the provinces and territories.

Input-Output Division:

Develops annual input-output tables and annual labour and multifactor productivity accounts for the business sector industries in Canada, interprovincial input-output tables with trade flows on an occasional basis and structural economic models of the Canadian and Provincial economies.

National Accounts and Environment Division:

Responsible for: the conceptual and statistical integration of statistics within the System of National Accounts; research on the restructuring and extension of the Canadian System of National Accounts in conjunction with the re-examination of the accounts which is taking place at the international level; providing quarterly and annual estimates of the national and provincial output of goods and services by expenditure category and also by type of income generated in the production process; providing a picture of the key economic processes of production, income generation, sales of major markets, consumption, and capital formation; providing quarterly estimates of financial flows among fourteen broad sectors of the economy, by type of asset and liability; providing annual estimates of Canada's national balance sheet, broken down by sector and by type of asset and liability; and the development of a core set of statistics relevant for environment analyses and assessment of the national state of the environment in Canada.

Public Institutions Division:

Produces statistics on the financial activities and employment of the Canadian public sector, more specifically: government revenues, expenditures, assets, liabilities and debt statistics for the federal, provincial and local levels of government. Consolidated financial data for all these levels of government are published. Data are also produced on incomes, expenditures, assets and liabilities of government business enterprises; and sales values and volumes and government revenues from the sale of alcoholic beverages in Canada.

Social, Institutions and Labour Statistics Field

The Social, Institutions and Labour Statistics Field conducts a wide range of statistical programs dealing with virtually all aspects of the social, institutional and labour market characteristics and activities of Canadians. The Field is headed by an Assistant Chief Statistician with responsibility for the Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics, Census and Demographic Statistics, Institutions and Social Statistics, Labour and Household Surveys Branches and Integration and Development of Social Statistics.

◆ Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics

This is a federal-provincial initiative dedicated to national statistics and information on the justice system in Canada. Established in 1981, the Centre is responsible for producing information on the extent and nature of crime and the administration of criminal and civil justice in Canada.

◆ Census and Demographic Statistics Branch

This Branch conducts a program of censuses, surveys and related activities designed to provide comprehensive social and demographic statistics on the Canadian population. It includes the Census Operations Division, the Housing, Family and Social Statistics Division, the Demography Division and the 1991 Census Analysis.

1991 Census Analysis:

Objectives are to conduct studies which focus on major topics that are germane to the development of Canadian society over the next decade and beyond, to demonstrate the power and value of Census data when analytically coupled with other sources, to produce a series of studies, monographs and texts that stand the test of time, which may be integrated into a variety of academic programs and that will serve as a background in the formulation and development of public policy, and to stimulate further research using Census and other data sources. The monographs are under preparation and will be available in 1996 and 1997.

Census Operations Division:

Responsible for the planning, development and implementation of all production-related operations of the periodic decennial and quinquennial censuses of population, Canada's national inventory of key socio-economic phenomena.

Demography Division:

Responsible for the following four areas: (i) population estimates; (ii) population, household and family projections; (iii) census and survey related activities; and (iv) developmental and analytical research.

Housing, Family and Social Statistics Division:

Responsible for the housing, family and social variables produced by the Census, the General Social Survey, and conducting research and analysis of census data and other survey and administrative data. It publishes reports on the socio-economic characteristics of the population and subsets of the population.

◆ Institutions and Social Statistics Branch

This Branch is responsible for the collection, production analysis and dissemination of socio-economic statistics related to justice, health, education, culture and tourism, and public institutions, which are required for decision-making and research in both the public and private sectors. It consists of the Health Statistics Division, the Education, Culture and Tourism Division and the Post Censal Surveys Program.

Education, Culture and Tourism Division:

Responsible for the Education Statistics, Culture Statistics, and Travel and Tourism Programs.

Health Statistics Division:

Health Statistics Division provides statistical information and analysis about the nature and operation of health in Canada. Information on the health of Canadians is classified under (i) Health Care, (ii) Health Status and Vital Statistics, (iii) Occupational and Environmental Health, (v) National Population Health Survey. On going health research and analysis is conducted, producing generic products such as a quarterly review called "Health Reports" as well as an electronic data base of information called "Health Indicators".

Post Censal Surveys Program:

Undertakes surveys immediately following a Census, using information from the Census questionnaire to identify who should be sampled in the new survey. For each individual selected for a post-censal survey, selected Census information is added to the new survey information base.

◆ Integration and Development of Social Statistics Division

Responsible for promoting and co-ordinating the integration and distribution of a diverse range of sources of socio-economic information in a thematic, subject or issue-driven manner. The work includes improving the meta information and meta data systems, cultivating partnership opportunities (in terms of data integration and marketing) between subject matter divisions and central service divisions, addressing issues of disharmonies across the sources and seeking opportunities for producing and marketing both data and analytical products and services based on integrated sources rather than single sources.

◆ Labour and Household Surveys Branch

This Branch conducts statistical programs of household surveys such as the Labour Force Survey, the surveys of income and expenditure, and establishment-based surveys of employment. It includes the following divisions: Household Surveys, Special Surveys, Labour and Household Surveys Analysis, and Labour.

Household Surveys Division:

Responsible for a number of household surveys, including the monthly Labour Force Survey, the Survey of Consumer Finances, the Survey of Family Expenditure and the Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics.

Labour and Household Surveys Analysis Division:

Provides resources for the content, analysis and evaluation of income and labour market related data, including data on labour force status, occupation, labour compensation, pensions, industry, individual and family income and expenditure, for both Census and sample surveys.

Labour Division:

Responsible for producing a wide range of labour data from surveys and administrative records. In addition, information is produced on pension plans, the operation of the Unemployment Insurance Act and the Help-Wanted Index.

Special Surveys Division:

Responsible for the Special Surveys Program at Statistics Canada which provides a capacity to develop and carry out occasional or ad hoc household surveys.

Census Operations Division:

Census Operations

Description: Census records are maintained in three formats: hardcopy format which is kept for five years following each census, microfilm copies of the original questionnaire and machine-readable data stored in the census micro database. The latter are used in tabulations. Names and addresses of individuals are not contained in these files. Information extracted from the database, therefore, cannot directly be related to an individual. Individual data from microfilm copies of original questionnaires are available only to the respondent under the Privacy Act. Topics: Different types of variables can be obtained for various universes on the database. Population and Families — Demographic Characteristics: age, sex, marital status, common law; Ethno-cultural Characteristics: age at immigration, citizenship, ethnic origin (data on population can also be obtained at the family level); Language Variables: home language, mother tongue, official language, knowledge of official language; Schooling Variables: highest level of schooling, major field of study, school attendance; Labour Force: class of worker, industry, occupation, place of work; Family Size: family composition, place of work; Income: census family income, economic family income, income from each source and total income. Households — household maintainer, type of household, household size, length of occupancy, mortgage or rent, condominium, household income. Dwellings — condition of dwelling, structural type. These variables are available at various levels of geography across Canada. The information collected in the census varies somewhat from one census year to the next. Note: Individual information contained in the microfilmed records is available as far back as the 1906 Census (1891 and 1901 Census are in the custody of National Archives of Canada). It can be accessed only by the person named in the record or by a legal representative authorized to administer the estate of a dependant adult or minor or a deceased person. To access such information, the person concerned must complete an "Application and Authorization for a Search of Census" obtainable from the Census Pension Searches Unit, Statistics Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0T6. Aggregate data from the census micro database are available to the public. Requests for such information should be directed to the Statistical Reference Centre, Statistics Canada,

Ottawa, K1A 0T6. Program Record Number: STC COP 015

General Social Survey

Description: The General Social Survey is an annual household survey with two principal objectives: first, to monitor temporal changes in Canadian society and, second, to provide information on current policy issues. The first survey cycle collected data in 1985 on health and social support. Cycle 2 collected data in 1986 on daily activities, social mobility and languages. Cycle 3 collected data in 1988 on personal risk and victim services. Cycle 4 collected data in 1989 on work and education. Cycle 5 collected data in 1990 on the topics of family and friends. Cycle 6 in 1991, returned to previous core content — health. Cycle 7 collected data throughout 1992 on the time use patterns of Canadians. Cycle 8 collected data throughout 1993 on personal risk (the risk of accidents and criminal victimization) and alcohol and drug use. In 1994, Cycle 9 collected data on education, work and retirement. Cycle 10 collected data in 1995 on family composition, marital and fertility histories. Topics: Cycle 1: short- and long-term disability, smoking, alcohol use, sleep, physical activity, health problems, satisfaction and happiness, and potential support networks and social activities; Cycle 2: activities of Canadians over a 24-hour period (identifying each activity done, where, when and with whom), education, occupation and other demographic characteristics of parents and respondent, satisfaction and happiness, language knowledge, current language practices including use in home, at work and at school, change in language use in last five years; Cycle 3: accidents and crimes experienced during 1987, services used by victims of crime, attitudes to crime and factors which relate to personal risk, a set of socio-economic items similar to those collected by Cycles 1 and 2; Cycle 4: work and education, new technologies and human resources, emerging trends in education and work, knowledge and attitudes to science and technology; Cycle 5: concentrated on the respondent's family and friends and interactions with them, covering material history, common law unions, natural, adopted and step children, potential support networks, division of household work and support given and received; Cycle 6: core content repeats that of cycle 1 and included such content areas as occupational and emotional health measures, job benefits, and old age and disability income; Cycle 7: core content of time use repeats that of cycle 2 and provides data on the daily activities of Canadians. Question modules were also included on unpaid work activities, cultural activities and participation in sports; Cycle 8: the first repeat of the GSS core subject of the GSS 1988 — Cycle 3. The following subjects are common to both: perceptions of crime, police and courts; crime prevention precautions; accident and crime screening sections; and, accident and crime incident reports. As well, measures of fear of crime and childhood injuries were added. Focus content for Cycle 8 covers alcohol and drug use. Cycle 9: the first repeat of the GSS core subject on Education, Work and Retirement, originally covered in Cycle 4 (1989). There are differences between the two surveys. For example, Cycle 9 focuses more on quality of life after retirement and post-retirement activities than Cycle 4. In addition, the Cycle 9 questionnaire has two new sections: social origin and work interruptions. Cycle 10: the first repeat of the GSS core subject on the family, originally covered in Cycle 5 (1990). The following subjects are common to both: marital and fertility histories, fertility intentions. In addition, Cycle 10 had questions on family origins, home learning, joint custody arrangements, values and attitudes towards certain areas of family life and work interruptions. Focus content for Cycle 10 covers environmental tobacco smoke. Program Record Number: STC HFS 027

Homicide Statistics

Description: This bank contains information obtained from police forces on characteristics of homicide incidents, characteristics of the victims and suspects, the relationship between suspects and victims, etc. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are victims of homicides and individuals who are suspected of committing a homicide. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide information relating to the nature and extent of homicide in Canada; to describe the circumstances of homicide incidents, as well as the essential characteristics of people involved in them. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are to be retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC CCJ 135 TBS Registration: 001861 Bank Number: STC PPU 025

Census Operations Division:

1940 National Registration Records

Description: The records provide social and economic information on individuals as well as information on their skills. Class of Individuals: All persons 16 years of age or older in the period 1940-1946 with the exception of those people who were, at the time of registration, members of the armed forces or a religious order, or confined to an institution. Purpose: The information was originally obtained under the authority of the National Resources Mobilization Act, 1940, and the War Measures Act to permit the mobilization of all of the effective resources of the nation, both human and material, for the purpose of the defence and security of Canada. The National Registration Regulations pursuant to this legislation gave custody of the records to Statistics Canada, then known as the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Pension Searches to provide proof of age, place of residence, family relationships or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Searches are also conducted to provide third parties with information on individuals who were included in the 1940 National Registration. This information is typically requested for genealogical purposes and is made available only if proof is provided that the person about whom information is requested has been deceased for more than twenty years. A standard fee of $45.00 (+ $3.15 GST) is charged for each search undertaken but the fee will be refunded if the search is not successful. Requests should be sent to: Census Pension Searches Unit, Statistics Canada, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0T6. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC COP 020 TBS Registration: 001840 Bank Number: STC PPU 010

Census of Population — Evaluation Program

Description: This bank contains information from post-censal studies to measure coverage and data quality, and to evaluate the census enumeration of unoccupied dwellings and non-response in the housing universe.

Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in evaluation studies. Purpose: The studies are part of the evaluation program for the Census of Population. The objective of the overcoverage study is to measure gross overcoverage by estimating duplicate and erroneous census enumerations. The purpose of the Reverse Record Check is to estimate gross undercoverage, i.e. the number and characteristics of persons and households missed by the census. The purpose of the Vacancy Check is to estimate the number of occupied private dwellings which were misclassified as vacant and to adjust the census occupied dwelling counts accordingly.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 10-16 years, depending on the type of record. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 003015 Bank Number: STC PPU 008

Census of Population — Questionnaires

Description: This bank contains information obtained from the censuses of population taken since 1906. The records are identified by name and contain information on the social and economic characteristics of every person in the country. The records in this bank, which are organized on a geographical basis, are microfilmed copies of the original questionnaire dating back to 1906. To retrieve a record from this data bank, the precise address at the time of the census is required. Please note that only the individual named in the record can have access to information it contains, or the legal representative of a minor, incompetent or deceased person, but only to settle the affairs of the estate of that person. Class of Individuals: All individuals in Canada at the time of the census. Purpose: The Census of Population is a national inventory of Canada's key socio-economic phenomena, conducted at prescribed intervals by statutory requirement. The data collected, when compiled into statistics, are used for a wide range of purposes including the determination of economic and social policies, planning industrial development, and estimating needs for schools, roads and many other public services. Population figures are used to determine electoral district boundaries, and to calculate per capita grants to provinces and municipalities. Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Pension Searches to provide proof of age, or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Census questionnaires may be used to draw samples for post-censal surveys addressing issues of current social concern and studies that are part of the evaluation program for the Census of Population.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 001839 Bank Number: STC PPU 005

Census of Population — Testing Program

Description: This bank contains information collected from surveys used to test Census of Population questions. The records in this bank are organized geographically, by test module and year. To retrieve a record from this bank, the precise address at the time of the test, the name of the test module and the year surveyed are required. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in census-testing surveys.

Purpose: The surveys are part of the testing program for the Census of Population. The objectives of the test surveys are to determine whether new or revised questions proposed for the census can be easily understood and correctly answered, and to assess public reaction to these questions by testing them on a small-scale basis. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for 10 years. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 002096 Bank Number: STC PPU 007

Census Pension Searches Program

Description: This bank contains information relating to applicants to the Census Pension Searches Program and to members of the applicant's family. Search reference information such as name, date of birth, place of birth, place of residence is provided by the applicant in order to undertake a search of historical census and 1940 National Registration Records. Results of a successful search will be furnished in the form of a certified transcript of the information found in the original records. Class of Individuals: General public. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide the necessary personal information to undertake a search of historical census and 1940 National Registration Records in order to provide proof of age, or length of residence in Canada. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administrative records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 10 years. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 003117 Bank Number: STC PPU 012

General Social Survey

Description: The General Social Survey is an annual household survey. The first survey cycle collected data in 1985 on health and social support. Cycle 2 collected data in 1986 on daily activities, social mobility and languages. Cycle 3 collected data in 1988 on personal risk and victim services. Cycle 4 collected data in 1989 on work and education. Cycle 5 collected data in 1990 on the topic of family and friends. Cycle 6 collected data throughout 1991 and was the first cycle to return to previous core content — health. Cycle 7 collected data throughout 1992 on the time-use patterns of Canadians, repeating that of Cycle 2. Cycle 8 repeated Cycle 3 core and collected data on the personal risk of accidents and criminal victimizations; the focus content dealt with alcohol and drug use. Cycle 9 repeated Cycle 4 core and collected data on education, work and retirement. Cycle 10 partially repeated Cycle 5 and collected data on the family; the focus content dealt with environmental tobacco smoke. To locate a record, in addition to the cycle (or year) of the survey in which a respondent has participated, for cycles 1-4, the name of the respondent and the telephone number at the time of the survey are required. For subsequent cycles, the name and address of the respondent is required, as well as the cycle (or year) and telephone number at the time of the survey. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in the surveys. Purpose: The General Social Survey has two principal objectives: first, to monitor temporal changes in Canadian society and, second, to provide information on current policy issues. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HFS 027 TBS Registration: 003311 Bank Number: STC PPU 027

Creative and Performing Artists

Description: This bank contains information relating to characteristics of individual visual artists, writers, actors, directors, performing musicians, composers, conductors, dancers and choreographers. Information dates from the late 1970's to the early 1980's. Class of Individuals: Creative and performing artists in Canada. Purpose: The surveys were conducted to provide information on the background, career orientation and economic well-being of those attempting to work professionally as creative and performing artists in Canada. Retention and Disposal Standards: The information is retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 195 TBS Registration: 002098 Bank Number: STC PPU 102

Cultural Labour Force Survey

Description: This bank contains information relating to people residing in Canada working in selected occupations and industries within the cultural sector. The survey targeted individuals working as artists, administrators, professionals and technicians in 14 areas: visual arts, crafts, design, literary arts, performing arts, film and video, broadcasting, cultural education, sound recording, book publishing, periodical publishing, heritage institutions, public libraries and other libraries. The survey was conducted in 1993. Class of Individuals: Artists, administrators, professionals and technicians working in selected areas of the cultural sector in Canada. Purpose: The survey was conducted to provide information on the education, career activities, work patterns, financial status and demographics of artists and cultural workers. Human Resources Development Canada sponsored the survey to help them in the development of training and employment programs that better meet the needs of the cultural sector in Canada. Retention and Disposal Standards: Not yet decided. Related to PR#: STC ECT 195 TBS Registration: 003724 Bank Number: STC PPU 125

Elementary/Secondary Teacher Database

Description: This bank contains information relating to characteristics of individuals who form part of the educational staff employed full- or part-time in public elementary-secondary schools for all provinces. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals who form part of the educational staff employed full- or part-time in public elementary/secondary schools for all provinces. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information relating to full-time instructional and administrative school staff at the elementary/secondary school levels in all provinces according to gender, age, staff position, and employment status. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are to be retained for 55 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 165 TBS Registration: 001853 Bank Number: STC PPU 080

National Apprenticed Trades Survey

Description: The bank contains information collected in the 1994 National Apprenticed Trades Survey relating to respondents' experience and background before the apprenticeship; the apprenticeship, the content and the certification; and the activities and work of the respondents since they left the apprenticeship. Class of Individuals: Individuals who have completed or discontinued a registered apprenticeship program. Purpose: The purpose of the National Apprenticed Trades Survey is to examine the labour market experience of completers and discontinuers of a registered apprenticeship program two years after they left the program. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada has entered into data-sharing agreements under section 12 of the Statistics Act with Human Resources Development Canada, the Canadian Labour Force Development Board and with provincial ministries responsible for apprenticeship training. The information provided to these organizations will not contain personal identifiers and will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes. Respondents were advised of these agreements and were given the opportunity to object to the sharing of their data. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 180 TBS Registration: 003341 Bank Number: STC PPU 103

National Graduates Survey

Description: Surveys among graduates of postsecondary education programs have been carried out in 1978, 1984, 1987, 1988, 1991 and 1992. The surveys were carried out using a sample of 1976 graduates (for the 1978 survey), 1982 graduates (for the 1984 and 1987 surveys) 1986 graduates (for the 1988 and 1991 surveys), and 1990 graduates (for the 1992 survey). In each case, lists of graduates from universities, colleges and trade-vocational schools were obtained. The lists contain information relating to approximately 112,000 1976 graduates (Quebec graduates excluded), 220,000 1982 graduates, 250,000 1986 graduates and 265,000 1990 graduates. The information includes the name, address, telephone number, graduation qualification and major field of study for each graduate. Approximately 50,000 persons were selected to be interviewed for each survey, with 36,000 responding in 1984. The 1987 survey attempted to re-interview these 36,000, obtaining approximately 31,000 responses. Information collected included the extent of work experience before graduation and in the years after graduation, occupations and industries for jobs being held two years (five years in the 1987 survey) after graduation, details of further studies since graduation, and general classificatory information (e.g., age, marital status, sex, language). The 1991 survey attempted to re-interview approximately 40,500 1986 graduates who responded in 1988. They were asked about labour force status and detailed questions about their job, if any. In the 1992 study, approximately 51,000 persons were selected and response was obtained from approximately 36,000. Class of Individuals: This information relates to graduates from trade-vocational, college and university programs in calendar years 1976, 1982, 1986 and 1990. Purpose: To produce statistical information for monitoring graduates' transition from school to work and their success in finding work related to their fields of study. The information is provided to students and guidance counsellors to help choose appropriate fields of study; and to education planners to organize courses and programs of study. It is also used by analysts to develop projection models of supply and demand of manpower by occupation, seeking out imbalances in the labour market. Also included are evaluations of the extent to which graduates succeed in findings jobs related to their fields of study, and the extent to which retraining leads to career changes. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001858 Bank Number: STC PPU 100

National Longitudinal Survey of Children: Educational Questionnaires

Description: This Bank contains longitudinal data on the educational development of a series of age segmented cohorts of children collected in connection with the National Longitudinal Survey of Children. As such, it represents a subset of a much larger bank of longitudinal information on child development. The cohorts covered in the educational database are followed at two year intervals starting in November 1994. Each cohort will be followed until the children within the cohort reach adulthood. Data in the education file have been collected from the children's teachers and principals, and from standardized tests of achievement. Information in the database covers variables at the analytic levels of the child, the child's classroom, and the child's school. At the level of the child, variables representing the child's current grade, educational history, academic achievement, language of instruction, received instruction, attendance in special education classes, social skills, and behaviour are collected, along with information on parents' involvement in the child's education. At the level of the classroom information is available on class size and composition, classroom, material resources, instructional techniques, emphasis on academic achievement (academic press), and the teacher's perceptions of his/her teaching efficacy. At the level of the school, variables representing academic streaming, various characteristics of the student body, disciplinary problems, parental involvement with the school, available human and material resources, and the social climate of the school are available. In addition, information is available on the responding teacher's and principal's demographic and educational background. Class of Individuals: Age segmented cohorts (4-5 yrs, 6-7 yrs, 8-9 yrs, 10-11 yrs) of children enrolled in junior kindergarten to grade 6.

Purpose: To determine the factors which place or prevent children from becoming at risk for educational failure. The data will allow a wide variety of academic and policy oriented researchers to determine the impact that education has on a wide variety of developmental outcomes such as children's future health, social development, and educational attainment. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada has entered into a data-sharing agreement under section 12 of the Statistics Act with Human Resources Development Canada. The information provided to HRDC will not contain personal identifiers and will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes. Each person responding to questions will be given the right to refuse to share their data. Retention and Disposal Standards: Not yet decided. Related to PR#: STC ECT 180 TBS Registration: 003725 Bank Number: STC PPU 130

Postsecondary Student Survey

Description: The survey population for the 1975 and 1984 Postsecondary Student Survey was provided by the registrars of postsecondary institutions. It included the name, address, telephone number and registration characteristics of all students registered in a regular credit course during the fall term of 1974-75 and 1983-1984. A sample of 100,000 and 64,000 individuals was selected for the survey and a total of 60,000 and 45,000 responses were received. The survey sought information relating to the current education, other education and employment of the respondent, as well as background characteristics. It also collected information with respect to how the respondents financed their education. Class of Individuals: This information relates to all students registered for credit courses in Canadian universities and community colleges or equivalent institutions at the time of the survey. Purpose: The purpose of the Postsecondary Student Survey is to provide comprehensive data on those who attend postsecondary institutions in Canada, their fields and levels of study, and how they finance their postsecondary education. The data will provide a basis for the analysis of such issues as accessibility to postsecondary education in Canada.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001859 Bank Number: STC PPU 095

Postsecondary Teacher Database

Description: This bank contains information relating to the salary, qualifications, age, sex, immigration status, citizenship and discipline taught. There are no names in this data bank. Consequently, the number assigned to the individual by the institution is required for retrieval purposes, as well as the name of the institution and the year(s) the individual has taught at that institution. Class of Individuals: This bank is an annual census of all educational staff employed on a full-time basis in universities and other post-secondary institutions for all provinces. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information relating to the population and salaries of full-time teachers, broken down into three distinct sections: salaries, age and qualification characteristics, and social and other characteristics.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are to be retained for 55 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001854 Bank Number: STC PPU 085

School Leavers Survey

Description: The bank contains information collected in the 1991 School Leavers Survey, covering such topics as a socio-economic profile, respondent health, school performance, lifestyle, literacy, labour market activity. For dropouts, additional topics include reasons for leaving, intentions on returning, labour market activities before/after leaving and other types of training/education received since leaving. Class of Individuals: Individuals who at the time of the survey are 18 to 20 years old, who have completed secondary school, dropped out or are still in the educational system. Purpose: The purpose of the School Leavers Survey is to develop comparative profiles of three groups of secondary school attendees: those who have successfully completed school, those still in the education system and those who have "dropped out". The survey results will allow analysts to better understand the relationship between the leavers and their backgrounds and their subsequent labour market experiences. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada has entered into data-sharing agreements under section 12 of the Statistics Act with Employment and Immigration Canada and with provincial ministries of education, manpower and labour. The information provided to these departments will not contain personal identifiers and will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes. Respondents were advised of these agreements and were given the opportunity to object to the sharing of their data. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 165 TBS Registration: 003013 Bank Number: STC PPU 093

Survey of Doctoral Degree Recipients

Description: This survey collected information on selected socio-economic characteristics of doctoral degree recipients in Canada, their educational background and work experience, and their career expectations. The survey began in 1981 and was discontinued in 1986. Class of Individuals: Recipients of a doctoral degree from a Canadian university. Purpose: The purpose of this survey was to produce statistical information used by the granting councils to study trends in post-graduate education with respect to the utilization of their funds, the employment pattern for graduates under the programs, the socio-demographic characteristics of the graduates, and to effect a cost analysis of the programs. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada entered into data-sharing agreements under section 12 of the Statistics Act (R.S.C. 1985, ch. S19) with organizations identified on the questionnaire. Respondents were advised of these agreements and were given the opportunity to object to the sharing of their data.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 002436 Bank Number: STC PPU 097

University Student Data Bank

Description: The information in this bank is obtained from the administrative files of Canadian universities and colleges. It includes demographic data, and information relating to the individual's activities as a student, such as qualification sought, discipline or specialization, etc. There are no names in this data bank. Consequently, the number assigned to the individual by the institution is required for retrieval purposes as well as the name of the institution and the year(s) the individual has studied at that institution. Class of Individuals: This bank contains annual information on full-time and part-time students enrolled in a Canadian university. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information on winter session enrolment by province, institution, program and sex. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are to be retained for 55 years. Related to PR#: STC ECT 170 TBS Registration: 001855 Bank Number: STC PPU 090

Health Statistics Division:

Canada Health Survey

Description: This bank contains information obtained from the Canada Health Survey, including demographic data, health status, health consequence and risk factor information as well as anthropometric measurements and blood test analyses. Class of Individuals: This information relates to individuals in Canada who responded to the Canada Health Survey conducted during 1978 and 1979 by Health and Welfare Canada and Statistics Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce data relating to the health of Canadians, including alcohol and tobacco use, activity and fitness, seatbelt use, immune status, health problems and disability, emotional health, blood pressure, health services and medication. The data serve as input to the planning of health care, health promotion and disease prevention by governments and others. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records will be retained for 25 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 115 TBS Registration: 001852 Bank Number: STC PPU 075

Canadian Peritonitis Registry

Description: This bank contains demographic, diagnostic and treatment information on patients with end-stage renal failure, who are being treated by any form of peritoneal dialysis. Class of Individuals: Renal failure patients who receive peritoneal dialysis treatment and have developed peritonitis (January 1987 — September 1989). Purpose: To analyze data on peritonitis to determine risk factors and to provide results of the analysis to participating renal failure units. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. TBS Registration: 002669 Bank Number: STC PPU 061

Canadian Renal Failure Register

Description: The information in this bank is provided by reports from hospital dialysis and transplantation centres, about all new patients starting treatment for chronic renal failure. Basic information includes the name of patient, socio-demographic characteristics of the patient, and diagnostic and treatment information. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually from 1981 to 1986, relates to patients starting treatment for chronic renal failure. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to access the number of cases under treatment and to produce data to be used in evaluating the efficiency of the treatment modes. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001849 Bank Number: STC PPU 060

Dental Hygienists Database

Description: This bank contains socio-economic and demographic data on licensed/qualified dental hygienists. Variables include highest level of education, school years and place of graduation, type of employer, percentage of time spent in dental hygiene activities and numerically coded place of residence and employment. The files are not identified by a name but by a national registration number. The last survey was completed in 1983. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, (1975-1981), relates to licensed or qualified dental hygienists. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical data on the socio-economic and demographic characteristics of dental hygienists qualified to practise and reside in Canada, and to provide information to manpower planning groups and other users as a source of data for analysis and special studies. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 25 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 090 TBS Registration: 001846 Bank Number: STC PPU 045

Hospital Morbidity

Description: This data bank contains information obtained from general and allied special hospitals in Canada on patients that have separated (discharges and deaths). The files are identified by a number assigned by the hospital and contain demographic and medical information on the patient such as age, sex, diagnosis, surgical operations, length of stay, condition of discharge, residence of the patient, etc. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to patients that have been separated from general and allied special hospitals in Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide national hospital morbidity statistics, including number of patients separated from general and allied special hospitals, average length of stay, and causes of hospitalization. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 080 TBS Registration: 001848 Bank Number: STC PPU 055

Integrated Vital Statistics Database

Description: This bank has integrated information obtained from the universal systems of registration of births, marriages, deaths and stillbirths. These are originally recorded and accumulated by registrars of vital statistics in each province and territory. The information on births relates to place of birth, particulars on parents (name, birthdate, marital status of mother) and particulars of the child (surname and name). The information on stillbirths relates to particulars of the child, (place of birth, sex, weight) and particulars of parents (name, birthdate, ethnic group). The marriage component of the database contains information on the bride and bridegroom (name, marital status, birthdate), particulars of parents (name, birthdate, birthplace) and on the date and place of marriage. Information on deaths relates to name of deceased; date, place and cause of death. The information has been obtained through formal arrangements with the provinces and is to be used for statistical purposes only. Statistics Canada, therefore, is unable to respond to requests for information contained in this bank, pursuant to section 19(1)(c) of the Privacy Act. Any individual wishing to obtain information relating to the registration of births, marriages or deaths should contact the appropriate provincial registrar. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals who were born in Canada or the United States and are Canadian residents; married or died in Canada; or a Canadian resident who died in the United States or in another country. Purpose: The purpose of the bank is to provide input into the production of estimates of births, marriages and deaths for Canada and the provinces. These data are also used in special studies relating to, for example, mortality, fertility and life expectancy. Vital statistics are the prime components used in intercensal population estimates. Consistent Uses: The Mortality Database, which forms part of the Integrated Vital Statistics Database, is used as one of the input files in long-term medical follow-up studies. It provides information on date, place and cause of death for individuals in a particular study group (see Personal Information Bank STC PPU 076). Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001844 Bank Number: STC PPU 035

Long-Term Medical Follow-Up Study Files

Description: The Long-Term Medical Study Files are comprised of information from four sources: input study files which are often from groups outside Statistics Canada; the Canadian Cancer Data Base which is created from STC PPU 065; and the Canadian Mortality Data Base which is created from the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC PPU 035, and the Canadian Birth Data Base which is created from the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC PPU 035 plus provincial files. The input files contain records of individuals which have been supplied by employers, unions, health surveys or other research groups. These input files are then matched to the Canadian Cancer Data Base to determine the cause of cancer, to the Canadian Mortality Data Base to provide information on date, cause and place of death, or to the Canadian Birth Data Base to provide birth and parental details. In addition, the outcome files may be matched (e.g. infant birth and death records). The input study files may contain from several hundred to many hundreds of thousands of records depending on the size of the study group. Individual identifying information includes names, birthdate, sex birthplace and place of residence. The name of the individual's parents or spouse may also be included where this information is required to confirm the validity of a linkage. The input study file and the file containing, say, the death records to which the study file records were linked are kept separately. An identification number is present on both files which can bring corresponding records together if necessary. The files are passworded and stored in the Statistics Canada tape library. Class of Individuals: This database contains records of individuals who form part of population groups identified by employers, unions, health surveys, or other research organizations, as well as all individuals in the national files. Purpose: Health statistics, in general, are used to describe the state of health of the Canadian people and the occurrence of illnesses. In particular, these files are primarily used to provide researchers with data they need to compare the rates and causes of death and/or cancer in groups exposed to different levels or types of chemicals, diet, medical treatment, x-rays, disease, etc. This in turn gives information needed by policy makers to set appropriate levels of exposure to toxic agents in occupational, environmental and medical settings. Risk factor concerns relating to child and maternal health, including socio-economic birth and mortality differentials are being investigated. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are generally retained for a minimum of five years. Related to PR#:

Medicare Records

Description: This bank contains medical and demographic information from the Medical Care Insurance files of the province of Manitoba commencing with the period 1984/85. This information has been obtained through formal arrangements with the province and is to be used for statistical purposes only. Statistics Canada is unable to respond to requests for information contained in this bank pursuant to section 19(1)(c) of the Privacy Act. Class of Individuals: Persons for whom a claim has been submitted to the Medical Care Insurance plan of the province of Manitoba. Purpose: To create and examine profiles of diseases in Canada from an epidemiologic perspective. Consistent Uses: To achieve the purpose it involved linkage internal to the Hospital Morbidity files (STC PPU 055) and the Mortality files (STC PPU 035). Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLT 080 — Health Care TBS Registration: 002673 Bank Number: STC PPU 056

National Cancer Incidence Reporting System

Description: The information in this bank is provided by the 10 provincial cancer registries and health authorities responsible for cancer registration in the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The information relates to each newly diagnosed case of primary cancer and includes the name of the person with cancer, socio-demographic characteristics of the person, and diagnostic information. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals diagnosed as having primary cancer as reported to provincial cancer registries and territorial health authorities. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce data on the incidence of new primary sites of cancer reported to provincial and territorial cancer registries by site of tumour, age, sex and method of diagnosis. These data are to provide a large base of information for the study of variations in cancer incidence by personal characteristics and geographic region and to allow the monitoring of trends in cancer incidence over time. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001850 Bank Number: STC PPU 065

National Population Health Survey

Description: This bank currently contains data obtained during testing for the National Population Health Survey and from a longitudinal panel that began early in 1994 and will continue every two years. The information includes demographic data and indicators of health status, health utilization and factors that influence health. Class of Individuals: The information relates to individuals in Canada who responded to the National Population Health Survey conducted by Statistics Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide information to monitor the health status of Canadians and to provide information to better understand factors that influence health. The data will be used by those in government and others interested in program planning and analysis in the areas of health care, health promotion and disease prevention. Consistent Uses: Respondents are asked for permission to link information from provincial health files with the data collected in the survey, and when permission is granted, they are asked to provide their health number. Permission was sought to share information collected in the survey with the provinces and National Health and Welfare Canada, in accordance with the provisions of section 12 of the Statistics Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records will be retained indefinitely. TBS Registration: 003305 Bank Number: STC PPU 077

Registered Nurses Database

Description: This bank contains socio-economic and demographic data obtained from provincial nurses' associations on registered nurses licensed to practise in Canada. The information includes basic and post-basic nursing education, year and location of graduation, activity status, type of employer, position and numerically coded location of residence and employment. The files are identified by a provincial registration number. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to registered nurses licensed to practise in Canada. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce data on nursing manpower. These data, along with data relating to other health occupations, provide a source of national health manpower data used by planning groups and other users for analysis and special studies. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 25 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 090 TBS Registration: 001847 Bank Number: STC PPU 050

Tuberculosis Database

Description: This database, provided by provincial and territorial offices of tuberculosis control, contains information on people with tuberculosis. The information includes socio-demographic variables such as age, sex, aboriginal status and birthplace, and medical data such as type of tuberculosis, bacillary status and previous vaccination. In 1990 new variables were added including method of detecting the cases, antibiotic resistance, chest x-ray results and, for deceased persons, cause of death. Class of Individuals: Since 1966 the information relates to people with new active and reactivated tuberculosis. Prior to 1966 (since 1937) the information related to people admitted to tuberculosis sanatoria. Purpose: This database contains information used for purposes of tuberculosis surveillance and control. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001851 Bank Number: STC PPU 070

Post Censal Surveys Program:

Aboriginal Peoples Database

Description: The database contains information on Aboriginal peoples resulting from the 1991 Post-Censal

Survey of Aboriginal Peoples, covering such topics as schooling, work, culture, language, housing, health, disability, income, mobility, etc. Although the name and address of the selected respondent were collected at the time of the survey, they were not data-captured and, therefore, do not appear on the automated database.

Class of Individuals: Persons who indicated that they identify with an Aboriginal group (North American Indian, Métis or Inuit) and/or reported being registered under the Indian Act of Canada. It includes individuals living on and off Indian reserves and settlements. Purpose: The objective of the Post-Censal Survey of Aboriginal Peoples is to provide a social and economic profile of Aboriginal peoples, including such information as housing conditions, lifestyle and social issues, health, employment history, schooling, mobility, disability, etc. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC PCS 122 TBS Registration: 003014 Bank Number: STC PPU 116

Database on Persons With Disabilities

Description: This database contains information on persons with disabilities in Canada, including the number of persons with disabilities, the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers experienced by persons with disabilities in such areas as employment, transportation, education, community support services and housing. The information also addresses the need for, as well as the use and availability of, technical aids and services. Although the name and address of the selected respondent were collected at the time of the survey, they were not data-captured and, therefore, do not appear on the automated database. Class of Individuals: Persons with disabilities living in households and institutions in Canada, at the time of the 1986 and 1991 Census. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to identify those Canadians who, for health-related reasons, are limited in the kind or amount of activity they can perform on a day-to-day basis, and the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers that they encounter in such areas as housing, employment, transportation, education and community support services. This information is essential, particularly to governments and private organizations, to the process of developing programs and policies to eliminate these barriers. Consistent Uses: With respect to the Canada Health and Disability Survey, five-sixths of the Labour Force Survey (LFS) sample was used to identify a sample of persons with disabilities who were subsequently interviewed. The output of the survey was linked back to the LFS to obtain labour force activity data which were not included in the questionnaire. With respect to the Health and Activity Limitation Survey, the 1986 and 1991 Censuses of Population were used to identify a sample of persons with disabilities who were subsequently interviewed. The output of this survey was linked back to the 1986 and 1991 Census of Population files to obtain demographic data which were not included in the survey questionnaire. This would ease the burden on respondents since they had already provided these data for the Census. Retention and Disposal

Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLT 110 TBS Registration: 001862 Bank Number: STC PPU 115

Household Surveys Division:

Labour Force Survey

Description: The Labour Force Survey is a monthly survey conducted on a sample basis of approximately 59,000 households. The records are identified by name and carry information on the family composition, activities and characteristics of individuals in the labour force survey sample. Data content includes the demographic profile of the respondent, employment profile, such as name of employer, hours of work, and tenure. For those without work, information is available on work history, job search activities, and type of work sought. Data are also available on the educational pursuits of the respondent. The data are maintained in such a way as to permit the production of statistics at the level of selected Census Metropolitan Areas (CMA), economic regions and the provinces, and for selected non-CMA urban areas based on quarterly estimates. It is for this reason that information relating to an individual cannot be retrieved based on name alone. The requester must provide the month(s) and year surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. There are also a number of special surveys that are conducted as supplements to the Labour Force Survey covering a variety of topics including work patterns, leisure time activities, absence from work, travel to work, income, etc. To retrieve a record, the requester must provide the subject of the special survey, the year the survey was conducted, and the precise address at the time of the survey. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are employed, unemployed or not in the labour force. Purpose: The main purpose of the bank is to produce employment and unemployment figures. The data also enable a wide variety of additional information to be derived on the characteristics of the Canadian labour force and on the population over age 15 in general.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for 50 years. Related to PR#: STC HLD 035 TBS Registration: 001841 Bank Number: STC PPU 015

Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics (SLID)

Description: The Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics is a longitudinal panel study that will provide data on the demographic, income, family and labour market characteristics of Canadians. The first annual labour component of the survey was conducted in January 1993 and the first income survey was conducted in April 1993. Respondents will subsequently be contacted twice each year, for a period of five years. New panels are to be introduced into the study every three years. Class of Individuals: Individuals aged 15 and over. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide data about the way people's lives are affected by changes in jobs, in income, in place of residence, and other changes that influence the social and economic well-being of individuals and families. SLID will support research aimed at advancing an understanding of labour market behaviour and economic well-being, and ultimately support policy development. Consistent Uses: As a longitudinal survey, SLID will follow respondents over a 6-year period. Records for the same respondent, therefore, will be linked together over that period in order to identify changes experienced. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records will be retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLD 038 TBS Registration: 003301 Bank Number: STC PPU 017

Labour Division:

Workplace and Employee Survey

Description: To provide an integrated view of the activities of employers and their employees. The survey collects information from 1000 employers and 6000 employees covering a wide range of workplace issues. The employer questionnaire covers workforce characteristics, hiring and separation, compensation practices, human resource practices, training, technology use, business strategy, innovation and use of government programs. The employee questionnaire covers job activities, promotions, hours, earnings, training, use of computers and other technologies, education and family characteristics. The individuals' names and related contact information are stored on the data base to permit contact for proposed future workplace and employee surveys. Class of Individuals: Paid workers who receive a T4 from their current employer. Purpose: The survey supports research and policy development with respect to labour adjustment programs, workplace practices, social programs and education. Retention and Disposal Standards: To be determined TBS Registration: 003899 Bank Number: STC PPU 140

Special Surveys Division:

National Longitudinal Survey of Children

Description: The National Longitudinal Survey of Children will collect data on a sample of approximately 25,000 children across Canada every two years, starting in November/December 1994 and February/March 1995. Up to four children in each household chosen to take part in the survey will be selected to participate in the longitudinal portion of the survey, expected to cover a 20-year period. Interviews will be conducted with the most knowledgeable person in the household about these children, usually their mother. Children who are 10 and 11 years of age will be asked to complete a questionnaire themselves. Information will also be collected from each child's teacher and principal, with the consent of the parent. Class of Individuals: Children aged 0-11 Purpose: The primary objectives of the survey are to determine the prevalence of various biological, social and economic characteristics and risk factors in Canadian children and youth; to monitor the impact of such factors, life events and protective factors on these children's development; and to provide this information to policy and program officers for use in developing effective policies and strategies to help children to live healthy, active and rewarding lives. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada has entered into a data-sharing agreement under section 12 of the Statistics Act with Human Resources Development Canada. The information provided to HRDC will not contain personal identifiers and will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes. Each person responding to questions will be given the right to refuse to share their information. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 003635 Bank Number: STC PPU 014

Self-Sufficiency Project

Description: This bank contains information on the selected recipients' marital status, labour market participation, education and training, child care requirements, and family and parenting concerns. Four interviews are planned, one at program intake, and three follow-up interviews at 18 months, 36 months and 54 months after program intake. Class of Individuals: Social Assistance Recipients in New Brunswick and British Columbia. Purpose: The Self-Sufficiency Project is a research demonstration designed to test the effectiveness of an earnings supplement to Social Assistance recipients who take jobs and agree to leave public assistance. Statistics Canada is responsible to develop and implement a data collection strategy and build the analysis files for the study. Consistent Uses: Respondents will be asked to sign a consent form to allow Statistics Canada to link a variety of data sources including administrative files held by Revenue Canada, Taxation and Unemployment Insurance and the provincial income assistance ministries. Respondents will be asked for authorization to share this information with the research firm administering the project and affiliated researchers. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLD 040 TBS Registration: 003214 Bank Number: STC PPU 026

Special Surveys

Description: This bank contains social and demographic data obtained from special ad hoc surveys, conducted by the Special Surveys Division, which do not form part of the regular survey-taking activity of the Agency. They cover a variety of socio-economic topics, including health, housing, labour market, education and literacy, as well as demographic data. The information may include name, social insurance number, addresses or telephone number. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in the special surveys. Purpose: The data are used by sponsoring agencies or Statistics Canada to either evaluate or benchmark existing socio-economic programs, or in the development of such programs. The data collected may be one-time ad hoc measures, or a series of point-in-time measures, including longitudinal. Retention and Disposal Standards: The paper records are retained for five years. The machine-readable records are retained indefinitely. Related to PR#: STC HLD 040 TBS Registration: 002189 Bank Number: STC PPU 016

Classes of Personal Information

Administrative Files Obtained from Federal Government Departments for Statistical Purposes

The Statistics Act, under which Statistics Canada operates, gives to the Agency the authority to access records maintained in any federal department or municipal office, corporation, business or organization where the information sought relates to the mandate of this Agency. Accordingly, Statistics Canada has entered into a number of arrangements with other federal government departments to access administrative files of those departments for the purpose of extracting data for statistical purposes. This has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from the filing of regular questionnaires.

Since the use made by Statistics Canada of this information is secondary to the original purpose for which it was gathered, requests for access to personal information from these files should be addressed to the department responsible for the original collection of the data. Any requests received by Statistics Canada, either for a copy of an individual record or for corrections to a record, will be referred to the originating department for response.

Business Statistics

The business database contains information which relates to the major industrial and services sectors of the economy. The information is obtained from establishments within companies through surveys, and from administrative records. It is used to describe the whole range of business activity in Canada, the goods and services produced, the cost structure of each industry and the location of industrial activity. It measures the kind and quality of goods produced, the costs of materials, labour and capital employed and the prices of both material and final products. The information is also a vital input to the System of National Accounts. As some of the businesses surveyed are unincorporated, there is personal information in this database relating to owners of unincorporated businesses who can be identified by a social insurance number. The business data bank may contain personal information in respect of unincorporated businesses in the forestry, mining, energy and resource and manufacturing sectors; in retail and wholesale trade; in rail, road and water transportation industries; in services, communications and tourism industries; relating to general and trade contractors; and to importers and exporters.

Consumer Finances Survey

This is an annual survey of households, conducted on a sample basis, designed to measure the distribution of income and to provide other yardsticks of the economic well-being of Canadian families and individuals. The records carry information on wages and salaries and other income, selected family and personal characteristics. To retrieve a record from this class of personal information, the requester must provide the year he/she was surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. For those years when the survey is carried out in conjunction with the Labour Force Survey, it may be possible to locate records relating to an individual. However, for those years when it is conducted independent of the Labour Force Survey, after the processing cycle is complete and the questionnaires are destroyed (usually after one year), it would be necessary to provide certain personal characteristics such as age and sex to permit the identification of an individual in a household group.

Family Expenditures Survey

Collects information, obtained by a sample survey of households, on expenditures by families and single persons living in private households, covering their complete budgets. A primary use of the information is for reviewing and updating the weights for the Consumer Price Index. As with the other classes of personal information maintained by the agency, this information is not intended to be retrieved by name or other personal identifier.

Household Surveys

The Household Surveys Division is responsible for a number of household surveys including surveys on family expenditures, household facilities and equipment, and incomes of Canadian families and individuals. In some cases, the name of an individual respondent is collected. In other cases, the respondent may be a household unit. In all cases, however, the information is maintained geographically and is not intended to be retrieved by name or other personal identifier.

Routine Correspondence and Other Subject Files

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of Statistics Canada, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in specific information banks described in this entry. Such information includes inquiries, complaints and general correspondence which are stored as part of the general subject files and are not retrievable by any personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable by means of specific information such as subject and/or date of communication. The retention periods associated with this information are consistent with those associated with the general subject files wherein they are stored.

Manuals

The manuals used by Statistics Canada in carrying out its policies, programs and activities are instruction manuals developed to cover all phases of data acquisition, production and publication. These manuals can be accessed by identifying the subject.

In addition, working manuals produced by Statistics Canada are listed in the Current Publications Index and are available for purchase through Publications Sales, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0T6, or through any of the Statistics Canada regional reference centres listed under "Reading Room". These manuals are also available for public reference. They are:

Status of Women Canada

Chapter 100

General Information

Background

In 1971, the federal government created the Office of the Coordinator, Status of Women within the Privy Council Office. In 1976, the Office of the Coordinator, Status of Women was removed from the Privy Council Office. It was named a department under Order-in-Council P.C. 1976-779 and became known as Status of Women Canada.

Responsibilities

Status of Women Canada ensures that the federal government carries out its commitment to women's equality in all spheres of Canadian life.

Legislation

- Order in Council, P.C. 1976-779

Organization

♦ Executive Secretariat

This Directorate is mainly responsible for planning, coordination services and support to the Co-ordinator and the Secretary of State. Organizational support, including library services and records management is also provided through the Executive Secretariat.

♦ External Relations and Communications Directorate

This Directorate collaborates with provincial and territorial governments, women's organizations, international organizations, academics and other groups and individuals at all levels interested in women's issues in Canada and abroad. It is aimed at informing the Secretary of State of the current environment and assisting these groups and individuals in their contacts with the federal government. Status of Women Canada also represents Canada at the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development's Working Party on the Role of Women in the Economy, relevant Commonwealth Meetings as well as the Inter-American Commission of Women (CIM). Within its communications function Status of Women Canada informs women's organizations and the general public of federal priorities and programs relating to the status of women. It undertakes the preparation of speeches, correspondence, and conducts media relations. It also carries out media and correspondence analysis, coordinates the translation process, responds to queries from the public, produces and distributes publications and provides advice and promotional materials for special events. It is developing a consultations function to provide internal planning and advice to Status of Women Canada.

♦ Information Management Directorate

This Directorate provides services in the areas of information holdings.

♦ Policy Analysis and Development Directorate

This Directorate performs the systematic analysis of existing or proposed government programs, initiatives, policies and legislation with regard to their impact on women. This Directorate is also responsible for developing policies and projects concerning the status of women. Policy analysis and development are carried out at the federal level, as well as in co-operation with provincial and territorial governments.

♦ Research Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for implementing and administering the Independent Policy Research Fund, which contracts out longer-term, forward-thinking policy research as well as shorter-term urgent issues research on women's equality issues. This Directorate also provides research-related input into policy analysis and development at SWC, provides information to women's groups, researchers and other constituents on ongoing and recent research, and co-operates with government departments and domestic and international research organizations on policy research projects.

♦ Resource Management Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for ensuring statutory accountability and delivering services to the organization in the areas of financial and human resources management, material management and contract administration. It also provides services in the area of information technology, security and telecommunications.

♦ Women's Program and Regional Operations Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for providing financial and technical assistance to voluntary organizations working towards equality for women. Its objectives are: to increase public understanding in order to encourage action on women's equality issues; to promote the organizational development of women's groups in order to increase their effectiveness in working towards equality for women; and to promote action by institutions to incorporate women's equality issues in their decision-making structures, policies and programs.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting its activities, Status of Women Canada accumulates categories of personal information which are stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. Such personal information may have been accumulated in the process of handling such complaints and enquiries as are made to the Secretary of State and the Department. Due to the special nature of the Department's activities, these personal complaints and enquiries are usually forwarded to the appropriate department for individual assistance. The Department handles policy and program issues, but not personal program delivery matters. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the issue of complaint, and the date and name of complainant. All issues dealing with federal government legislation, policies and programs as they impact on women are included. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Organization

Airports Group

The Airports Group (AG) is headed by an Assistant Deputy Minister who is responsible for ensuring the provision of civil airport facilities and services in Canada consistent with the National Airports Policy. The Group has an ongoing involvement of 150 airports across the country through ownership, operation, or lease with or without subsidy. The Assistant Deputy Minister is assisted by four Directors General. Also reporting to the Assistant Deputy Minister are the Airport General Managers of Toronto — Lester B. Pearson International Airport, Halifax International Airport, Ottawa-Macdonald-Cartier Airport and the Winnipeg International Airport.

♦ Airport Transfers

Responsible for strategic planning and for negotiating the transfer of airports to Canadian Airport Authorities.

♦ Business Management

Responsible for property management and the administration of commercial agreements and contracts and for promoting revenue and commercial opportunities both nationally and internationally. In addition, it covers all of the financial and administrative functions required centrally for the Group.

♦ Human Resources and Executive Services

Responsible for internal communications, human resource planning and Human Resource Management programs.

♦ National Airports Policy Implementation

Responsible for overseeing the implementation of the National Airports Policy on a national level. The National Airports Policy establishes the first clear framework for the federal government's role in airports and will shift that role from owner and operator to landlord and regulator. The policy affects 150 airports. The federal government will retain ownership of the 26 airports forming the National Airports Authorities. Ownership of Regional/Local and other small airports will be transferred to local interests within 5 years.

Communications Group

The Communications Group is responsible for supporting management in providing effective two-way communications between Transport Canada and all its stakeholders to ensure the public is well informed of the department's activities and to ensure the department takes into consideration the concerns and views of the public in all its activities. The Director General, Communications, reports directly to the Deputy Minister in Ottawa. Five regional directors of communications report to regional departmental directors general.

Corporate Services

The Assistant Deputy Minister (ADM), Corporate Services is responsible for ensuring the provision of effective support to the Department in the areas of Finance; Human Resources; Informatics and Administration; Executive Services and Audit and Advisory.

♦ Audit and Advisory Services

Fosters improvements in the efficiency and effectiveness of all departmental operations and administration and the accountability of management by providing independent internal audit and advisory services.

♦ Executive Services

This organization is headed by a Director General and is part of the Corporate Services group. The Executive Services prepares responses to correspondence received by the Minister; prepares parliamentary returns and assists the Minister in meeting his responsibilities in respect to Parliament, caucus, parliamentary committees, the transportation industry and the general public. Executive Services manages the departmental legislative time-table and regulatory amendments and manages the consolidation of the department's statutory instruments. It also maintains a central consolidated registry of departmental statutes and regulations. The Director General is the departmental coordinator for privacy, access to information and human rights matters. Executive Services also coordinates the federal government's information collection and public opinion survey program. It is also responsible for all administrative matters affecting Executive Services and the office of the Minister.

♦ Informatics and Administrative Services Directorate

This Directorate is headed by a Director General who reports to the Assistant Deputy Minister of the Corporate Services Group. It is responsible for ensuring the provision of advice, services, support and functional direction in the areas of material, contracting, facility and real property management, information management and information technology in the National Capital Region and five regional offices.

Harbours and Ports Directorate

This Directorate administers public harbours and port facilities serving commercial water transportation interests, and provides functional direction to the regions in these areas. It also serves as a focal point for harbour commissions' interests with the federal government.

Human Resources Directorate

The development and implementation of all departmental policies and programs related to Human Resources are planned and directed by the Director General, Human Resources, whose responsibility is to ensure the effective recruitment, compensation, utilization, training/retraining and retention of human resources in the Department.

♦ Administrative Services Branch

This Branch is responsible for providing services with regards to Financial Planning and Monitoring, Administration, Translation Services, Coordination of Access to Information and Privacy Requests related to Human Resources and the TC Scholarships Program.

◆ Classification and Compensation Policy

◆ Executive Group Resourcing Division

This Branch is responsible for providing all services related to Human Resources to the Deputy Minister and his delegates in support of the management of the EX population in the Department. This Branch is also responsible for the management, on a national basis, of special programs such as Interchange Canada, Diversity in Leadership Program, National Security Studies Course and the Career Assignment Program (CAP).

◆ Human Resources Operations

This Branch is responsible for providing advice and services to all departmental employees and managers at Headquarters. These services include Classification, Staffing, Group HR Planning, Staff Relations (1st and 2nd levels), Counselling, Work Force Adjustment, Compensation and Benefits, Occupational Health and Safety (OSH), Conflict of Interest (1st level), Training and Counselling, Recognition and Awards, Compensation and Performance Review and Assessment of Potential.

◆ Human Resources Planning, Staffing and Training Policy

This Branch is responsible for the development of policies and strategies in the areas of Official Languages, Employment Equity, Staffing, Workforce Adjustment, Training and Learning and HR Planning. It is also responsible for data analysis, employee demographics and Departmental HR planning strategies. It also provides advice and assistance to managers and represents the Department in dealings with central agencies.

This Branch is also responsible for the administration and management of Human Resources Systems for the Department, mainly the Transport Integrated Personnel Systems (TIPS).

◆ Staff Relations, Harassment and OSH Policy

This Branch is responsible for the development of policies and strategies in the areas of Staff Relations, Harassment and Occupational Safety and Health (OSH). It also assists departmental management in the development and maintenance of harmonious relationships between the Department and the eight unions representing employees of Transport Canada.

The mandate of this Branch includes national union/management consultations, final level grievance responses, advice on conflict of interest cases, exclusions, the coordination of harassment complaint investigations and recommendations on harassment complaint resolution, the coordination of safety and security designations of collective bargaining. This Branch represents the interest of management in all aspects of staff relations, OSH and harassment, policy and program development.

Policy

The Assistant Deputy Minister, Policy (ADMP), is responsible for the formulation, development and maintenance of the Department of Transport's long-range transportation objectives, strategies and policies. The ADM provides advice to the Deputy Minister on policies, programs and objectives which have implications for one or more modes of transport; program evaluation; on the management of transportation subsidy policy programs and on shared initiatives between private industry and various levels of government. The ADM advises the Minister on policy issues regarding Transport Crown Corporations, accessible transportation and on the maintenance of the Department's external relations (federal, provincial, international and industry). The ADM is supported by six directorates.

◆ Air Policy and Programs Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the development and implementation of the government's policy initiatives for domestic, transborder and international air transportation services, and for Canadian representation at the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organization. In particular, it is responsible for the preparation of mandate papers for the negotiation of bilateral air agreements. It must also provide ongoing policy and program advice to the Minister of Transport on measures to ensure an appropriate framework that will permit air carriers to provide adequate and efficient air transportation services which will respond to the needs of the general public for air travel within Canada and internationally.

◆ Analysis Directorate

The Directorate provides the Department with statistics, forecasts, economic analysis and economic research needed for informed policy and planning decisions. It undertakes the acquisition of data and maintenance of data bases for all modes of transport. Forecasts of traffic demand and growth are provided for use in policy development, planning and resource allocation decisions. The directorate carries out economic analysis to assess and quantify the economic impact of major transportation policy initiatives. In addition, it conducts economic research into current and anticipated future transportation issues.

◆ Corporate Relations Directorate

The Directorate directs departmental responses to complex multi-modal transportation issues that involve several departmental groups. It coordinates the Department's federal, provincial and international relations and international marketing and acts as the focal point for the liaison with the Regional Directors General. It also develops policies and programs concerned with transportation facilities for persons with disabilities. The Directorate is responsible for corporate issues management and the corporate planning process, including the provision of policy advice and recommendations to the Minister.

♦ Marine Policy and Programs Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the development of policies, plans and programs for all aspects of water transportation assistance and associated services, over inland and coastal waters, as required by the federal government. It develops international and domestic shipping policies, including international bulk and liner shipping policies. The activity includes the development of Canadian positions for multilateral negotiations conducted within intergovernmental organizations (e.g. OECD, UNCTAD, IMO, GATT) and the development of domestic shipping policies, including such matters as coastal trade, economic regulatory policy and shipping engaged in offshore exploration and development. Ports and pilotage policies are also developed and applied. The provision of a corporate overview of policies developed elsewhere in the government and their impact upon shipping, ports and the marine environment, including operating policies is also included in this activity. Further, this activity coordinates, analyses and advises on matters concerning major Crown Corporations such as Marine Atlantic Inc., Canada Ports Corporation and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. The Directorate is also responsible for the development of the National Marine Policy and the associated legislative framework.

♦ Surface Policy and Programs Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the development, formulation and implementation of the surface transportation policies and programs, and for the management of all operational, developmental and economic regulatory activities of the Department in support of surface transportation. This includes all railway freight policies and programs (including grain); all surface passenger transportation policies and programs, including the development and administration of rail passenger legislation and regulations. It also includes federal government policy applicable to trucking and motor coach transportation undertakings and all highway policies and programs associated with the federal government, including negotiation and implementation of federal highway capital expenditures programs as well as contribution agreements with the provinces. .

Transport Canada, Safety and Security

The Assistant Deputy Minister, Safety and Security, directs the development of regulations and national standards as well as the implementation of monitoring, testing, inspection, research and development and subsidy programs to contribute to safety and security in the aviation, marine, rail and road modes. He also monitors the delivery of aircraft services to government and other transportation bodies. The Assistant Deputy Minister, Safety and Security, is assisted by 10 directors general.

♦ Aircraft Maintenance and Manufacturing

Responsible for inspecting and approving all registered aircraft built or operated in Canada to national and international airworthiness standards. This includes the approval of maintenance organizations, training programs and accrediting maintenance personnel.

♦ Aircraft Certification

Responsible for inspecting, testing and approving the design, manufacture and performance of all new and modified aeronautical products built or operated in Canada. The branch is also responsible for monitoring the continuing airworthiness and any problems identified for aeronautical products.

♦ General Aviation

Responsible for monitoring and certifying training schools and programs and the testing and licensing the general aviation community including recreational aviation and special flight operations such as airshows. This includes flight crew examinations, aircraft registration and leasing, flight training, and personnel licensing. The branch is also responsible for coordinating educational and awareness programs on the impact of human factors on aviation safety.

♦ Aircraft Services Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for the provision and maintenance of aircraft and the provision of services in support of Transport Canada operations, as well as selected programs of other federal government departments, agencies, and clients. This includes the provision of the appropriate professional training for Transport Canada and Transportation Safety Board civil aviation inspectors, and for Aircraft Services aircraft maintenance engineers and electronics technicians. The Directorate is divided into six branches: Flight Operations, Training; Technical Services; Engineering; Special Projects and Operational Planning, and, Aviation Safety.

The Directorate is responsible for the Department's 49 fixed and rotary wing aircraft, which are located at the Headquarters office in Ottawa and at six regional bases. The Directorate is also responsible for the operation and maintenance of 29 helicopters supporting the Department of Fisheries and Oceans — Canadian Coast Guard program.

Aircraft Services maintains the four Challenger aircraft for the Department of National Defence's Administrative Flight Service.

In addition, the Directorate is responsible for the four government owned Canadair CL-215 Water Bomber aircraft which are leased to a commercial operator for forest fire fighting duties in the Northwest Territories. The Directorate also owns one de Havilland Dash 7R aircraft, which is operated under lease to a commercial air operator in support of the Department of Environment's Ice Reconnaissance Program.

♦ Civil Aviation Directorate

The Civil Aviation Directorate is responsible for establishing and administering the regulations necessary for the safe conduct of civil aviation within Canada. The directorate comprises ten branches and Civil Aviation Medicine, a division of Health Canada.

♦ Aerodome Safety

Responsible for inspecting and certifying all airports and aerodromes in Canada. This includes developing the rules, standards and procedures for all aspects of airside safety including determining land use and zoning and evaluating noise and its impact on wildlife and residential communities. The branch also evaluates the requirements for maintenance, lighting, roadway markings, emergency response and firefighting services.

♦ Air Navigation Services and Airspace

Responsible for regulating the air navigation system to operate safely and efficiently. This includes developing the rules governing Canada's airspace, planning and co-ordinating airspace and air traffic control procedures. The branch is also responsible for providing aeronautical information services and publications to pilots, operators and owners for safe flying in Canada's national airspace.

♦ Civil Aviation Medicine (a Division of Health Canada)

Assisting Civil Aviation, Health Canada appoints Civil Aviation Medical Examiners to set medical standards and carry out regular health examinations for civil aviation personnel. Also conducts aeromedical training sessions for pilots, air crews, medical examiners and air traffic controllers.

♦ Commercial and Business Aviation

Responsible for inspecting and certifying the flight operations and facilities of Canadian and foreign commercial air carriers as well as Canadian corporate operators. The branch is also responsible for developing standards and regulations for cabin safety, the transportation of dangerous goods and occupational safety and health on board air carriers.

♦ Program Services

Responsible for supporting all areas of Civil Aviation by providing specialized services in activity costing, performance analysis, information systems, communications, human resource planning and policy studies. The branch also oversees a national quality assurance program.

♦ Training Services

Responsible for providing basic, advanced and refresher programs for all Civil Aviation specialists, inspectors and engineers.

♦ Emergency Preparedness Branch

This Branch is responsible for the operation of the Transport Canada Crisis Centre (TCCC) for planning and coordinating emergency preparedness exercises, coordinating multi-modal crisis planning, and preparing, coordinating and maintaining Department of Transport peace and wartime plans.

♦ International Aviation

Responsible for coordinating the directorate's activities on international aviation matters. In cooperation with foreign agencies, such as the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) and civil aviation authorities, coordinates and develops standards and procedures for international aviation and the harmonization of regulations.

♦ Marine Safety Directorate

The Marine Safety Directorate is responsible for the development and provision of a safe and efficient national marine transportation system in support of government marine objectives. As such, it is the focal point for marine affairs.

The Directorate is responsible for commercial shipping safety and regulatory matters, and changes and amendments to relevant legislation, such as the Canada Shipping Act, the Arctic Shipping Pollution Prevention Act and the Navigable Waters Protection Act to ensure the proper enforcement of the marine regulatory system.

A description of the organization and responsibilities of The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, Canada Ports Corporation and the four Pilotage Authorities, as well as the records held by them, are provided elsewhere in this register.

♦ Prairie and Northern Region — Marine

This Branch develops and implements policies and plans for the conduct of shipping activities in the Arctic region. Responsibilities include; the provision of ship safety inspections in the Yukon, NWT, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba; pollution prevention responsibilities under the Arctic Waters Pollution Prevention Act (AWPPA) in regard to ships; the administration of a research and development program to update regulations and standards. The Branch also provides liaison with other government departments, northern governments, interest groups and Inuit communities on matters of ship safety.

♦ Preventive Security Branch

This Branch directs the collection, analysis and dissemination of intelligence information from national and international agencies and provides the principal departmental liaison with the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, Intelligence Committees and other agencies concerning intelligence matters. This Branch directs the Personnel Security program, including the security clearances for access to restricted areas of the international and domestic airports. Develops departmental security training policies and plans and directs the design and delivery of training for professional security development and security awareness. Develops training for the operation and maintenance of new security equipment; reviews and approves all departmental security training and exercises quality control over its delivery. Directs the collection, analysis and dissemination of intelligence information from national and international agencies and provides the principal departmental liaison with the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, Intelligence Committees and other agencies concerning intelligence matters.

♦ Railway Safety Directorate

This Directorate administers the Railway Safety Act, implements safety aspects of the national transportation policy and coordinates all programs relating to railway safety in Canada. The main responsibilities include development and enforcement of regulations, rules, standards and procedures governing safe railway operations in Canada. As well, it administers federal government funding programs designed to improve the safety of railway operations, including improvements to grade crossings. This Directorate also develops the contingency plans, procedures, organizations and facilities necessary to ensure the efficient and effective operation of rail, ferry and highway transportation systems and facilities that are essential to the national transportation system during periods of national crisis, international tension or war.

♦ Regional Directors, Security

The five Regional Directors are responsible for inspecting and testing departmental security plans, policies, and standards and for identifying vulnerabilities in them. They monitor the effectiveness of site security exercises, carry out certification of security screening personnel, ensure compliance of industry with transportation security legislation and provide advice and assistance in the protection of assets throughout the region for the departmental and multi-modal transportation industry.

♦ Regulatory Services

Responsible for developing and maintaining aeronautical legislation and implementing enforcement action as well as presenting cases before the Civil Aviation Tribunal. The branch is also responsible for translation services as well as developing and standardizing aeronautical terminology. The branch's contingency Operations section is responsible for preparing and coordinating emergency response for any national or international civil air transportation crises.

♦ Research and Development Directorate

The R&D function, which includes the Transportation Development Centre (TDC) in Montreal, plans and manages the Department's central R&D program comprising of work in support of transportation safety and security; policy, accessibility, energy and the environment, and efficiency and productivity. TDC serves as the Department's centre of expertise on research and development and transportation technology and innovation. R&D is contracted-out to a variety of public and private sector organizations and for projects that cover all modes of transportation as well as system considerations.

♦ Road Safety and Motor Vehicle Regulation Directorate

This Directorate coordinates federal government activities in road safety, motor vehicle regulation and commercial vehicle safety in order to reduce deaths, the severity of injuries, health impairment, property damage and fuel consumption. Principal responsibilities include development and enforcement of safety standards for motor vehicles, development of road safety countermeasures, liaison with motor vehicle agencies in other countries, liaison with the Motor Vehicle Test Centre and fuel economy programs, and participation in co-operative federal-provincial road safety programs.

♦ Safety Programs, Strategies and Coordination Directorate

Description: This bank contains individuals' names, dates and places of birth, record of vessels and periods of service for Merchant Seafarers. The records maintained by Transport Canada cover the period commencing 1948 to present date. Records in Transport Canada are in constant use. Class of Individuals: Canadian Merchant Seafarers. Purpose: This bank is to record information on Canadian Seafarers in order to provide statements of sea service when required by seafarers and other departments. Retention and Disposal Standards: Log books are retained for 15 years in Transport Canada Archives, then forwarded to the National Archives of Canada for retention. Articles of Agreement are microfilmed in the Department at the end of every second year and the paper records are destroyed. Original rolls of microfilm are forwarded to the National Archives of Canada after 30 years. PAC Number: 77-018 Related to PR#: DOT MSS 200 TBS Registration: 001050 Bank Number: DOT PPU 040

Register of Ships

Description: This bank contains the names, addresses, occupations and citizenship of ship owners; and the names and addresses of mortgagors of ships. The bank also contains details on the ship, and on transfers of ownership, registrations and discharges of mortgages, etc. The Register may be inspected by any person for any reason. Copies of the Register may also be obtained.

Class of Individuals: Ship owners and ship mortgagees.

Purpose: The information was compiled to comply with section 7 of the Canada Shipping Act. The Register of Ships confers the right to fly the Canadian flag. Registered ships are entitled to the protection of the Crown and limitation of liability. The Register is a title system for ship ownership and registrations of mortgages. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for 20 years after closure of ship. PAC Number: 77-018 Related to PR#: DOT MSS 215 TBS Registration: 002304 Bank Number: DOT PPU 041

Registry of Imported Vehicle

Description: This bank contains information about the importation of vehicles from the United States into Canada. Class of Individuals: All persons importing vehicles from the United States into Canada. Purpose: To ensure that imported vehicles comply with the Canada Motor Vehicle Safety Standards. Retention and Disposal Standards: To be determined. TBS Registration: DOTPPU3938 Bank Number: DOT DTS 275

Special Motor Vehicle Accident Investigations

Description: These reports contain findings of studies done to evaluate new safety equipment i.e.: air bags/automatic seatbelts, and the potential hazard when vehicles collide with vehicles propelled by propane or natural gas (as well as public concern over accidents involving special circumstances/user groups, e.g. school bus accidents, heavy truck collisions, etc. Class of Individuals: All persons involved in such accidents (occupants and non-occupants). Purpose: The intended use of all data is to evaluate the effectiveness of safety standards and to keep abreast of safety problems that may arise due to new technologies and the ever-changing road travel environment. Retention and Disposal Standards: These reports will be held for at least five years. TBS Registration: 002691 Bank Number: DOT PPU 092

Vessel Licences

Description: This bank contains the name and address of the licence holder; and the length, breadth, depth and estimated tonnage of the vessel. Class of Individuals: Actual and previous owners of small commercial vessels. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to issue licences to, and provide identification of, owners of small commercial vessels operating in Canadian waters, rivers and lakes, and to meet the requirements of the Small Vessel Regulations. Licenses are issued by Transport Canada. The information is also used for enforcement of safety regulations, search and rescue purposes, to provide safe boating information, etc. Consistent Uses: This bank is also used by: officers of federal/provincial departments for enforcing various statutes and regulations and the issue of special licences or permits; police authorities for enforcing safety regulations and identifying stolen and missing property; operators of canals and locks for collecting fees and regulating traffic; operators of marinas for assessing dues and fees for docking facilities; yacht brokers to establish ownership when purchasing or taking vessels as trade-ins; banks and other financial institutions to identify owners of vessels pledged as security for loans; insurance companies to establish ownership before settling claims resulting from theft, loss or damage. Information held on the bank may be divulged to provincial tax authorities in accordance with federal-provincial agreements. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. PAC Number: 77-018 Related to PR#: DOT MSS 215 TBS Registration: 002305 Bank Number: DOT PPU 042

Transportation Safety Board of Canada

Chapter 102

General Information

Background

The Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act was proclaimed on 29 March 1990, establishing an independent multi-modal agency which is known by its applied title, "Transportation Safety Board of Canada (TSB)".

The TSB's sole object is the advancement of transportation safety. It has a mandate to do so in a number of ways, chiefly by conducting independent investigations and studies in order to identify transportation safety deficiencies and make recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce these deficiencies.

With the Board, transportation accident investigation and related functions are carried out by an agency which is independent of the government agencies responsible for the regulation and operation of transportation facilities and services.

Responsibilities

The Board's responsibilities are set out in the Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act.

The object of the Transportation Safety Board is to advance transportation safety. It is to do this by: a) conducting independent investigations and if necessary, public inquiries into air, marine, rail and pipeline occurrences in order to make findings as to their causes and contributing factors; b) reporting publicly on its investigations and public inquiries and on the related findings; c) identifying safety deficiencies as evidenced by transportation occurrences; d) making recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce any such safety deficiencies; and e) initiating and conducting special investigations and studies on matters pertaining to safety in transportation.

When it investigates an occurrence, the Transportation Safety Board has the exclusive jurisdiction to investigate for the purpose of making findings as to the causes and contributing factors; other federal agencies cannot investigate for this purpose when the TSB is investigating. The Board reports publicly on its investigations and public inquiries and on the related findings. Board reports must, wherever possible, include safety recommendations.

In making its findings as to causes and contributing factors of a transportation occurrence, it is not the function of the Board to assign fault or determine civil or criminal liability. But, the Board must not refrain from fully reporting on the causes and contributing factors merely because fault or liability might be inferred from its findings. The Act provides that no finding of the Board shall be construed as assigning fault or determining civil or criminal liability, and the findings of the Board are not binding on the parties to any legal, disciplinary or other proceedings.

The Board reports annually to Parliament through the President of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada.

Legislation

- Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Regulations

Organization

Executive Director

The Chairperson has delegated to the Executive Director the role and functions of a Chief Operating Officer. As such he is responsible for seeing to the day-to-day management and coordination of all TSB's activities and operations to ensure they are conducted effectively and efficiently; included are responsibilities for the acquisition and allocation of human and financial resources, and the provision of ongoing support and advice to the Chairperson.

The Board

The Statute provides for a Board consisting of up to five full-time members, including the Chairperson. The Act requires that members be collectively knowledgeable about marine, commodity pipeline, rail and air transportation. They are appointed by the Governor in Council and supported by a public service staff. Members' duties include establishing policies respecting the classes of occurrences to be investigated and policies to be followed in the conduct of investigations, reviewing investigation reports, determining findings as to causes and contributing factors, identifying safety deficiencies and making safety recommendations. Reporting to the Chairperson is the Executive Director.

♦ Accident Prevention

This branch is responsible for analysing those systemic weaknesses in federally regulated marine, rail, pipeline or aviation operations which put persons, property or the environment at risk; for developing, coordinating and monitoring the implementation of recommendations and other forms of safety action designed to eliminate or reduce any such safety deficiencies. To fulfill these functions, Accident Prevention maintains modal specific data bases, carries out statistical analyses of these data and responds to queries for transportation occurrence data. It is also responsible for the management of a multimodal voluntary confidential occurrence reporting program (known as SECURITAS) and for developing the confidence of the transportation community in the use of this program.

◆ Air Investigation Branch

The Director of this Branch has exclusive responsibility to direct the conduct of air investigations on behalf of the Board. The investigators are experienced pilots, aircraft maintenance engineers, or air traffic controllers.

◆ Communications

This division is responsible for providing advice with respect to the formulation of TSB communications policies, for establishing and implementing TSB communications strategies and plans through such activities as making public the results of the Board's work, and preparing the TSB's printed products (e.g. occurrence reports and the TSB's monthly safety digest REFLEXIONS) for publication and distribution. It keeps the TSB informed on the public response to current transportation safety issues and it provides communications support to the agency in meeting public and media information requests during major investigations. It also maintains the TSB's home page on the Internet.

◆ Corporate Services Branch

This Branch assists operating directorates in achieving efficient, effective and economical delivery of departmental programs through provision of administrative, financial and human resource services and controls. This Branch is also responsible for the activities of the Secretariat.

◆ Engineering Branch

This Branch specializes in laboratory testing and analysis of parts, structural components, systems, instruments, and wreckage of materials and components from transportation occurrences. Additional responsibilities include underwater search and recovery of wreckage, documentation of occurrence sites, and the extraction and interpretation of data from on-board voice and data records. The Engineering Branch has also developed expertise in document restoration, image analysis, and new investigation techniques based on photogrammetric and remote sensing technology.

◆ Finance and Administration

This sector provides service to the agency in financial and administrative functions. It is responsible for services and advice to management and for financial reporting and control. It also provides the framework for administrative activities such as materiel management, corporate information holdings, security and reception. It ensures that there are enough controls to assure the public that these responsibilities of the agency are effectively and efficiently administered.

◆ Human Performance

This activity consists of the behavioural and ergonomic aspects of the broad field known as human factors. It encompasses such considerations as sensory perception and reaction, training, crew coordination, the impact of fatigue or stress, as well as interactions among humans and between humans, machines and the environment. A head office unit provides standards and training for investigators and analysts and assists in the conduct of complex investigations and safety deficiency analyses.

◆ Human Resources

Provides a full range of personnel services and controls to management and employees of the Board. This includes advice and support to senior management on staff relations, human resources and career planning, staffing, classification, pay and benefits, official languages, management and professional development, program development and policy interpretation. Human Resources coordinates an employee assistance program to advise managers on supervisory problems and a counselling service to assess, treat and resolve problems in order to restore the employee's performance to an optimum level.

◆ Informatics

This division develops policies and procedures for all aspects of the TSB's informatics needs, providing technical advice on such aspects as hardware and software acquisition, applications development and provides system support and facilities management and operations for the TSB's national network; this includes the development and technical operation of Canada's transportation occurrence databases and all other computer systems required in support of the Board's investigative, analytical, engineering and administrative activities.

◆ Investigation Operations Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for all aspects of the agency's marine, rail, commodity pipeline and air transportation safety investigations. The Directorate is divided into five branches:

◆ Legal Services

This area provides services with respect to all legal matters which arise in connection with TSB activities, including services and advice in connection with proceedings by or against the Board in legal or other proceedings.

◆ Marine Investigation Branch

The Director of this Branch has exclusive responsibility to direct the conduct of marine investigations on behalf of the Board. Marine investigators are experienced master mariners, chief engineers, or naval architects.

◆ Rail and Commodity Pipeline Investigation Branch

The Director of this Branch has exclusive responsibility to direct the conduct of rail and commodity pipeline investigations on behalf of the Board. Rail investigators are experienced in the many disciplines of rail operations (locomotive operations, equipment design and maintenance, roadbed, tracks and signals, operating rules, and dangerous goods). A Commodity Pipelines investigator must be familiar with pipeline design and operations as well as dangerous goods matters.

◆ Safety Analysis and Communications Directorate

This Directorate is responsible for identifying and analysing safety deficiencies as evidenced by transportation occurrences and for proposing corrective safety action. It is also responsible for communicating the results of the Board's work to the public and for establishing and maintaining the informatics infrastructure to support the TSB's investigative, analytical and administrative functions. Specifically, this directorate is responsible for the following activities:

◆ Secretariat

This sector is responsible for managing administrative activities related to the preparation and coordination of Board meetings, the administrative support required by the Board for the conduct of public inquiries, and for the coordination of report production. It is also responsible for administering the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act including informal requests for information, and for the administration of the Harassment policy.

Chapter 103

General Information

Background

The Treasury Board, a committee of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, was established in 1867. The Board consists of the President of Treasury Board, the Minister of Finance and four other ministers nominated by the Governor in Council. The Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat (Secretariat), the administrative arm of the Treasury Board, is headed by a Secretary and Comptroller General, who reports to the President of the Treasury Board. The Secretariat was part of the Department of Finance Canada until 1966, when it became a separate department.

Responsibilities

The Secretariat has a dual mandate to support the Treasury Board as a committee of ministers and to fulfil the statutory responsibilities of a central government agency. This entails providing operational programs to carry out the legislated responsibilities of the Treasury Board. These responsibilities derive from the broad authority of sections 5 — 13 of the Financial Administration Act, authorities in six other Acts: Public Service Staff Relations Act, Official Languages Act, Access to Information Act, Privacy Act, Real Property Act, Public Service Employment Act and other legislation. The Secretariat's responsibilities for the general management of the government cross all policy sectors managed by 22 operating departments and some 100 other organizational entities as reported in the Main Estimates. In addition, the Secretariat has the mandate to coordinate the government's Canada Infrastructure Works Program.

The mission of the Secretariat is, in support of the Treasury Board, to help the Government of Canada work better within available resources.

The Secretariat puts into effect the policies set by the Treasury Board as the overall manager of the Public Service and manages the human, financial and material resources that support it. This is carried out by several sectors of the Secretariat, described below under "Organization".

Organization

Office of the Secretary and Comptroller General

The Secretary and Comptroller General is the deputy minister who directs the work of the Secretariat and advises the President and the Board on the organization and management of that part of the Public Service under the Treasury Board's jurisdiction. The Office of the Secretary and Comptroller General is responsible for the daily administrative functions of the organization.

Alternative Service Delivery, Crown Corporation Policy and Privatization Sector

This sector coordinates the management of the government's ownership in Crown corporations, and joint and mixed enterprises by advising on the legislative and regulatory framework for Crown corporations and policy issues that affect Crown corporations as a group. It develops initiatives and advises ministers on privatization, commercialization, and alternative delivery mechanisms, including special operating agency and other legislated agencies; and works with other sectors of the Secretariat to help departments and agencies seeking to adopt newer, more suitable organizational forms to deliver their programs.

Chief Human Resources Officer (CHRO), Human Resources Branch

The Chief Human Resources Officer provides a framework that enables managers to better manage the people who deliver government programs and promotes effective employer-employee relations in the Public Service of Canada.

Specific areas of responsibility include general personnel management; human resources planning; Official Languages Program; Employment Equity Program; pensions and insurance benefits; policy administration and development; training and development; developmental programs; deployment; performance management; career planning and counseling; position classification; equal pay for work of equal value and pay administration; job classification and compensation; workforce adjustment; and planning and analysis.

The following five sectors: 1) Classification and Excluded Groups; 2) Labour Relations and Human Resources Management; 3) Official Languages and Employment Equity; 4) Pensions; and 5) Strategic Planning and Development, work together to develop, communicate and provide for the implementation and evaluation of the personnel policies, systems and methods necessary to ensure that the human resources needed to carry out government programs effectively are obtained at competitive cost, and are managed and developed efficiently.

Chief Information Officer (CIO)

The CIO will provide leadership on government-wide information and technology issues and a strategic vision for information technology (IT)-based renewal in government; improve relationships with the IT vendor community; help renew the IT community; break down policy barriers to effectively managing IT in the federal government; and optimize the benefits accruing from IT investments. These activities are expected to provide improved service delivery in the federal government through IT.

The CIO's primary goal is to help in "getting government right". This means modernizing federal programs and services to meet the needs of Canadians, today and in the future.

Communications

Communications provides advice and support; news media monitoring and daily clippings; editing, writing and publishing services; and the electronic dissemination of Treasury Board documents. The group advises on communications issues, develops strategic and operational communications plans, produces news releases and coordinates the preparation of speeches. It also provides media relations support to the President, Secretary, and senior management. For instance, it replies to requests for information, refers requests for interviews, and advises the President and the President's office accordingly.

Corporate Services Branch

The Corporate Services Branch provides financial and administrative services, human resources services, security services and informatics systems necessary to the internal management of the Secretariat and the Department of Finance Canada.

Deputy Comptroller General (DCG)

The Deputy Comptroller General works to improve the government's management framework through a number of initiatives designed to support the delivery of quality services by departments, to modernize the financial information system, to strengthen the review of government activities and to improve accountability for results.

The DCG consists of constituent sectors and a project office, namely: 1) Financial and Contract Management, the leader in comptrollership and project, contract and risk management; 2) Government Review and Quality Services, the federal focal point for quality services and effective government review; and 3) Financial Information Strategy Project Office, a government-wide strategy to improve the quality and timeliness of financial information provided to the government's decision-makers in Parliament, central agencies and departments.

The DCG's primary goal is to help with "getting government right". Getting government right means modernizing federal programs and services to meet the needs of Canadians, today and in the future.

Expenditure Management; Government Operations; Economic; and Social and Cultural Sectors

These four sectors work together making recommendations to the Treasury Board on allocating financial resources in light of government priorities, fiscal targets and results achieved; developing and maintaining accountability frameworks within which Parliament approves resources and in light of which departments and agencies report on their use; prepare Estimates (Main and Supplementary) and Appropriation Bills, thereby coordinating the process whereby the government obtains funds from Parliament; monitoring the implementation of approved policies and programs, and advise the Treasury Board on success in achieving intended results; advising the Treasury Board President, in his role as a member of Cabinet, on the resource implications of new government policy and project initiatives while promoting innovative management and increased efficiency and effectiveness in delivering programs; providing analysis and recommendations to the Treasury Board on departmental Business Plans and Crown corporation corporate plans and budgets; promoting regulatory reform across the government; and supporting the Treasury Board President in coordinating the strategic planning and management of the government's real property portfolio.

Legal Services

Legal Services, staffed by lawyers belonging to the Department of Justice, provides a full range of legal advice and litigation services to the Secretariat. In particular, the unit provides counsel on the Financial Administration Act in connection with the Secretariat's central agency functions and conducts litigation in support of the Treasury Board's role as employer of much of the Public Service of Canada.

Ministerial and Executive Services (MES)

The MES group is the focal point, in the Secretariat, for ensuring that the President, Secretary and exempt staff are provided with the briefing, correspondence and logistical support related to Treasury Board meetings, parliamentary affairs, and dealings with other government departments and non-governmental organizations. Ministerial and Executive Services manages and coordinates the Treasury Board's meetings; coordinates the Secretariat's access to information and privacy activities; and provides support to the President's office on financial, human resources and administrative matters.

Office of Infrastructure

Canada Infrastructure Works is a $6 billion program that is cost shared across the three levels of government. Its main objectives are to renew Canada's infrastructure and create jobs.

The Office of Infrastructure was established as part of the Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat to support the President of the Treasury Board in his role as Minister responsible for Infrastructure. Program delivery is the responsibility of implementing departments and agencies such as the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency, Western Economic Diversification Canada, the Federal Office of Regional Economic Development (Quebec), Indian and Northern Affairs Canada, and Industry Canada.

The Office coordinates the activities of the program, provides functional direction to implementing agencies and deals with emerging issues and problems. The team manages policy issues such as pressures for new programs and other related initiatives, and provides communications functions such as strategic communications advice at the national level. It also maintains the national program database which is the central source of information for ministers and members of Parliament to determine the status of projects.

Delivery of Government Services

Description: “Stretching the Tax Dollar: Making the Organization More Efficient” and “Stretching the Tax dollar: Make or Buy?” are tools to help Public Service employees save taxpayers dollars in their every day activities. Managers and staff in many federal departments and agencies contributed to developing these guides and tested them on operational programs. Departments identified ways to increase efficiency and reduce costs.

“Stretching the Tax Dollar — Make the Organization More Efficient” sets out an approach managers can use to determine how to deliver quality government services at least costs. The methodology involves conducting a preliminary assessment, specifying the results expected, assessing service delivery options, and designing the most efficient in-house approach. “Stretching the Tax Dollar — Make or Buy?” helps managers compare the cost of providing services in-house with the cost of contracting out. The process involves getting the costs right, ensuring an objective assessment and comparing similar services. Topics: Employee takeover; foreign; liaison with departments and agencies; make or buy; most efficient organization (MEO); Nielsen Task Force (ministerial task force on program review); Public Service 2000; restructuring. Program Record Number: TBS FIMB 229

Veterans Affairs Canada

Chapter 104

General Information

Background

Nearly 1,750,000 men and women served in wartime for Canada. Approximately 116,000 died and 229,000 were wounded as a result of war. The Veterans Affairs Portfolio is responsible for commemorating their sacrifice and for assisting eligible Canadians who belong to any of the following groups:

Military personnel and merchant mariners who served in the First and Second World Wars and in the United Nations operations — Korea — 1950-53;

Certain civilians who are entitled to benefits because of their wartime service;

Former members of the regular forces (including those who have served in Special Duty Areas) and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; and Survivors and dependants of military and civilian personnel.

There are approximately 475,000 veterans alive today, of whom nearly 45,000 are women. One in every three Canadian men over the age of 65 is a war veteran. The average age of Canada's veteran population is 75.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the Veterans Affairs Portfolio is to provide veterans, qualified civilians and their families with the benefits and services to which they are entitled; to promote their well-being and self-sufficiency as participating members of their communities; and to keep the memory of their achievements and sacrifices alive for all Canadians.

Veterans Affairs Canada is responsible for the administration of 19 acts and 32 sets of regulations and orders. These instruments give the Minister responsibility for the economic, social, mental and physical well-being of veterans, qualified civilians and their dependants. The range of services provided includes disability pensions, economic support, health care, management of property contracts, legal aid and appeals.

Organization

The Veterans Affairs Portfolio consists of the Department of Veterans Affairs which reports to the Minister of Veterans Affairs and the Veterans Review and Appeal Board which reports to Parliament through the Minister of Veterans Affairs.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is made up of two branches (Veterans Service Branch and Corporate Services Branch), the Bureau of Pensions Advocates and three divisions (Communications Division, Portfolio Executive Services and Corporate Planning Division) which report to the Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs.

Personal information contained in the Department of Veterans Affairs personal information banks is used by all components of the Portfolio.

Department of Veterans Affairs

◆ Bureau of Pensions Advocates

The Bureau provides free legal aid to persons who seek, through the review and appeal processes with the Veterans Review and Appeal Board, to establish claims under the Pension Act and related statutes.

◆ Communications Division

This Division manages Portfolio communications policies and programs, and is responsible for providing communications advice, planning and services, notably in the areas of public and media relations, public environment monitoring, media training, information services, and publishing. Portfolio library services are also included in this division.

◆ Corporate Planning Division

The division supports the Portfolio by: carrying out long-term, strategic and operational planning; providing advice on resource management, planning methods and practices, and departmental issues; investigating options for alternative service delivery; and co-ordinating the development and implementation of Central Agency initiatives such as Quality Service and the revised Expenditure Management System. It is also responsible for providing departmental statistics and other management information, ongoing development and maintenance of the Corporate Information System as well as ongoing development of Service Standards.

◆ Corporate Services Branch

This branch is responsible for ensuring the effective and efficient use and protection of the Portfolio's financial, human, information, materiel and information technology resources; conducting internal audits and evaluations for all Veterans Affairs operations; administering property agreements with participating veterans and assisting veterans settled under the Veterans' Land Act; providing Portfolio support services, e.g. records and facilities management and videoconferencing; planning and execution of business resumption, security and emergency preparedness measures; processing of requests and activities related to the Access to Information and Privacy Acts; employment equity and official languages programs; and co-ordinating locally shared services initiatives.

◆ Portfolio Executive Services

This division is responsible for providing executive services to the Deputy Minister, Secretary of State and the Minister. It is also responsible for ensuring policy consistency in internal and external policies, and liaising with veterans' organizations, Parliamentary committees, and central agencies. The division is also responsible for ensuring that government policy is reflected in legislation and regulations.

◆ Veterans Services Branch

This branch is responsible for delivery of pension and health care benefits, and for providing social and economic support to veterans and certain civilians in all regions of Canada. Health care is provided to eligible veterans in the departmental hospital at Ste-Anne-de-Bellevue, Quebec, in contract hospital beds, in community beds, and in veterans' homes. Emergency and ongoing income support, social counselling and referral services are also provided. The branch is also responsible for program development, policy and the continuing review of the programs it delivers.

With the implementation of Pension Reform legislation, this branch is responsible for counselling clients on disability pension applications, adjudicating on disability pension claims, setting adjudicative policy and providing legal assistance to clients making an application for review or appeal to the Veterans Review and Appeal Board.

The branch maintains functional and line authority over program operations within the health care, pensions, and economic support activities. It is also responsible for negotiating with the provinces and for delivering certain other centrally managed programs including commemoration.

Veterans Review and Appeal Board — Associated Agency

♦ Veterans Review and Appeal Board

The Veterans Review and Appeal Board is an independent, quasi-judicial agency established by Parliament in 1995.

The Board considers reviews and appeals arising under the Pension Act, the War Veterans Allowance Act, the Veterans Review and Appeal Board Act, the Merchant Navy Veterans and Civilian War-related Benefits Act, and other related statutes.

Within the Veterans Affairs Portfolio, the Board is the final level for pension appeals from decisions made at the review level by the Board itself, and War Veterans Allowance appeals from decisions taken by regional Review Committees of the Department of Veterans Affairs.

♦ Common Records

Veterans Affairs shares the program records listed under this section with the Veterans Review Appeal Board.

Western Economic Diversification Canada

Chapter 105

General Information

Background

The Department of Western Economic Diversification (WD) was established by the Western Economic Diversification Act (S.C. 1988, c. 17) on June 28, 1988. Some of the programs now under the Department's mandate were transferred from the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion.

Responsibilities

The Department administers the Western Diversification Program, a program designed to bring the West more fully into the mainstream of national economic development through judicious investments in projects with the greatest potential for economic development and diversification. The Department also acts as a pathfinder for western Canadian businesses seeking access to federal economic programs, and it ensures that western interests are represented in the development of federal economic policies. In addition, it intends to serve as a focus for federal economic activities in western Canada, particularly those that are aimed at the development of new businesses and industries, and related business infrastructures.

The Department also administers the following programs for the West, previously administered by the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion: Economic and Regional Development Agreements (ERDAs); General Development Agreements (GDAs); Western Transportation Industrial Development Program (WTID); and Industrial and Regional Development Program (IRDP).

Legislation

- Industrial and Regional Development Act
- Small Businesses Loans Act
- Special Areas Act
- Western Economic Diversification Act, S.C. 1988, c. 17

Organization

The Department of Western Economic Diversification is headed by the Deputy Minister, supported by the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister responsible for the Ottawa Liaison Office, and by the four Assistant Deputy Ministers each responsible for a regional office.

♦ Headquarters

The major organizational components of Headquarters are the Program and Planning Branch, the Public Affairs Branch, and the Sectors.

♦ Programs and Planning Branch

The Programs and Planning Branch coordinates inter-sectoral and inter-provincial policy, planning and economic analysis; monitors the business operations of the regional offices in the delivery of the programs; ensures quality regarding the project approval process; and reviews project proposals for recommendation to the Deputy Minister.

♦ Public Affairs Branch

The Public Affairs Branch develops and administers the Department's public affairs and communications program. The Branch also provides the business community, the public and departmental managers with information about policies, programs and activities of the Department.

♦ Sectors

As part of its mandate, the Department has been assigned sectors of responsibility. These sectoral responsibilities are carried out by the Deputy Minister, the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister, the four Assistant Deputy Ministers, and six sectoral Director Generals, located in the regional offices and headquarters.

These sectors are: energy, technology and tourism (administered by Headquarters); services and trade (administered by the Manitoba Regional Office); agriculture and mining (administered by the Saskatchewan Regional Office); manufacturing (administered by the Alberta Regional Office); transportation and forestry (administered by the British Columbia Regional Office); taxation and fiscal policy (administered by the Ottawa Liaison Office).

The sectors officials develop sectoral policies and criteria to be utilized in evaluating project proposals; provide expert sectoral assessment of business and economic development proposals; review the legislative, regulatory and policy development initiatives affecting the West; identify opportunities for diversification within their respective sectors; and manage significant inter-regional, sector-specific projects.

♦ Regional Offices

The Regional Offices provide the full range of Department programs in their respective region and administer these programs locally. In addition, they carry out the Department's broad regional economic development policy and program coordination of federal and federal-provincial initiatives contributing to economic growth in the West. This regional development mandate includes the coordination of economic research and planning activities affecting each region; and the definition of provincial needs and priorities. The mandate also includes the representation of departmental interests with provincial governments; with trade, labour, and industry organizations; and with other federal departments and the general public. The mandate also includes the receipt, assessment, and approval of business proposals; and problem-solving and pathfinding to help enterprises overcome impediments to expansion and diversification.

♦ Ottawa Liaison Office

The Ottawa Liaison Office directs the administration of the Department including the provision of executive support services to the Minister and support services to the whole Department. The Office also provides for the development of programs, for framework policy development and coordination, and for the advocacy of western interests within the federal government.

The major organizational components of the Ottawa Liaison Office are the Executive Services and Evaluation Branch, the Policy Development and Coordination Branch, the Finance and Professional Services Branch and the Human Resources Branch.

♦ Executive Services and Evaluation Branch

The Executive Services and Evaluation Branch provides writing and advisory services in the area of ministerial correspondence and analysis; and advisory services relating to policy development activities, parliamentary liaison and briefings, and coordination of briefings for ministerial travel and meetings. It also carries out periodic, objective reviews of all departmental programs, operations and management systems. Such reviews help determine the efficiency and cost-effectiveness of programs and provide the Department with timely and objective information which is useful in making decisions about program continuance, resource allocation and accountability. The reviews also enable the Branch to recommend improvements in planning, program design and policy development.

♦ Policy Development and Coordination Branch

The Policy Development and Coordination Branch develops and coordinates the Department's framework policies in the sectoral areas of economic, industrial and trade policy for the West. It monitors policy issues across the whole range of Cabinet committees, and provides strategic policy, economic, and statistical analysis and intelligence, including the analysis of departmental policies, programs and services. In addition, it advocates the economic development interests of the Western provinces within the federal government by influencing federal policies, programs and expenditure changes.

♦ Finance and Professional Services Branch

The Finance and Professional Services Branch provides the Department with financial planning and accounting services, administrative services, security, facilities management, and informatics.

♦ Human Resources Branch

The Human Resources Branch provides personnel services and advises managers on all matters involving human resource management.

Yukon Territory Water Board

Chapter 106

General Information

Background

The Yukon Territory Water Board was established by the Northern Inland Waters Act in 1970, which was replaced by the Yukon Waters Act in 1993.

Responsibilities

The responsibility of the Yukon Territory Water Board is to manage and protect the Yukon's surface and sub-surface water resources. Water Use Licences are issued for Type A and Type B projects. Type A projects have a greater potential for adverse environmental impacts. Project undertakings include quartz and placer mining hydropower generation, municipal use, agriculture, conservation, recreation and several miscellaneous projects such as culvert installation. Public hearings are mandatory for Type A applications and optional for Type B.

A licence issued by the Board generally contains terms and conditions which reflect a balance between protection of the water resources and their exploitation as proposed by the applicant. Type A licences require the approval of the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

The Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development enforces the terms and conditions of Water Use Licences.

Legislation

- Regulations approved by Governor in Council in 1993
- Yukon Waters Act

Organization

The Yukon Territory Water Board has a maximum of nine members, who are appointed by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. The Government of Yukon and Yukon First Nations nominate up to three members each. The Board includes a Secretariat, consisting of six employees of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.
